HOUSE CROWDS ECONOMY FROM ECONOMY BILL

Balks at Slash of 50 Million.

GREATER INCOME TAX BOOST

Senate finance committee votes to increase normal income taxes on first $4,000 to 3 per cent, as against present 1½ per cent; on second $4,000 6 per cent, instead of 3, and to 9 per cent on incomes above $8,000. Surtaxes also raised in committee to maximum of 45 per cent on incomes above a million dollars. Page 5.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 27.—[Special.]—The first thing the house did tonight to the much advertised omnibus economy bill was to knock out more than 50 millions of the 200 millions of dollars of savings the measure was designed to effect in the annual cost of the federal government.

This was the result of the adoption of an amendment offered by Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] exempting federal employés with salaries up to and including $2,500 from the proposed 11 per cent pay reduction.

As framed by the special economy committee the bill provided for the exemption of employés with salaries up to and including $1,000. With this exemption it was estimated that the 11 per cent pay cut would effect a saving of 67 millions. With the exemption raised to $2,500 the saving will be less than 17 millions. Representative Joseph W. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.], chairman of the appropriations committee, placed the figure at only 12 millions.

Insurgents Gain Point.

The burking of the pay reduction proposal of the bi-partisan economy committee was the work of another bi-partisan insurgent coalition that overrode the Democratic and Republican leadership no less effectively than the rebels who knocked out the sales tax and soaked the rich income taxpayers when the billion dollar tax bill was before the house a few weeks ago.

The insurgents began today by knocking the gag out of the special rule under which the economy bill was offered as a rider to the pending legislative appropriation bill. They knocked out that provision of the rule limiting the number of amendments to the economy bill to forty, and then, with no limitation on amendments, they started in to make mincemeat of the measure.

Adjournment Halts Work.

Having thrown overboard at one fell swoop more than one-fourth of the savings the bill was to accomplish, the insurgents were squaring away to eliminate from the bill the provision for suspension of the Saturday half-holiday for government workers, estimated to save 9 millions, when Chairman John McDuffie [Dem., Ala.], chairman of the economy committee, moved an adjournment in order to take stock overnight of the situation produced by the latest house insurrection. The insurgents assented to the respite and the house adjourned.

The night's work represented a victory for the bureaucracy which has exerted every ounce of its influence to defeat the proposed pay cut and other economies in the cost of the government. The scuttling of the pay cut provision took place in the presence of galleries jammed with government employés whose applause and cheers punctuated the speeches against reduction of salaries until the presiding officer threatened them with expulsion. Outside the chamber the corridors were choked with other thousands of government workers whose parked automobiles surrounded the capitol acre upon acre.

Would Raise Exemption.

Representative John J. O'Connor [Dem., N. Y.], offered an amendment raising the pay cut exemption from $1,000 to $2,000 shortly after consideration of the bill had begun under the five minute rule.

Mr. O'Connor told the house the proposed pay cut if his amendment were adopted, would affect only 340,000 government workers as compared with the 650,000 who would be hit if the $1,000 exemption remained in the bill. He charged the economy committee with "working from the wrong end" by

SKETCHES OF THE NEWS

MATCHES IN HIS POCKET IGNITE; CLOTHING BURNS

When Louis Gilbertson, 42 years old, of 5050 Winona avenue, a chauffeur, stepped from a Van Buren street car at Kedzie avenue late last night he alighted a veritable human fire.

A box of matches burst into flame in his coat pocket and ignited his coat, trousers, and vest. Before he could beat out the flames he resembled a pole on fire, witnesses said. Other passengers assisted in extinguishing the flames and police took him to the county hospital.

Physicians treated burns on his hips, body, and arms. They said that while his condition was serious he would recover. Gilbertson told police he did not know how the matches caught afire.

Robbers Torture Watchman to Learn Safe Combination

Thomas Haines, 60 years old, a veteran of the Spanish-American war and watchman for the Trojan Products company, 3107 South Wabash avenue, was bound and tortured last night by three Negro bandits, who refused to believe he did not know the combination of the office safe. The robbers tightened a belt about his neck and held lighted papers near his feet in their efforts to make Haines talk. When they were convinced he was speaking the truth they fled, leaving him bound.

Lincoln Park Board Slashes Taxes 17 Pct.

Economies effected last year in the operation of Lincoln park enabled the park commissioners to adopt a resolution yesterday directing County Clerk Sweitzer to reduce their 1931 tax levy from $3,200,000 to $2,650,000, a direct saving of $550,000, or 17 per cent, to taxpayers in the park district. In their resolution the commissioners promised further economies in the 1932 levy which will probably be passed this fall.

The reduction of the 1931 tax levy was probably the first benefit which taxpayers have received from the tax muddle growing out of the 1928 reassessment and consequent delay in tax collections. The park board financed its 1931 expenditures through tax warrant sales, and was able to pass the economies made during the year on to the taxpayers immediately, due to the fact that the 1931 taxes have not yet been extended.

Pay Rolls Are Lower.

As an example of economies in the park management, the commissioners pointed out that pay rolls from Jan. 1 to April 15 last year totaled $546,875, where for the same period this year they are only $304,048.

"We do not want to raise taxpayers' hope too high, however, by stating that we can continue savings at this rate for the rest of the year," President Warren Wright said. "We are too often subjected to the vagaries of nature to promise that. A heavy snowstorm costs us thousands of dollars. A severe drouth means extra expense for watering lawns and golf course. On the other hand, we saved money on snow removal due to the mild winter just passed, and a cold summer would mean fewer life guards at the beaches."

Give Estimates for Year.

Purpose—	1931.	1932.
Administration and civil service	$151,000	$132,000
General fund	42,000	35,000
Stores	15,000	12,000
Police	528,000	500,000
Trees and shrubs	54,000	35,000
Floral	72,000	65,000
Public recreation	160,000	130,000
Semi-public recreation	2,500	2,000
Aquarium	141,000	135,000
Water	37,000	35,000
Nursery	35,000	25,000
Service departments	2,500	1,500
Small parks	600,000	600,000
Bonds and interest	177,000	163,000
	373,000	321,000
Totals	$2,394,000	$2,181,500

As a means of aiding employment, the board voted to put 300 jobs in the maintenance department, mostly those of laborers, on a half time basis on May 1. By doing this, the park will be able to give half time jobs to 600 men at no extra expense.

SEARCH CERMAK CAR FOR ESCAPED INDIANA FELONS

Mayor Anton J. Cermak and other Chicago officials were halted on the outskirts of Gary early this morning by police seeking two convicts, one a lifer, who escaped earlier from the Indiana state prison at Michigan City.

The mayor was returning from Benton Harbor, Mich., where he had served as a judge in the tenth annual blossom queen contest. Among others stopped was County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough. The searchers, including state and Gary police, flared flashlights into the officials' machines and after learning their identities passed them on.

The escaped convicts are Clarence Henry, 21 years old, serving a life sentence for kidnaping, and Fred Teneyck, 32, under a five year term for auto theft. They disappeared during the afternoon, wearing regulation prison denims. Chicago police were asked to be on the lookout for them.

LAKE COUNTY'S NEEDY TOLD TO START GARDENS

A back to the soil movement was started yesterday by Supervisor Daniel W. Hentges of Lake county, who is also poormaster for the districts embracing Lake Forest, Lake Bluff, and parts of Highwood and North Chicago.

"All families receiving township aid must have gardens this year," announced Supervisor Hentges. "Those who don't, without an honest excuse, will receive no assistance. Those who have no land will be furnished land. Families receiving aid will be urged to store up vegetables for winter."

Among those who started an actual "back to the soil movement" was Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady of Waukegan. He was found in his garden after adjournment of court last evening hoeing and planting.

BOY FINDS BOMB AND LOSES HAND AS IT EXPLODES

Joseph Warner, 9 years old, 151st street and Kilpatrick avenue, near Midlothian, suffered the loss of his right hand when a fireworks bomb exploded in his hands yesterday afternoon. Joseph was on his way home from the Forest Ridge school when his attention was attracted by a prairie fire at 149th street and 50th avenue, Midlothian. He went to watch the fire and saw the bomb at the edge of the fire. From the description he gave the police believed he had found a Fourth of July aerial bomb, which had failed to explode last Independence day. Joseph was taken to the Oak Forest infirmary.

TRIAL REVEALS 'FIX' PAYMENTS TO SERRITELLA

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Short weighting, in the view of Dan Serritella and Harry Hochstein, as shown by prosecution testimony in their trial opened yesterday in the Criminal court, was simply an avenue to the receipt of "donations." But they would not take checks.

Serritella, political henchman of Al Capone, was city sealer in the former city administration, and Hochstein was his chief deputy. Both are on trial before a jury in Judge James J. Kelly's court, charged with receiving bribes and allowing merchants throughout the city to defraud their patrons to the extent of millions of dollars through short weight sales.

Unjust Arrests Charged.

It also was charged in the testimony given yesterday that Serritella caused his inspectors to harass merchants unjustly, and that when protests against unfair arrests were made Serritella and Hochstein would suggest donations to "Christmas funds" or political campaigns as a sure means of avoiding further difficulties of the sort.

Two witnesses were heard during the day, both representatives of large chain grocery concerns. A young woman declared that Serritella had repeatedly asked for money in return for his services in fixing arrest slips for short weight sales, and that he had told her a lawyer formerly retained by the company had paid him $6,000 for the same services.

Chain Store Official Testifies.

The other witness, L. M. Conner, assistant branch manager for the Kroger-Consumers company, told of paying $200 in cash to Serritella and Hochstein on one occasion—for which they wished him a merry Christmas and a happy New Year—and of giving $50 to Hochstein at another time.

This was for fixing arrest tickets served on the Consumers' stores in Chicago, Conner said. It was Conner who asserted that he paid the money in the hope of stopping unfair practices on the part of the city sealer's office.

The young woman witness was Miss Helen Hoffmann, secretary to Thorwald Rassmussen, secretary-treasurer of the National Tea company. Questioned by Assistant State's Attorney Harold Keele, Miss Hoffmann said she had previously been secretary to a Mr. Mintz, a lawyer who represented the company.

Arrest Tickets Sent to Her.

She testified that arrest tickets issued by the city sealer's inspectors for violations of the weights and measures ordinances were sent by the individual store managers to her desk, and that she gave them to Mintz.

It was explained during the trial that the customary procedure of the inspectors was to enter a store, make a purchase, and then cause the goods to be reweighed or remeasured. If the measure was short, a ticket would be issued which would direct the offending merchant to appear at the city sealer's office. The sealer would there decide whether the culprit should be let off with a warning or taken into court to be fined.

Miss Hoffmann testified that while she was Mintz's secretary, he sent the tickets issued against National stores to Serritella by mail, inclosing them in plain white envelopes with an accompanying letter to Serritella written on plain white paper. This occurred four or fives times a month, the witness said. Then she told of Mintz growing ill and being sent to a sanitarium, where he died.

Visits Serritella Office.

Q.—[By Mr. Keele]—After Mintz went to the sanitarium, did you go yourself to the city sealer's office? A.—Yes. I told Mr. Serritella that I was Mr. Mintz's secretary and that he had told me to bring him the tickets. Mr. Serritella said he would take care of them and took them from me.

Q.—And when Mr. Mintz died, did you visit Mr. Serritella after that? A.—Yes, about a month afterward. I gave him some more tickets.

Q.—When was the next time? A.—I guess about three weeks later.

Q.—Was there any conversation between you and Serritella at that time? A.—He asked me when he was going to get paid for fixing the tickets. He told me that Mr. Mintz gave him about $6,000 to take care of the tickets.

Q.—Did you reply? A.—Why, I said I had nothing to do with it. He told me to take it up with my boss.

Miss Hoffmann testified she had

Disarm Hopes Fade; Stimson Coming Home

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, April 27.—Out of this conference called to limit and reduce armaments there came tonight, at its lowest ebb, a clear threat to increase the building of engines of war and to break certain limitations already achieved. It came from the British, from a very high spokesman.

This spokesman said that if France and Italy remained outside the London naval treaty and continued their building programs, Britain might find herself obliged to invoke the escalator clause put in that treaty to enable her, if she felt that her ideal of power was menaced, to build above the figures agreed on there.

Britain's high spokesman said this after he had learned that Premier Andre Tardieu of France, whose presence was essential for the five power conversation planned for Friday, had given a cold as an excuse for not coming.

He was in a dour mood as was everybody else because the last hope of achieving something at the conference, by attacking the Franco-German difficulty "head on" in the presence of both parties, had had to be abandoned.

Stimson to Start Home.

American Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, who had arranged to stay over, now has decided to leave Friday morning and is motoring to Cannes, where he will rest from his rigorous experience at Geneva, and will board the Vulcania Wednesday. Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and German Chancellor Bruening also are pulling out and the disarmament conference will wait upon somebody's disposition to revive it.

Tardieu sent word by Joseph Paul-Boncour, French delegate, this afternoon that a bad throat, apparently like that which Stimson suffered for a number of days, would prevent his appearing. Since last night, before there was any mention of a cold, the French press had been saying the premier would not come lest on the very eve of his elections Anglo-American "conspirators" would trap him. When Stimson heard the bad news this afternoon he immediately sent a telegram of condolence.

Way Open to Build More Ships.

The British spokesman turned his international press conference, which had already been called, into an exciting affair to which the climax was his warning, after he had expressed keen disappointment, that the three power treaty was not a five power and that Britain might decide to inform America and Japan that by virtue of the escalator clause she was building above the allotted tonnage. This clause is not a dead letter as some people thought, he informed the press.

The news quickly spread through the delegations. There are many people who think the British spokesman swept the conference dust bin tonight. Others are admitting that revival of the parley is in the laps of the gods and feel that this was only a display of annoyance.

It was said with feeling that the British had been struggling for years for naval disarmament. Hardly a month has gone by since the London treatly was signed without the British trying to get the French and Italians to join. If the conference at the very beginning had been met with a Franco-Italian naval agreement things would have gone better he said.

French Fear Effect on U. S.

The French delegation was shocked by the explicitness of the British. They assert the British naval building program holds no terrors for them, but they are inclined to alarm over what they interpret as a maneuver to stir the United States into an even more aggressive attitude toward European disarmament. Stim-

HAWAII MURDER CASE ENDS WITH DRAMATIC PLEAS

Judge Opens Way for 3 Verdicts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Honolulu, April 27.—(Special.)—No verdict was in sight when the jury debating the fate of Lieut. Thomas H. Massie and three others on trial for the murder of Joseph Kahahawai was locked up for the night, after being out five hours and forty minutes. The judge announced he would be ready again to receive a report at 9 a. m. tomorrow (2:30 p. m., Chicago daylight time, Thursday).

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

HONOLULU, April 27.—Hawaii's celebrated criminal, social, and political case, the Fortescue-Massie murder trial, is now in the hands of a jury of five Americans, three Chinese, a German, a Dane, a Portuguese, and a Hawaiian.

The trial closed shortly after 4 o'clock this afternoon when instructions were read by Judge Charles S. Davis.

The instructions given by Judge Davis make three possible verdicts—guilty of second degree murder, manslaughter, or not guilty—against any or all of the defendants, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, her son-in-law, and E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones, naval enlisted men.

Special instructions made possible, however, four verdicts for Lieut. Massie. Those verdicts are second degree murder, manslaughter, not guilty because of insanity, and not guilty.

The judge ordered the building cleared and the jurors upstairs to their room at 4:30 p. m. [10 p. m. Chicago daylight saving time]. After one hour and twenty minutes the jury was taken out to dinner and a two hour recess. The court will return after dinner and remain as late as possible for a verdict.

Darrow Asks Acquittal.

In a masterful plea for the defense, Clarence Darrow, 75 year old Chicago attorney, asked for an acquittal on the grounds of human sympathy.

Prosecutor John C. Kelley asked the jury to return a verdict of guilty of conspiracy for an unlawful act, resulting in the death of Joseph Kahahawai, alleged to have raped Mrs. Massie, the naval officer's wife. The penalty under conviction for second degree murder is from 20 years to life in prison.

Kelley closed the case for the prosecution with a vitriolic attack on Lieut. Massie and much waving of the Hawaiian flag. He denounced the admirals of the United States navy for what he called advocacy of lynch law.

"Hawaii on Trial."

"Hawaii is on trial," he said. "Is there to be one law for strangers in our midst and another for you? Will you give leave for these people to kiss Hawaii good-by? Give Massie a walkout, and they will make him an admiral or chief of staff. He and Admiral William V. Pratt [chief of naval operations] think alike. They believe in lynch law."

There was a gasp from the audience, in which were many navy men and women, including Admiral Yates Stirling, commander of the Hawaiian naval district. But Kelley went on undaunted.

"If the lynch law lifts its head in Hawaii, I tell you, watch out," he declared. "Where do we er up? As long as the admiral's pennant does not float from our flagpole and as long as the Stars and Stripes are there you have got to uphold the laws of Hawaii and the constitution of the United States."

"To Hell with the Admirals."

He pointed a finger at each juror, called them by name, and said:

"I ask not for vengeance, not for mercy, and not for the influence of the admirals in this case. I say to you, in the words of Maj. Gen. Smedley Butler, 'To hell with the admirals.'" He then told the jury not to consider racial lines.

Kelley had a difficult task to perform to counteract the tremendous wave of emotion which had flooded the courtroom and which must have touched the jury box as a result of Darrow's closing plea. This plea was one of the greatest the Chicago attorney has made in his half century as a lawyer.

Asks No Racial Lines.

Darrow's 75 years slipped off his great shoulders and he shook his gray head as his voice, firm and ringing, rose above that of the advocate into the voice of an apostle of reason, love, and tolerance. He touched upon the racial aspect of the situation and begged that it be buried here.

Every inch of the little gray and white courtroom, shaded by banyans and palms, was occupied by socially prominent whites, army and navy officers, lawyers, and officials when today's session began. Less than a dozen Hawaiians were in the room.

Seats brought high prices from those who stood in line all night. Broadcast arrangements were made in a room across the hall. Circuit Judge Charles S. Davis refused to permit the use of the courtroom for that purpose.

Kahahawai's father and mother were in the front row, a few seats removed from the four defendants. Mrs. Massie was in court, looking quite normal again. Darrow wore a new gray suit and his hair was neatly slicked as he made the plea which may turn the wheels of fate not only for these defendants, but may alter the course of political affairs and government in these forlorn fairy isles.

Darrow Dwells on Fate.

After a conference in the court chambers which delayed the opening of the trial, the lawyers came out to find their seats taken. Darrow shook hands with Mrs. Massie. Chairs were finally found and the curtain was lifted on this scene in the great drama.

Darrow told the jury that this case illustrates the mysterious workings of time, chance, and fate as have few others. He said it shows how weak and powerless are human beings against the fate which overhangs us all. He said that eight months ago Mrs. Fortescue lived in Washington, respected and well known.

Thomas Massie, he said, worked hard and by study and application became a lieutenant in the navy. He was respected, intelligent, and courageous, for he chose the hardest, most dangerous part of the service. He had a young wife, Mr. Darrow continued, who was handsome, intelligent, and known and admired in the community.

Reviews History of Case.

"What has befallen this family that is here today in connection with a criminal act for which the jury has been asked to send two of its members to prison for life?" Darrow asked. "What has happened in this long series of events? How much did they have to do with it all?

"It is a case of fate for the whole family, their life, future, and name. It is bound up with a criminal act committed by some one else in which they had no part. I want to show you how long Massie's mind was ailing and the reason for it."

Darrow spoke in a slow and leisurely manner, uttering the philosophy that has been his for many years, that man is but a puppet of fate. He occasionally raised his voice, but never in the manner of oration. He began his story with the dance last Sept. 12, on the night of the rape of Mrs. Massie. The jurors all gazed at his face and listened to his every word.

Massie's Mind Affected.

"We contend," he said, "that for months after that September night Massie's mind was affected by grief and trouble, day after day, month after month. What would happen to one of you under the same conditions? There is no other way of telling what to do except in response in our own organisms.

"They went to a dance. Mrs. Massie went out for a walk about 11:30 o'clock, intending to come back. It was only a few steps from safety to destruction, either of body or mind. She went out into the cool air and what befell her? What did Lieut. Massie learn from her a few hours later? It is an unthinkable story.

"She had gone but a short way when four or five men drove up in an automobile, dragged her into the car, beat her, broke her jaw in two places. Then after that she was dragged into the bushes and raped by four or five men. Can any one imagine any greater calamity than that to befall a family?"

Darrow drove this story home, leaning over the jury rail, pointing a finger at each juror. He said it was the hardest story found in any literature. He told these men humanly and understandingly to take care of these people now.

Lieut. Massie and his wife sat with their heads bowed, leaning toward each other and listening to the plea quietly. Darrow went on step by step to tell of the search and the agony of Lieut. Massie that night. He drove home the details.

Tells of Slander Campaign.

"You would think," he said, "by the supreme effort being made to send these people to prison that Mrs. Massie had done something wrong; instead of that she is the victim of a cruel, terrible fate. It was enough to upset any man's mind. Few men could listen to a story like that, a story told between sobs, without losing their minds.

"Has any one raised even a doubt about the story of the rape? No one, except the originators of vile slander. Has any one found a single fact to contradict the saddest tale ever told a husband? No. For eight months they have been trying to fasten the guilt on some one else to save their own freedom."

Darrow, his lower lip stuck out, told of the bruises on Mrs. Massie's legs. He said that not one fact was brought out by the people going about the island telling stories to discredit her.

"What effect did all this have on Lieut. Massie?" Darrow asked. "He did all that any man could do, but he lost strength and hope. Our insane institutions are filled with men and women who had less cause for insanity than he did. No one knows the human mind. He spent his days at work and his nights nursing his wife. Here was assault, rape, pain, danger of disease, and pregnancy. Day by day he watched her. Here was a man whose wife carried inside her the germ of whom? Did any one know? Her friend and doctor had to be called on to take it away.

Foundation for Insanity.

"I want to know if this is not a foundation for insanity. Would you take a chance with your own mind in similar circumstances? It is almost inconceivable that so much suffering could be heaped on one family. Then five men were indicted for the rape. Lieut. Massie was away in the service part of the time. Under strange circumstances the jury disagreed. I won't say why, as I don't know.

"What effect did that have? It raised a question which has been raised since men organized courts. Months passed and this case has not so far been retried."

Darrow turned here and shook his fist in the direction of the prosecutor.

"Instead," he said, "there began a campaign against this family. Strange, slanderous stories were spread over this paradise against Lieut. Massie and his ravished wife.

"There were stories that she had never been raped or that he had ravished her himself. There were stories that the husband broke the wife's jaw. Think of it! What effect did that have? Then they conspired together to say that some one else ravished her. This spread over the island. One wonders

RUSSELL M'WILLIAMS MOVED TO ROCKFORD TO AWAIT NEW TRIAL

Rockford, Ill., April 27.—[Special.]—Russell McWilliams, 17 years old, who was saved from the electric chair by a recent opinion of the Illinois Supreme court, was brought back here today from Joliet penitentiary for a retrial on a charge of murder.

He had been at the state prison since last winter. He was taken there to be executed. On arriving at the county jail here, McWilliams asked Sheriff William E. Bell if he could have his dog with him in his cell. The sheriff replied it might be arranged.

McWilliams pleaded guilty before Judge Arthur E. Fisher to the slaying of William Sayles, a street car motorman of Rockford. The court imposed the death penalty. The state board of pardons and paroles refused to recommend commutation, but Gov. Emmerson, heeding appeals from interested groups, granted him a reprieve to allow a hearing before the Supreme court.

what fate had against them, when it would let them go in peace.

"And the mother, what about her? She came to her daughter's side. Volumes without end are written about mothers. The human mother, at heart, is like all other mothers. There is one thing foremost: that her child must be preserved.

"She acted by nature's law. She remembered only the baby in her arms of long ago. If it were any other way there would be no life on this planet. Here she is in the courtroom, waiting to go to the penitentiary. All right, gentlemen, go to it! If this husband and mother and these faithful boys go to the penitentiary it will not be the first time the penitentiary has been sanctified by its inmates.

Memory Will Linger Long.

"When people come to your beautiful island, and when the names of the jailers have been forgotten, one of the first places they will want to see will be where the mother and the husband are confined because of their love and devotion. If it does happen, that will be the most conspicuous building on this island. Men will wonder how it happened and marvel at the injustice and cruelty of man and why persecution so followed this family.

"When such devotion dies this world will be desolate and cold. Every instinct that moves human beings, every feeling of you and your ancestors, every feeling that goes with the mother of any animal is with us in this case. We can't fight that.

Tells His Own Experiences.

"My home has been in courthouses for fifty years. I have seen sorrow and distress. I have seen men on their way to the gallows, handcuffed, led into dungeons and beaten. I have seen fortunes squandered in courthouses. You may exaggerate to the jury to get these people to prison, but the ordinary man passes on the other side of the street. The blind lady on the scales of justice does not interest him. What is the use of talking? Is there no justice in the world outside a courthouse? Do you know what justice is?"

Darrow's long finger pointed at each juror.

"You know," he said, "just as truly as if you had spent four years reading books."

During a recess many in the court gave up their seats to friends who were waiting outside. A crowd outside listened to Darrow, who spoke in clear, vibrant tones. His voice was brought to them through amplifiers. He resumed his plea.

Says Conviction Would Be Blot.

"The stories peddled against Mrs. Massie were almost inconceivable," he said. "The campaign against this raped woman began early. You now have the power to send these defendants to prison, but if, on top of all else that has been heaped on this devoted family, they are sent to prison it will place a blot on the fair name of this island that all the Pacific seas will never wash away.

"Something in man came before the first law was written and will abide after the last one is dead. Was Lieut. Massie in his right mind when he went about investigating those stories, when he thought he heard footsteps on the lawn at night? Would you have been? Some men have gone insane from hearing a word, from terror, and others have gone through slow decay and long trouble.

Calls Massie a "He Man."

"What is the reason they want to accomplish the destruction of these people? They brought in the story of the kidnaped baby in this case. That shows how anxious they are to destroy these people. There is not a normal man who wouldn't weep at the plight of these defendants.

"I have lived in the courts, heard testimony, heard lawyers badger and browbeat to upset a witness, but I have seen few people as witnesses who showed the power that Lieut. Massie did. Was there any cowardice or fear in him?

"One may be beaten by fate so long that one throws discretion to the winds and says, 'Come on, do what you will.' One would expect that of Massie. But few have ever listened to a more straightforward story. He is worthy of any man's respect.

Places Faith in Jurors.

"My God, am I dreaming? Is it possible that here are twelve men honestly deliberating whether to put this husband and mother to prison for life on account of the circumstances in this case? I don't believe it. I have seen too many jurors to believe that anywhere in this wide earth is any one so lacking in human feeling as to carry out this infamous design.

"How often would you wake at night to see the tear stained face of Massie's wife? I fairly well know what law is, but I will never be able to know what justice is. It is in conformity to the pattern that you have. If I knew anything about the view of the eternal, it might be something very different.

"They sought a confession at the hands of this dead boy. The last thing they wanted was to kill him. You must not forget that Jones and —what is the name of the other defendant?"

Clashes with Prosecutor.

Darrow stopped, looking at the prosecutor.

"Haven't you looked?" asked Kelley.

"Yes, but it has popped out of my mind."

"Lord."

"Who are they?" Darrow continued. "Two common seamen with some virtues not so common—loyalty, devotion, love. Jones didn't even lose them when drinking. Jones had been seeing that slanderers did not kill her, but they don't kill that way. He was as faithful as a dog and as true. He was helping a shipmate in trouble. Is he bad or good? There are so many ways to measure.

"Emotion and what comes of it may carry you to the skies or the infinite depths of hell. Have they done anything wrong? No. Is any one to blame Massie or his mother-in-law, who was obeying her most primitive urge so that there might be more children—for what, I don't know. I can't unravel that.

"These boys ought not to trouble you. When you need a friend pick out one of them—what do they call them, gobs?—rather than some one from a prayer meeting.

"You've got to take this case the way it seems. You can't conjure up a dream—something fantastic. I thought it would please the other side when we said that Massie did the killing. But they didn't like that.

Hard to Determine Truth.

"Is there any reason why, with all his sorrows, he should take this burden? They don't believe that story. People have such queer minds. I go by the evidence in this case. Man is none too great at best. He is filled with weakness, passion, hope, and fear.

"He is uncertain and it is not easy to get at the truth. All you can do is to get at the truth here as best you can. Never mind weaving new pictures. Lieut. Massie sat before that man and everything was blotted out. How many men, real men, would have done anything else?

"The picture is before you. Some men are not moved with skies falling on their heads. Others are moved by the smallest zephyr to pity. If you think his raped wife and his long months of suffering are an unjust scroll of fate unveiled before him, all right. You should not judge him in any other way."

Asks for a Rest.

Darrow asked for a rest at noon. Congratulations were showered upon him during the recess, and he said he felt that he had the jury with him.

At the end of the recess Darrow resumed his argument to the jury by declaring that no preparations had been made by the four defendants for the death of Kahahawai. He declared that the instinct of flight accounted for all that happened in the house and on the outside after the slaying.

Darrow referred to Kahahawai as a "poor boy" and an "unfortunate boy," and he never said an unnecessary thing to offend the father and mother of the slain youth sitting close to the jury.

"Many times," he said, "the world has punished men for crime when it was simply insanity. It is too cruel to look for it. We have looked to see whether the act was wrong and have not looked for the effect or the cause. New ways of living and the stress of life are adding to the toll of insanity.

"Science is just beginning to understand human behavior. Many persons have gone insane and never knew it until afterward. The broad facts in the case are hard, cruel, and fateful.

Pleads for Release of Defendants.

"Is it possible that any one should wish more sorrow heaped upon the heads of this family. Is it possible to wish to add to this terrible picture by heaping a wrong on top of it all? Is it possible for any one to say that the gates of prison should close on them? You would never dream that any of them would ever have been caught in a criminal court. They are here because it all happened to them.

"I ask you to take these four pursued, suffering people into your care. Don't take them into your hearts with anger but with pity and understanding. I would be sorry to leave this beautiful fairyland with the thought that anybody's life had been made the harder.

"I have looked on an island new to me. I have loved these green mountains, flowers, the coral locked land, the waves which turn every hue of the rainbow. I have loved it and I love its flower scented breath, its peaks of calm and quiet, which only man disturbs. I have never known what it is to have a hard feeling of prejudice against any race on earth.

"Natural forces and circumstances of life make races. These questions are solved by kindness and understanding. This beautiful island, half way from Asia, mother of all, and America, newest of all inhabited lands, was once the home of a kindly, romantic people who lived their lives in peace.

"Then others came. We live only a short time. It seems but yesterday when I was a child and now I know my life is nearly done. Our stand is short, but the race goes on. Nature is always working. She is invincible. She is molding humans, adjusting people to each other.

Nature Hard and Cruel.

"Her ways are hard and cruel at times, but she goes straight on. Laws make little difference. Slowly she fashions races. Humans make their lives and environment, but cannot force habits and thoughts on people not ready to understand.

"These people of the Polynesian islands must live in peace and kindness. Nature is slowly shaping their minds and bodies to that end. It will come about. Unless it does come about, the Pacific ocean will run with the blood of men.

"I have met Hawaiians here who are lovable and kindly. I have never seen such hospitality. Gentlemen, I am not saying this to get a verdict here, but because I wish to leave here with as kindly a feeling as when I came.

Not a Racial Question.

"Older people and older races had lone places in the world in a time when individuals kept close at home, but when the seas have been peopled by means of ships and airplanes this inevitably affects and cements the people of the world, both new and old.

"I have no feeling against the four or five men who committed the dire crime of rape, and no feeling on account of race. My feelings are understood by my clients. There are people of every race and land who are not like the rest, who, from inherently being in a bad environment take a course against their fellows.

"I am a Caucasian, I suppose. There are American Caucasians with whom we cannot live, even in Chicago. There are Chinese different from the rest. Nobody can afford to stand or condemn on account of race and simply that.

Asks Human Verdict.

"Hawaii is bound to be populated by every kind. They must live in tolerance and love if they are to produce a worthy civilization. Nature will do it in time. I put this case up to you regardless of race or nationality. To me they are all alike.

"As human beings, forces surround us. Take this case and pass on it as a human case. Forget race. Take this as you would take it were it your own, and I will be content with the verdict. Every life is shaped by fate. What the individual does depends on infinite things before us. We are made more than we make.

"I want you to help this family. If you understand, that is all that is needed."

Darrow closed his three and a half hour argument at 2:30 o'clock amid scenes of emotion. Women were in tears. Mrs. Massie was sobbing in her husband's arms.

Kelley Denounces Massie.

Prosecutor Kelley closed for the territory. He opened his argument with the statement:

"I stand before you representing the law. You have been presented with a defense of sympathy, not of insanity."

The prosecutor scored Darrow. He said he was belittling the bar of justice before which he had practiced for 50 years.

"If you are going to decide this case on passion," Kelley cried, "then tell me and I'll be silent."

The prosecutor then turned on Lieut. Massie and indicated a disbelief of the naval officer's admission that he fired the shot which killed the native.

"He couldn't hide behind the skirts of his mother-in-law nor behind the two sailors who helped him. The best you can say for him is that he lied like a gentleman.

"Up at the hospital, when Mrs. Massie identified four men as her assailants, if Lieut. Massie had picked up a gun and mowed them down he would at least have had the respect of this community. But it took him four months to get up courage to act and then he had to get two enlisted men to help him.

Calls Him Vain, Egotistical.

"I intend to paint the other side of the picture you have been shown, and show you a vain, egotistical man."

He told how Massie took his wife to Ala Wai inn the night she was assaulted, allegedly by Kahahawai and four other men. Kelley said Mrs. Massie had not wanted to go. He declared the naval officer was responsible for everything that happened beginning that evening.

"They sacrificed that girl," shouted Kelley, pointing to Mrs. Massie, "for his ego and made a Roman holiday for the crowd that disgraced this court with applause last week."

Kelley was referring to the incident when Mrs. Massie, on the stand, angrily destroyed a paper allegedly written by her and supposedly admitting differences with her husband prior to the attack.

Kelley told the jurors the court would instruct them that if the defendants conspired together to abduct Kahahawai and illegally imprison him and threaten him with a pistol, they were guilty.

"And you don't have to believe the territory," said Kelley. "They admitted all this."

The Judge's Instructions.

HONOLULU, April 27.—(AP)—Circuit Judge Charles S. Davis instructed the Massie-Fortescue jury that it was necessary for the prosecution to have proved that the defendants killed Kahahawai and also that they had intended to kill him in order to justify a second degree murder verdict.

Judge Davis ruled, however, that it would be unnecessary for the prosecution to have shown that the defendants intended to kill the native if it had shown the defendants entered into an agreement to commit a criminal act, of which the slaying was a reasonable consequence.

The court ruled that if the defendants conspired on Jan. 7, last, the day before the slaying, to kill the native or had conspired to threaten him with a pistol or kidnap him, and as a result of such conspiracy Kahahawai was slain, all were guilty of murder or manslaughter, even though one of the defendants was insane when he shot him.

This ruling referred to the defense contention that Massie, who admitted firing the shot, had a sudden attack of insanity the moment he stood before the native with a pistol and heard Kahahawai supposedly admit the attack on his wife.

The jurors were instructed that if they found Massie killed Kahahawai and was insane at that time, and if they believed Massie had not planned the killing, then they could not find any of the defendants guilty unless the prosecution had proved the defendants had conspired to do things of which a reasonable consequence would be Kahahawai's death.

Judge Davis told the jury that if a plea of insanity had been introduced, the burden of proof was on the prosecution to show the defendant sane. He instructed them to bring in a separate verdict for each defendant.

Bars Rape Angle.

The court reminded the 12 men that "no man may take the law into his own hands, and the alleged fact that the deceased ravaged the wife of one of the defendants cannot be considered."

The judge instructed that evidence regarding the assault on Mrs. Massie could be considered wholly for its bearing on Massie's mental state.

Judge Davis said the jury could bring in a verdict of guilty, as charged, of second degree murder; guilty of manslaughter; or acquittal as regards all but Massie, but for him, guilty, as charged, of second degree murder, guilty of manslaughter, or not guilty on account of insanity, or not guilty.

As the jury retired the courtroom was cleared and the defendants went to a hotel to await reports on the deliberations. The penalty for second degree murder is 20 years to life imprisonment, and that for manslaughter, ten years imprisonment.

ONE ROBBER SLAIN, POLICEMAN SHOT AS ROBBERY IS FOILED

Long Beach, Cal., April 27.—[Special.]—Three bandits, balked in attempted robbery of a gasoline station opposite the Belmont substation of the Long Island police department, today turned gunfire on the police station, shot down one policeman, and lost one of their number slain. The other two robbers escaped.

At the gas station they had pulled guns on Sidney Francis, the attendant, and ordered him into their motor. Francis ran. Motorcycle Policeman Robert Wright arrived as the trio began shooting at Francis, and one of the robbers shot him down with a bullet through the leg.

Desk Sergeant Clyde Allen, 60 years of age, came to the door and was greeted with a spray of shots which hit the door jamb above his head. Allen killed one gunman at his first shot and the other two fled in their car.

El Paso, Tex., April 27.—(AP)—Mrs. Albert B. Fall, wife of the former secretary of the interior, has gone into the restaurant business. She owns and has been operating the Omega Spanish restaurant here since the first of this month. Mrs. Mabel Silva Villa, sister-in-law of the famous bandit chief, Francisco "Pancho" Villa, is the manager.

Mrs. Villa said much of the food served is sent from the Fall ranch at Three Rivers, N. M.

AVERS HOOVER APPROVED SALE OF GRAPE JUICE

San Francisco, Cal., April 27.—(AP)—Donald D. Conn, managing director of the California Vineyardists' association, disclosed today that President Hoover, while secretary of commerce, tentatively approved the grape industry rehabilitation plan, including the marketing of grape byproducts.

"I laid the plan before Mr. Hoover in a personal conference while he was secretary of commerce," Conn said. "The conference was on the broadest aspects of the program, and the reference to grape byproducts was merely an incident of the conversation.

"The discussion did not go into the specific item of sale of concentrated grape juice specifically for the marketing of so-called nonintoxicating fruit juices in the home. Concentrated grape juice is only one of many grape byproducts.

"Mr. Hoover realized the plan bade fair to be the salvation of the grape industry, and he encouraged it personally, but advised me to ascertain first that it was entirely legal. He advised me to confer with Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, then assistant United States attorney general in charge of prohibition and tax cases.

"Mrs. Willebrandt at that time, of course, had no idea she would later become counsel for Fruit Industries, Ltd. She expressed the personal opinion that the grape industry program was entirely legal, which view the department of justice has held for 12 years."

HOME SET UP IN WEST DEFENDED BY MRS. WALLER

Denies Husband's Charge in Divorce Suit.

Howard Clark Davis, Boston financier, figured prominently in the testimony yesterday in Judge Daniel P. Trude's court of Mrs. Alice Miriam Hall Waller, estranged wife of Edward C. Waller, real estate operator and heir to the $5,000,000 estate of his father, who died recently. Mrs. Waller is suing for a divorce.

In the previous day's evidence Davis had been mentioned in depositions signed by Waller, who now resides in Miami, Fla., as the owner of the home in Coronado Beach, Cal., in which Mrs. Waller now lives with her two children. The husband charged that Davis bought the house for Mrs. Waller while he (Waller) was away on a business trip, and that Davis had a room in the house, which was to be occupied by him at any time he wished.

Wife Repudiates Statements.

Mrs. Waller, an attractive blond, stylishly garbed, indignantly repudiated the statements of her husband. Questioned by her attorney, George L. Schein, she declared that Davis was a business associate of her husband, whom she had first met in Miami Beach in 1928.

"Mr. Waller brought Mr. Davis home and introduced him to me," she said. "My husband and Mr. Davis had many dealings together."

Objections to this line of questioning were made by Attorney John R. Heath, who is seeking to have Mrs. Waller's divorce bill dismissed on the ground that she is not a resident of Illinois. Mrs. Waller charges desertion.

Proceeds with Story.

"This testimony is important," insisted Attorney Schein. "It will be shown that she is living in the California home on sufferance of Mr. Davis because her own husband won't support her."

Judge Trude overruled the objections and Mrs. Waller then pictured Davis as a close friend of the Waller family who had loaned money to Waller. She told of a railroad excursion to the north woods in a private car furnished by Davis which carried her and two other women and two servants as well as Davis.

"As for the California home," she testified, "Mr. Waller told Mr. Davis to find a place. He left it entirely up to him. My sister, my children and the servants were in the house at all times and my mother visited me for a time. Mr. Waller knew all about Mr. Davis furnishing the home and never said anything about it at the time."

Tells of Luxury Life.

In giving proof that her legal residence is in Illinois, Mrs. Waller told the story of the luxurious life led by her husband, herself and their two children up to the time in 1928 when he suffered business reverses. Waller was one of the principals in the city hall expert fee case and a suit to compel restitution of $580,000 which he received from the city in a single year is still pending. With the death of his father a few months ago Waller again became wealthy as the heir to millions.

"We were married in Rockville, Md., Oct. 3, 1923," Mrs. Waller began. "We came back to live at 2600 Lake View avenue at first. Then we visited Havana and Panama and came back to take an apartment at 191 East Walton place."

She was urged by her lawyer to describe her mode of living at that time. The Walton place apartment occupied an entire floor, she said. They had eight servants. Their summers were spent at a country house containing 22 rooms set in a 17 acre estate at Lake Geneva. The Wallers traveled much, according to her testimony, stopping for periods at Bermuda, Cape Cod, Quebec, California, Honolulu, Banff, Miami and Havana.

In October, 1928, the first noticeable rift in their marital happiness appeared, she said. She came back from a voyage to rejoin her husband in Chicago. He met her at the train and said he had tickets for California on a train which left that night. She remonstrated, she said, that the children had already traveled for many months, but he insisted that they leave.

"We stopped at the Del Coronado hotel in California," she said. "After staying only two days Mr. Waller went back to Chicago. He packed his clothes while I was out and left."

Visited in Paris Home.

The home owned by Davis was furnished her in March, 1929, she said. Her husband visited her in August and stayed till November, she testified, and then left again.

"Did you ever upbraid him for anything?" she was asked.

"I criticized him at this time for making no effort to support me," she said. "He had mortgaged the furniture for $7,500 to Mr. Davis. My expenses up to that time had been $50,000 or $60,000 a year and he suddenly stopped doing anything at all.

"When I asked him why he didn't work he said it was no use; that his creditors would only get it, anyway. He spent all his time golfing, sailing, and at the races. Finally I told him I'd have to sue for divorce and support."

Recovers Before Illness Is Known

Carole Lombard (Mrs. William Powell), who has been suffering from a nervous breakdown, reported out of danger by bulletin which gave the first information concerning her illness.

A Nervous Bandit Helps Rob Bank, and Is His Pal Sore!

Two bandits, one very nervous and the other thoroughly put out with his companion's inefficiency, held up the Oak Glen Trust and Savings bank, on Torrence avenue, near Ridge road, in Lansing, yesterday. They scraped the vault and teller's cages clean of currency and coins, spurning only the pennies, and carried off loot estimated at $5,000.

The robbers were tall and well dressed, and had the appearance of prosperous business men, bank employés told police. When they entered the bank they found William Maurer, cashier; Nicholas Dykstra, his assistant, and Paul J. Sheehan, a customer. Maurer and Dykstra, who were present last May when bandits took $8,000 from the bank, held up their hands without waiting for a command when one of the robbers pulled a sub-machine gun from beneath his topcoat.

Gunner Guards Door.

The machine gunner was a swarthy man. His companion, who was armed with a pistol, was blond. The gunner stood guard near the door. His accomplice vaulted a counter and went behind the teller's cage. The three occupants of the bank were ordered to lie down and their hands were tied with cords which the robbers carried with them.

"Where's the money?" demanded the blond bandit of Maurer. His gun shook in his hand as he spoke.

"In the drawer there," Maurer replied.

Instead of getting the cash the bandit fiddled nervously about. The machine gunner spoke up sharply.

"Open the drawer, you lug," he said. "We can't stay here all day."

The gunner joined his companion in the cage. They swept the cash into a brief case. Both stepped toward the vault, and as they did so the nervous bandit fired a shot into the floor.

Blond One Complains.

"You meat head," snapped his companion, adding some more burning epithets. "Put that gun away before you shoot yourself."

"Quit picking on me," complained the blond bandit. "I'm doing the best I can."

Maurer wriggled out of his bonds and pursued the bandits as they drove their car south in Torrence avenue. He lost them as they drove in the direction of Chicago Heights. The machine gunner, he reported, still seemed to be upbraiding his companion as the bandit car sped away.

BREAKS ENGLAND TO AUSTRALIA AIR MARK BY 7 HOURS

PORT DARWIN, Australia, April 28 [Thursday].—(AP)—C. W. A. Scott, noted flyer, landed his airplane here at 10:22 a. m. today, to recover the speed record from England to Australia, which was wrested from him last November by C. A. Butler.

Scott, who left Lympne, England, on April 19, bettered Butler's time by 7 hours and 36 minutes, Butler having made the flight in 9 days 2 hours and 29 minutes.

Scott's former record for the 13,187 miles was 9 days 4 hours and 11 minutes.

SENATE DEFEATS CHICAGO'S PLEA FOR JOBLESS AID

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 27.—[Special.]—Chicago's plea for additional relief for its unemployed—at its own expense—was rejected today by the Illinois state senate. A bill to double the $20,000,000 plan approved last February was defeated in the upper chamber of the general assembly by a vote of 21 ayes to 19 noes.

At the time that the measure, sponsored by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, was under consideration it had been accepted generally that only a bare majority of 26 votes would be required for passage in this house. But when the proceedings were over the lawyers said that a full two-thirds, or thirty-four, would be required and this ruling staggered proponents of the bill.

Talk of Quick Adjournment.

For the time being at least it led them to throw up their hands and admit that the three concurrent special sessions might as well quit business. They talked of an early morning meeting tomorrow which would finish up the necessary work now on the schedule. But less excitable heads were saying that they thought two or three days' work next week would be advisable before the sine die adjournment.

The senate practically wound up its work tonight with a multi-party gentlemen's agreement that tomorrow morning's meeting will be perfunctory and that the members of the upper house will not need to return here next week for the windup unless something unforeseen develops. The last of the Chicago bills will be acted on in the morning and they then will be sent to the house where final action is scheduled for next week, while a mere handful of senators go through the motions of keeping the upper house in session.

House Refuses to Adjourn.

Another effort was made to adjourn the lower chamber, the sine die resolution coming from Thomas Sinnett, Rock Island Democrat. It lost by a vote of 50 to 55. Similar efforts are predicted for tomorrow and the situation is considered dangerous for the balance of the Chicago program.

The house had some more tumult as it quit for the day. Representative Ralph Church's bill to impose taxes on nonintoxicating beer and wine and home brewing supplies was slaughtered by striking out of the enacting clause. The vote was 58 to 17. Veteran wets protested against sponsorship of a measure of this sort by a recent convert to their cause.

The showdown on the jobless relief program came at the close of several hours of discussion by the "elder statesmen" during which there were pictures drawn of the days of terror that will prevail in Chicago and other industrial sections before next March unless further financial aid is supplied by government.

Split on Sectional Lines.

After the talk was concluded it was conceded that sufficient preliminary work hadn't been done by those in favor of the plan, that it had been submitted here without the laying of the groundwork, but the showdown disclosed once more a drawing of the lines between Chicago and downstate.

The general theory of the relief plan is that each county, by surrendering proportionately its claim to its share in the state gasoline tax, shall repay the amount it receives for relief.

With the shouting over, the roll call stood as follows:

Nays—Baker, Cuthbertson, Dunlap, Ewing, Finn, Gunning, Hamilton, Hanna, Kline, Lantz, Lee, Mason, Michel, Monroe, Paddock, Searcy, Smith, and Wilson.

Senator Richard J. Barr changed his vote to the negative, the prevailing side, in order, he said, to move a reconsideration, if that seemed advisable later.

SUGGESTS FUND TO AID KIN OF DRYS' VICTIMS

Congressman Fred Britten of the 9th Illinois district was petitioned yesterday to seek the passage of "an act to provide for the kin of innocent citizens killed by stumbling or careless dry agents." The petitioner was Col. Ira L. Reeves, regional manager of the Crusaders, an organization opposed to prohibition.

The recent appropriation by the government of $5,000 for Mrs. Selma Virkkuia, widow of an innocent victim of prohibition agents' carelessness at International Falls, Minn., in 1929, was responsible for the petition. Col. Reeves said that in many other instances where government agents had "killed the wrong person" in attempting prohibition enforcement the families of the dead were without means to make a fight in congress for compensation. He suggested that a fund be created for this purpose, to be administered by a sympathetic bureau.

U. OF C. FRESHMEN RATED FOURTH IN U. S. COLLEGE TEST

Freshmen who entered the University of Chicago under the school's new plan of education were the brightest group of beginning college students in the middle west and the fourth brightest in the country. This was disclosed in a rating released yesterday in The Education Record, journal of the American Council on Education in Washington.

Under direction of the council identical psychological tests for scholastic aptitude were given to 41,369 freshmen entering 152 colleges last fall. The tests are said to have value in predicting the success of students in their college studies.

The average score for the entire group was 147.37. The average of 687 University of Chicago freshmen was 202.21. Haverford college of Haverford, Pa., had freshmen with an average of 241.67 to lead the country.

WALKS FOR 21 HOURS AND BEATS DEATH FROM DRUG

Wears Out Attending Hospital Prodders.

New York, April 27.—[Special.]—Howard Edwards, 30, of Newark, was sleeping in Newark city hospital tonight after having walked almost continuously for 21 hours to escape the fatal effects of an overdose of veronal he took as a sleeping potion last night.

Edwards was taken to the hospital at 11:30 p. m. when his mother found him acting queerly. Doctors roused him sufficiently to learn of his taking the drug—seven tablets of it—and decided that his only chance for life was to fight off its effects by keeping in constant motion.

Orderlies were instructed to keep Edwards moving and there began a marathon through the corridors and about the grounds of the hospital. The pace wore out his companions and they went to bed, to be succeeded by fresh men. As the march wore on through last night and today the orderlies had to pinch and prod Edwards as he faltered in the drug's grip, for sleep might have been eternal.

Late this afternoon Edwards was allowed a few minutes in bed, but the physicians were not satisfied and he was again ordered up and on the go. Finally, at 9:30 tonight, Edwards was examined again and found to be out of danger. The drug defeated, he is now in the sleep of pure fatigue.

MEMBERS OF COUNTY BOARD EXPECT NEW RELIEF BILL DRIVE

Although it received word at its meeting yesterday that the state senate had defeated the proposed $20,000,000 unemployment relief bond issue, the county board passed a resolution offered by Commissioner Peter M. Kelly, indorsing the proposal. It was explained that the board members expect the drive to pass the relief bonds to be revived when the bill comes up in the house.

The board will also ask the legislature to authorize Cook county to issue, without a referendum, $1,500,000 in poor relief bonds. These bonds would be used to meet poor relief expenditures made by the county prior to Feb. 6, when the legislature authorized the first state unemployment relief project.

Attorney General Carlstrom has held that the present $18,750,000 state unemployment relief fund cannot be used to meet obligations incurred by counties prior to its passage. It is doubtful whether the county could find a market for its bonds at present, but the commissioners believe that some of the county creditors who furnished the food, fuel, and other relief materials would accept the bonds.

HOOVER WARNS IT'S CUT TAXES OR POORHOUSE

Blames State and Local Extravagance.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Richmond, Va., April 27.—[Special.]—President Hoover today warned the state executives attending the governors' conference that continuance of the wave of extravagance that had characterized state, local and federal expenditures in recent years will drive the nation into the poorhouse.

Appearing before the governors' conference for the first time during his presidency, Mr. Hoover urged the most drastic cuts in local, state and federal expenditures, asserting that there can be no economic recovery from the depression until government costs are slashed, budgets balanced and tax burdens equalized. The President urged that federal, state and local governments coöperate in adjusting tax burdens and in making the total tax burden lighter for all citizens.

Taxes 20 Per Cent of Income.

To back up his criticisms of governmental extravagance, the President produced figures showing that the cost of state, local and federal governments now represented 20 per cent of the national income, whereas only 8 per cent had been needed for that purpose before the war. The surest way to put the nation back on the road to prosperity, Mr. Hoover said, is to arrange a program whereby all budgets will be balanced, the cost of conduct of government reduced, expenditures on "costly" government ventures in the business field cut down and a better distributed taxation arranged.

"Before the war," said Mr. Hoover, "theoretically every man worked twenty-five days a year for the national, state and local governments combined. In 1924 he worked forty-si.. days a year. Today he works for the support of all forms of government sixty-one days out of the year. Continued progress on this road is the way to national impoverishment.

Necessary to Reduce.

"We cannot," he continued, "restore economic stability in the nation by continuing to siphon so large a part of private effort into the coffers of the government. Its abstraction from the people stifles the productivity, the consumption, and the recovery of employment. Thus a dominant national necessity is to reduce the expenditure of all our governments."

Arriving at the historic old capital of the confederacy shortly before 2 o'clock, President Hoover was met at the station by Gov. John Garland Pollard and a company of the Richmond Blues. He was escorted, to the accompaniment of booming howitzers, to the flag draped compact auditorium in the John Marshall hotel where the governors were assembled.

Silence During Plea.

The streets around the station were packed, but most of the journey was made through beautifully green, but empty streets. A wave of applause greeted the President as he entered the auditorium and another marked the completion of his address. During the time the President was delivering his plea for economy, absolute silence filled the room. Two nationally known Democrats, either of whom may oppose him in the presidential elections this fall, listened to the President's address from a front seat position and both rose to shake hands with Mr. Hoover when he stepped down from the flower decked speaking platform. One was the tall Franklin D. Roosevelt, governor of New York; the other was Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland.

Roosevelt shook hands vigorously with the President, remarking that it was "a good speech." Ritchie simply smiled. Before more than a half dozen governors could shake his hand, the President hurried from the room and boarded his train.

Political Tinge Seen.

While the Hoover address was heralded as nonpolitical, his subject as well as the presence of Roosevelt and Ritchie in the audience gave his appearance a strong political tinge. The President's action in charging that state and local governments were largely responsible for the big increase in government costs as well as his appeal to the farmer vote with the statement that the farmer badly needed tax relief added to the political flavor of the gathering.

The President blamed the state and local governments for the biggest increases in the cost of government. He produced figures purporting to show that, excluding war costs, state and local expenditures had increased twice as fast as federal expenditures since the war.

The figures he quoted set forth the tremendous increase in expenditures and bonded debt of federal, state, and local governments in the post-war period as contrasted with the year 1931. In that year the total for the three divisions was: Expenditures, 2 billion 900 million dollars; indebtedness, 4 billion 800 million. In 1924 expenditures had increased to 10 billion 900 million and bonded indebtedness to 30 billion 400 million. For 1930 the figures were: Expenditures, 13 billion 200 million, and bonded indebtedness 30 billion 600 million dollars.

All "Struggling to Reduce."

President Hoover said as he rose to speak, "I am glad to accept your invitation to meet with the chief executives of the states. We are alike facing great emergency problems of government. We are confronted with maintaining the financial integrity of the government, state, federal, county, and municipal.

"The economic safety of the republic depends upon the joint financial stability of all our governments. That stability of the nation is to be attained not alone by the financial stability of the federal government. It lies equally in the financial integrity of every state, county, and municipal government. As executives we are charged under our constitutions with the duty to recommend methods and measures to our legislatures to these ends. I know of no more difficult task. Yet the foundations of recovery of business, of employment, and of agriculture depend upon the success of our efforts and the efforts of our legislators."

The President began to warm up as he began his explanation of the increased cost of government.

Blames Local Units.

"Outside of the war influence," he said, "our greatest increase in costs of government lie in local and municipal agencies." Not a sign came from the audience of governors to disclose what they thought of this attempt to shoulder the major blame for increased tax on the local governments.

"In all our governments," continued the President, "however, federal, state, and local enlargement of expenditure and of debts has been caused in part by the increase in population, the rise in commodity prices and wages; by the improvement and new building of roads, streets, waterways, and airways, imposed on us through the development of the internal combustion engine, and by the growing sense of social obligation to improve education and to enlarge activities in behalf of welfare and relief.

"In addition, I regret to say, increase of government expenditure and of debt has been caused by sectional and group demands and by a large expansion of national, state, and local ventures into business, most of which we perform in a most costly manner.

Cost Steadily Mounts.

"Today we are clearly absorbing too great a portion of the national income for the conduct of our various branches of government. Using the most reliable figures available, it appears that before the war the total cost of our national, state, and local governments represented only about 8 per cent of our national income. In boom times, when we might hope that the national income would increase more rapidly than the cost of government, nevertheless the cost of government actually increased to such an extent that it represented approximately 15 per cent of the national income, of which less than 3 per cent was directly due to the war. Today, with the falling off of business, the aggregate expenditures of national, state and local governments probably represent more than 20 per cent of the national income.

"Before the war theoretically, every man worked 25 days a year for the national, state, and local governments combined. In 1924 he worked 46 days a year. Today he works for the support of all forms of government 61 days out of a year. Continued progress on this road is the way to national impoverishment.

"Some of the expenditures in government can be reduced by postponement of less urgent matters; some by permanent elimination or curtailment of functions and activities which have been created over the last fifty years in response to the desire for expanded service by the community. These expanded services are, some, obsolete, but many of them meritorious. But every executive is confronted by the fact that they are established by law and can only be reduced by authority of new legislation."

The President dwelt for a few moments on the difficulties of effecting economies and urged that the taxpayer, as well as the state and local authorities, coöperate to eliminate the dead wood. He made no mention of the administration objections registered to the senate's 10 per cent arbitrary cuts in appropriation bills.

Taking up the question of taxation, the President said this problem confronts the nation in four phases.

He said the country needed ultimate reduction of taxes, elimination of the duplication between state, local and federal taxation, new forms of taxation for the present emergency and reorganization of the tax basis so as to secure a more just distribution of the tax burden as between the various groups of taxpayers. Discussing the federal, state and local scramble to obtain new revenue, the President said:

"As a result of the decreased income all of our governments, national, state, and municipal, are frantically searched for new sources of taxation. In this process we are too often duplicating taxes upon the same source. No matter how we disguise it with names such as 'excise,' 'luxury,' or 'sales,' the result is the same—the national, state, and municipal governments are competing with each other for revenue from business activities.

"We are all seeking further revenue from income and estate taxes. While the national government imposes no direct taxes on real property, the state and local governments are all pressing upon each other in taxing it. This same real estate indirectly bears in part the taxation which the federal government lays on profit and income. It all reflects in the rent. All these cross purposes contribute to economic duress.

All Constitute a Burden.

"The many provisions of multiple taxation may vary so much that a taxpayer coming under several jurisdictions may find himself paying a wholly unreasonable amount for the support of the government. The tax levies of the various taxing authorities all constitute a burden on the national income, and, in times of depression, when the relative weight of that burden is increased, lack of coördination in the system becomes a matter of prime importance.

"One of the taxes which is responsible for a disproportionate part of the hardship of our present tax system is the general property tax. While the national government imposes no such tax, the state and local governments rely heavily on it for revenue. The taxes upon real property are the easiest to enforce and are the least flexible of all taxes. The tendency under pressure of need to continue these taxes unchanged in times of depression, despite the decrease in the owners' income, places undue drag upon that segment of the community in which real estate is the chief property item.

"With a view to making a suggestion that may be timely to this subject—that is, the conflict between methods of taxation in different segments of government and consideration of the whole question of distribution of the burden of taxation—it seems to me urgent that we should, all of us, through our financial officers give renewed examination to this subject in the light of conditions today and by exchanges between them consider the possibilities of the whole problem of better coördination, greater simplicity, and, above all, better adjustment of the burdens among our people.

"Gentlemen, the purpose of my address is to express a desire for greater coöperation and coördination of our mutual problems. Just as you are meeting here today to develop helpful action out of common experience, I take the liberty of suggesting to you that similar conferences and examination of problems by the executives of your local governments in each state would be productive of useful results. It would help toward a realization that local expenditures and taxes are a part of a great national problem in stability as well as one of local concern. It would contribute to their resolution to bring about constructive economy and coöperation.

Urges Support of People.

"We, as executives, all agree upon the absolute necessity in the interest of the nation as a whole of reduced expenditures, of better distributed taxation, of balanced budgets. Our town councils, our county commissions, our state legislatures, and the congress agree upon these fundamentals. That is the sure highway toward national recovery. But to accomplish these things we must have the intelligent support of the people themselves, that selfish vested interest and vested habit do not, by their organized sectional and group oppositions or individual action, defeat these high purposes."

In closing, President Hoover urged the governors as well as the public to cut the costs of governments. His final word to the governors was that the duty of balancing budgets, reducing government costs was "inexorable and its discharge rests inescapably upon all public officers."

"Its final results," he said, "will rebound to the general public benefit. Therefore I say to the public: Be patient, be helpful, recognize the complexity and the difficulty of the problem before these servants of your combined public interest. Support them in their task, for upon its successful conclusion depends a most momentous contribution to our security, our hope of an early return to stability, and the common welfare of every man, woman and child in our nation."

FIGURES ON GROWING COST OF GOVERNMENT QUOTED BY PRESIDENT

Washington, D. C., April 27.—[Special.]—During his address before the governors' conference President Hoover, in Richmond, Va., today quoted from a table of figures showing how the cost of government has increased during the last twenty years.

"For purposes of illustration," said the President, "I have taken the year 1913 as the last year to reflect pre-war conditions, the year 1924 as far enough removed from the actual war years to fairly indicate the trend, and 1930 as the last year for which figures are available. Expenditures including debt retirement from surplus were approximately as follows:

	1913.	1924.	1930.
Federal..	$ 700,000	$ 4,100,000	$ 4,200,000
State ...	400,000	1,400,000	2,300,000
Local ..	1,800,000	5,400,000	7,500,000
Total.	$2,900,000	$10,900,000	$13,200,000

"Our outstanding debt was approximately:

[Last three ciphers omitted.]

Federal..	$1,000,000	$21,300,000	$16,200,000
State ...	300,000	1,100,000	1,800,000
Local ..	3,500,000	8,000,000	12,600,000
Total.	$4,800,000	$30,400,000	$30,600,000

"The causes which have led to this extraordinary increase in expenditures and debts are familiar," the President continued. "They include the burden on the federal government imposed by the war. This accounts for nearly 2 billion dollars of annual expenditures and for most of the increase in the debt. You will observe that outside of the war influence our greatest increase in costs of government lie in local and municipal agencies."

starting out to save $67,000,000 by pay cuts, instead of cutting pay "sensibly" and taking whatever the saving might be.

Representative Britten, in presenting his substitute raising the exemption to $2,500 argued that while the need for government economy is imperative, it should be remembered that the "house holds in its hands the destiny and happiness of hundreds of thousansd of government employés." He regarded the committee pay cut proposal the product of "economy hysteria."

"We are taking the bill by the wrong end," he shouted as the membership and the galleries broke into laughter.

Proposes Tax on Beer.

And when the merriment had subsided he added, to the further enjoyment of the galleries, that congress instead of taxing business out of business ought to tax a business into business by placing a tax on beer.

Chairman McDuffie of the economy committee opposed the O'Connor and Britten amendments on the ground that a 12 or 14 million dollar saving out of an annual federal pay roll of more than a billion dollars was "ridiculous and picayunish."

He pleaded with his colleagues not to let "propaganda and newspaper stories printed in the papers in Washington stampede you out of your duty to the taxpayers of the country." Such a course, he warned, would make the house "the laughing stock of the country."

Beer Tax Again Advanced.

Beer had another moment in the debate when Representative John Schafer [Rep., Wis.] quoted the secretary of the treasury to the effect that 1919 revenue from the beer tax was more than 400 million dollars, and asserted that a tax on beer now would obviate the necessity of pay cuts of any kind.

The Britten substitute prevailed by a vote of 173 to 148, and then the O'Connor amendment, as modified by the Britten substitute was approved, 185 to 93.

Just before the house got down to consideration of the economy bill, it defeated a proposal to reduce the salaries of senators and congressmen from $10,000 to $9,000. The vote was 150 to 158. The leaders of the victorious opposition to this reduction pleaded that the cutting of congressional salaries should be dealt with when the house reaches the general pay cut provision of the economy bill.

The house was operating in committee of the whole, wherefore there was no record vote. On the vote by tellers the Illinois members present lined up as follows:

For the $1,000 reduction—Chindblom, Reid, Hall, Buckbee, Chiperfield, Yates, Britten, and Adkins, all Republicans.

Against the $1,000 reduction—M. D. Hull and Holaday, Republicans; Keller, Sabath, Beam, Kelley, Dietrich, and Schuetz, Democrats.

The party lineup was 99 Republicans and 51 Democrats for the reduction and 47 Republicans and 111 Democrats against it.

In Parliamentary Tangle.

During consideration of the special rule the house became almost hopelessly entangled in the morass of parliamentary law. The rule limited the amendments that would be in order to forty. The opposition wanted an unlimited right to amend the bill.

Chairman Edward W. Pou [Dem., Ala.] of the rules committee struck the keynote for house leaders during debate on the adoption of the rule, when he told the membership that they were at the most important moment in the history of the house.

"I have seen the cost of government rising without any attempt to halt it. The hour has struck when we must do something to reduce the expenditures of the government. For God's sake let us not permit word to go to the country that we have voted down at the very outset a plan to save two hundred million dollars."

He was supported by Representative Bertrand H. Snell [Rep., N. Y.], leader of the minority, but the rule limiting amendments was defeated.

HOOVER NOW HAS MAJORITY OF 1,154 G. O. P. DELEGATES

Washington, D. C., April 27.—[Special.]—As a result of the Pennsylvania and Massachusetts primaries yesterday President Hoover now has a majority of the 1,154 delegates of the Republican national convention pledged to his renomination. This assures his renomination as only a simple majority is required for the choice in the Republican convention.

The Massachusetts and Pennsylvania delegations will be solid for Mr. Hoover, who also has won an overwhelming majority of the delegates elected in primaries previously held.

The delegates so far elected in the primaries in northern states, together with the hand picked delegates in the southern states, where the Republican party exists only on paper and is controlled by the administration, make up the majority for the renomination of the President.

"Young People have no monopoly on brilliant sound teeth"

Say many who started to protect their teeth properly years and years ago

Men and women, happy in the possession of sound teeth, will freely admit as a rule that they started to safeguard them years before.

It is known that half the adult teeth lost are due to pyorrhea. It is also known that four people out of five past the age of forty are likely to have this fearful trouble with their gums. Still more important is the fact that pyorrhea may be working five years, ten years, even longer, before it is ever seen or felt. The moral of this is: don't wait for danger signals.

Remember: you can't "fool around" with pyorrhea. You simply must have professional dental advice about twice a year and when you take up seriously the home treatment of your teeth, it will pay to use a toothpaste invented by a dentist. Dr. R. J. Forhan devoted a lifetime to pyorrhea treatment. His professional formula is used by thousands of dentists and his home formula is embodied in Forhan's Toothpaste. It's the finest toothpaste money can buy, with an extra-protection feature in its special formula. Don't let pyorrhea get started. Use prevention. Use Forhan's. Use it twice a day—old and young. It's never too early to start the children on Forhan's, the double-duty toothpaste, at all drug stores.

MILLS DUBS FIAT MONEY IN BONUS PLAN DISHONEST

Sure to Halt Recovery, He Insists.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 27.—[Special.]—Proposals to pay the veterans' bonus certificates by issuing $2,400,000,000 worth of fiat money are proposals to "pay an obligation not due in money that is not honest," Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills told the house ways and means committee today.

OGDEN L. MILLS. [A. P. Photo.]

The essential element in working out of the depression, he said, is confidence.

"Destroy confidence and you dry up credit and paralyze enterprise," he proclaimed.

"And no measure was ever drafted better calculated to destroy confidence than the one now before you. Enact it into law and you will stifle all hope of an early economic recovery and write the most lamentable chapter in American financial history."

Gov. Eugene Meyer of the federal reserve board appeared with the secretary of the treasury before the committee. As heavy howitzers for the administration, they laid down a solid barrage of objection to the advance of bonus legislation.

Warns of Great Danger.

Reminding the committee that one-fourth of the government's annual outgo of more than four billions is for the veterans' benefit and reminding them also that veterans as a class are suffering no more than any other group of individuals, Secretary Mills asserted that to issue the billions of greenbacks necessary to pay the bonus in full would undo all the remedial work that has been undertaken.

It would destroy confidence and revive fear, he said, at the very time when confidence is beginning to come out of hiding and fear to retreat.

"To select this particular moment to destroy our hopes of a balanced budget and to deal a smashing blow to national confidence, is to me," Mr. Mills declared, "simply incomprehensible."

Knowing that the huge cost cannot be met by legitimate means—by taxation or bond issue—the proponents of bonus payment, said the secretary, do not seek payment in "honest dollars," but "by setting the printing presses to work to print dishonest dollars."

Practice of Dishonest Sovereigns.

"This device," he went on, "is the direct descendant of the practices of dishonest and unscrupulous princes and sovereigns, who robbed and defrauded their subjects by debasing their currency.

"There is no reason that I can conceive of to justify the government of the United States resorting to the printing press to meet its obligations. This is a question that transcends in importance the payment at face value today of adjusted service certificates, or of their nonpayment.

"It involves the courage, the character, and the financial integrity of the United States. I can imagine a poor, bankrupt people, at the end of their resources and as a last act of desperation, resorting to the debasement of their currency. But, for a great, powerful nation, probably the strongest nation economically, not only in the world today, but that has ever existed in the world, that even in a period of deep depression has not begun to call upon its ultimate reserves and resources, deliberately to adopt this insidious and essentially dishonest device, would, to my mind be worse than an act of financial bankruptcy. It would constitute moral bankruptcy.

"If running the printing presses is right to pay off the bonus, why would it not be right to meet all government expenses, he demanded. Why bother with a revenue bill or with bond issues?

"All we have to do, according to the gentlemen who urge the passage of this measure, is to buy the paper and the ink and tell the engravers and printers to go to it," he declared. "Under these ideal conditions, you can, of course, make some savings. You do not need a secretary of the treasury or a large staff in the treasury department. All you need is a first class production manager. Ultimately, of course, you will need quite a sales force to keep your currency in circulation. That may sound funny, but in the course of the last decade in several countries that I could mention, bales of currency have been peddled on the streets."

There is no shortage of currency—the shortage is in credit, Secretary Mills replied to questions from Democratic committee members.

Free Gold Supply Limited.

The treasury, the secretary told the committee, has only 13 millions of free gold with which to support further treasury issues of currency. The federal reserve gold, he reminded them, belongs to the federal reserve system and not to the treasury.

"Good heavens!" he burst out in a final plea, "don't come along and destroy everything we've done. Don't paralyze the country with a new fear."

Gov. Meyer, who was unable to conclude his testimony and will reappear tomorrow, said that "the people of the world have more confidence in the United States today than they have in themselves or in any other country."

"Tinkering with the currency," he declared, "is the surest way to destroy that confidence."

ENDS DISROBING ACT

Sentenced to Jail

Miss Lucille Strong, 27 years old, who was arrested on Tuesday night for stealing a fur coat, was fined $10 and sentenced to ten days in the Bridewell yesterday by Municipal Judge Harold P. O'Connell. In her cell at the detective bureau Miss Strong disrobed and refused to dress again until a few moments before she was taken to court. She was charged with taking a coat from the store of Albert Cohen, 3020 South State street.

SENATORS RAISE TAX ON INCOMES IN REVENUE BILL

Balances Loss by Other Rejected Excises.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 27.—[Special.]—Both individual and corporate income tax rates in the pending new tax bill were boosted today by the senate finance committee in order to balance the revenue lost by striking out two items which the committee considered inequitable.

These were the house provisions making income from corporation dividends subject to the normal tax, and placing a 1½ per cent penalty on the filing of a consolidated return by affiliated corporations. Striking out the former means an estimated loss of 89 millions in revenue, the elimination of the latter means a loss of a probable 8 million 400 thousand.

In their effort to balance these losses, the committee voted, 16 to 1, to increase the normal tax rate to 3, 6 and 9 per cent, as against the present 1½, 3 and 5 per cent, and the house bill's 2, 4 and 7. The 3 per cent will apply to the first $4,000 of net income, the 6 per cent to the next $4,000, and the 9 per cent to all over $8,000. The higher rates, it is expected, will yield an additional 29 millions.

Surtaxes Also Increased.

By the same majority, the committee voted to increase surtaxes on incomes of more than $150,000, making the maximum 45 per cent on all net income over one million dollars. The house provided a flat 40 per cent rate on net income over $100,000. This change, the committee said, would bring in another four million.

As a third means of raising more money, the committee increased the corporations tax rate from 13½ per cent, as voted by the house, to 14 per cent. The present rate is 12 per cent. It is expected that between 8 and 10 millions will be realized through this change.

Senator Harrison [Dem., Miss.] led the movement which resulted in the higher normal and surtax rates. The sole opponent was Senator Cousens [Rep., Mich.], who wanted to return to the wartime rates, with their maximum surtax of 65 per cent.

New Surtax Brackets.

The new surtax brackets will be as follows:

Net income.		Rate. [Per cent.]
$100,000 to $	150,000	40
150,000 to	250,000	41
250,000 to	500,000	42
500,000 to	750,000	43
750,000 to	1,000,000	44
Over $1,000,000		45

The committee struck out the house provision subjecting corporation dividends to the normal income tax, exempted actual reserves of life insurance companies, voted a 2 cent tax on bank checks of $5 or more and made the tax on lubricating oils of all grades 2 cents a gallon. Veterans' benefits and the salaries of the President and federal judges were made subject to the income tax.

The committee accepted the house provision on capital gains and losses.

DEFINITE PROGRESS LACKING IN SEARCH FOR LINDBERGH BABY

JOHN H. CURTIS.

New York, April 27.—[Special.]—The kidnaped son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was still missing today, and official information was that no progress had been made toward his recovery.

From Norfolk, however, there came an apparently optimistic statement from John H. Curtis, who, with Rear Admiral Guy H Burrage, retired, and Dean H. Dobson Peacock, has been trying for weeks to bring about the return of the child. Mr. Curtis, returning from what was presumed to be an attempted sea rendezvous with the kidnapers, said the negotiators had "overcome a number of obstacles," but would not amplify that statement.

discussed the matter with Mr. Rassmussen, but that nothing was done about it. She continued to visit Serritell four or five times every month, each time taking tickets. Prosecutor Keele led her along until she discussed a visit just before Christmas, 1929.

Q.—What was said on that occasion? A.—Mr. Serritella told me that Mr. Mintz usually gave him a wagonload of groceries which he donated to charity at Christmas time, and he wanted us to do the same thing. He said his secretary, who was there at the time, would make up a list for me.

Q.—Did you get the list? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was any donation made? A.—Not to my knowledge.

Q.—Did you go back after Christmas? A.—Yes, four or five times a month.

Asked About Money, She Says.

Q.—What did Serritella say? A.—He wanted to know when he was going to get money. I always said I didn't know anything about that.

Q.—Did you hear from Serritella before Christmas of 1930? A.—Yes, he called me up and asked me to meet him at the Bismarck hotel lobby. I went there and he gave me a list and said he expected the company to donate it. I told him the amounts were exorbitant and that I didn't know what they'd do.

Q.—Did he inquire about it later? A.—Yes, he asked me if we were going to make the donation. I said I didn't think so and he said we'd better do it if we expected to remain friends with him.

On cross-examination by Defense Attorney Miles Devine, Miss Hoffman was asked if she knew the donations were going for charity.

"Yes, for the poor," she said.

"That was commendable, was it not?" Devine asked.

"Yes, except that he asked such large amounts."

The Testimony of Conner.

The first witness, Conner, who testified he had worked with other wholesale grocery houses before entering the employ of the Kroger-Consumers company, told of going to Serritella's office late in 1930 with a number of short weight tickets. He was questioned by Prosecutor Keele.

Q.—Who did you see there? A.—Mr. Hochstein.

Q.—What did he say? A.—I talked to him about the violation, and he said Mr. Serritella had been at considerable expense in his campaign, having recently been elected to the senate; that he was short of funds but wanted to keep his usual custom of sending Christmas baskets to the poor of his neighborhood.

Q.—Did he say what he wanted you to do? A.—Yes, he said we ought to give four or five hundred baskets. I said we were not prepared to do that, and then Hochstein said we could give some money.

Check Refused, Witness Says.

Q.—What did you say to that? A.—I said that's out of the question. He said "Well, we don't want you to hurt yourself." I said "How much do you want?" He said "Two hundred dollars." I said "Would a check be all right?" He said "No check." I said I'd report the request to my superiors.

Q.—What did he say he would be able to do for you? A.—He said "If you'll make this contribution it'll be unnecessary for you to come down to this office on the tickets." He'd have the case which was in court continued and eventually fixed.

Q.—Did you go back after that? A.—Yes, on Dec. 27, 1930. Hochstein called me up and requested me to come. When I got there he asked me if I had it. I said I had. He said Mr. Serritella was out of the office, but was expected in a few minutes. In about 15 minutes Serritella came in.

Hands Over the Money.

Q.—What did you do? A.—I took an envelope out of my pocket containing money, and said "Here it is," and handed it to Mr. Serritella, who handed it to Hochstein, who put it in his pocket. Serritella said "Thank you."

Q.—How much money was in the envelope? A.—Two hundred dollars.

Q.—Was anything else said on that occasion? A.—They said Merry Christmas and happy New Year, and I left.

Q.—When was the next time you visited there? A.—Late February or early March of 1931. I had several tickets.

Q.—What was said? A.—Mr. Hochstein said we ought to make a contribution to the campaign. I said I thought we did enough. He said, "We want you to do something, but not to hurt yourself." I asked him how much he wanted and he said $50 would be all right.

He Returns with the $50.

Q.—What did you say then? A.—I told him I thought we had done enough, but that I would take it up with my superiors.

Q.—Did you go back again? A.—Yes, in a day or two. I was directed to Morris Eller's office on the first floor. I saw Hochstein, and he waved to me to come in. He took me down a stairway to a sort of vault, and then he asked me if I had it. I said yes. I handed him an envelope with $50.

On cross-examination Defense Attorney Benedict J. Short tried to get Conner to admit that the $200 donation was a voluntary contribution to charity.

"I didn't look at it that way," Conner said.

Q.—Well, you were expecting favors for your company, then, weren't you? A.—No, we wanted just treatment. We expected them to cease unfair tactics.

In his opening statement to the jury Prosecutor Keele declared he would prove that many grocery stores and meat markets were called upon by Serritella to donate goods toward Serritella's Christmas baskets.

Keele said he would show that a shipment of ducks was given by one concern, and that Hochstein informed a deputy sealer to "save them for Phil D'Andrea." D'Andrea, bodyguard for Al Capone, was jailed during Capone's income tax trial for carrying firearms into the federal court of Judge James H. Wilkerson.

BRITISH EMPIRE PACKERS STRIKE AT CHICAGO MEAT

Ask Tariff Scheme to Shut Out Exports.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 27.—The scheme which the meat packing interests of the British dominions will present to the imperial conference at Ottawa in July was uncovered here today. It is empire preference with a vengeance. It aims at complete exclusion of all foreign meat imports from the United Kingdom and, if adopted, will deal a severe blow to Chicago's vast packing interests.

The organization of the scheme has gone far enough to secure the support of all big meat producers in the empire. The world has been cut up like the famous British meat pie. The dominions each get a slice. The United States, Denmark, Argentina, and other big exporters of meat to Britain will get none.

Signatures to a petition have been obtained from the biggest dominion producers, it has been learned, who have agreed to supply the British isles as follows: Australia, beef; New Zealand, mutton and lamb; Canada, pork.

Plan Three Rates of Tariff.

A copy of a "strictly private and confidential" document volunteering to assist in the applying of a tariff on beef was placed in the hands of the government with full details as to rates. The full empire tariff on beef, mutton, lamb, pork, veal, bacon, and hams will be placed at about 1 cent a pound, but all would be free under the proposed empire preferential tariff. The full foreign tariff would be fixed at three times the full empire tariff with a preferential clause on foreign meats, which would fix a duty of approximately 1½ cents a pound.

Such a tariff, it is estimated, would have netted $74,000,000 under the full rate on foreign meat imports in 1931 and approximately $42,000,000 under the foreign preferential rate.

Three-fourths of American ham exports are sent to Britain. The figures for 1931 were reduced nearly half chiefly because Great Britain was off the gold standard part of the year. But American ham exports to Britain last year were still valued at $10,241,000, against a total for the world of $13,069,000. The 1930 American ham exports reached $19,268,000, against an aggregate for all countries of $23,700,000.

Britain is also the United States' biggest consumer of bacon. Exports of bacon last year totaled $2,228,000, more than all other countries combined.

Altogether American meat sold abroad in 1931 was valued at $35,653,000. This trade is threatened seriously because in each classification of meat exports the United Kingdom is America's biggest customer.

Plan to Regulate Prices.

Danish bacon exporters and beef exporters of Argentina will also be hit hard. Denmark's exports of bacon to Great Britain last year were valued at around $85,000,000, and Argentina's frozen beef at $120,000,000.

The scheme provides for a government bureau to prevent fluctuations in supply so as to regulate prices under a semi-quota plan such as was recently applied to wheat.

POLICE GUARD HOME OF STATE WITNESS IN SERRITELLA TRIAL

A police guard was placed last night at the home of Louis M. Conner, 7847 Paxton avenue, one of the state witnesses in the trial of Dan Serritella and Harry Hochstein, following the receipt of two telephone calls which he interpreted as threats.

The first call was made by a woman at 7 o'clock shortly after Conner returned home from court where he testified as one of the day's two prosecuting witnesses. The woman hung up after ascertaining the home she had called was Conner's. Fifteen minutes later a man called, swore at Conner and, like the woman, hung up abruptly.

Conner told Grand Crossing police that the import of the man's tirade was a threat, although no explicit threat was made. At his request one patrolman was assigned to guard his home.

Play Benefit for Hungry Children to Be Repeated

The Illinois Women's Athletic club tonight will repeat its benefit performance for the Hungry School Children's fund at the clubhouse, 111 East Pearson street. More than 300 persons attended the show last night. The Barnum players gave three plays, "To the Ladies," "Rain," and "Poor Madelena." The performance was directed by Mrs. Beulah Buck Fogelman. Assisting were members of the staff of radio station W-G-N, including Henry Moeller and Hal Gillis, known as "Herr Louie and the Weasel," and Dick Hayes, baritone. Pierre Andre of W-G-N will act as master of ceremonies at this evening's performance.

DISARM HOPES FADE; STIMSON COMING HOME

Britain Hints She May Increase Navy.

son and MacDonald saw each other after the Tardieu flight had become known, but there is no reason to believe that references to the escalator caluse surprised the American secretary.

Speaking of Britain's naval limitations efforts, the spokesman stressed that a new conference will be called in 1935 when there will be reductions only if the state of mind of the nations at that time permits.

Naval experts contend the French and Italian tonnage of auxiliary ships, on which they are concentrating their efforts, already have smashed the two power standard. Britain has 664,000 tons. The French have built or are building to reach 468,527, and the Italians 209,201, which puts them on paper, 100,000 tons over the British. All British attempts to get Paris to renew negotiations with Rome met with flat failure.

Work to Classify Weapons.

The Downing street spokesman, who as such made his bow at Geneva, said decisions had to be reached at Lausanne, and with good faith and common sense they would be.

The Japanese did not miss the portent of the Briton's remarks, with an eye to the future naval relations of America and Japan.

While the statesmen registered defeat, the technical commission manfully went ahead in its efforts to define offensive and defensive weapons. Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn, U. S. N., attacked the conception of capital ships and aircraft carriers as strictly offensive, although he agreed that submarines might be so considered.

Tardieu's Sore Throat Lets Him Escape from Disarm Showdown

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 27.—An open break in the disarmament conference is believed here to be indicated by the sore throat which is preventing Premier Andre Tardieu from carrying out his original intention of returning to Geneva at the end of the week.

It is understood that the premier told American Ambassador Walter E. Edge this afternoon that he does not expect to see Secretary of State Stimson again, as the American secretary is scheduled to leave for home by the Mediterranean route before Tardieu goes back to Geneva.

Press Gloats Over Stimson Defeat.

The semi-official press tonight expressed indignation over the Anglo-American maneuver against the French. The conservative Journal des Debats, with seeming callousness about the premier's health, gloated over the frustration of Stimson's plan to bring Tardieu and Chancellor Heinrich Bruening of Germany together in the hope of forcing them into mutual concessions and break the conference deadlock.

Tardieu evidently feared he would be high-pressured into giving away something and decided that his sore throat, which he has hitherto disregarded, had to be nursed.

The premier, in a telegram to Joseph Paul-Boncour, French league of nations delegate, asking him to break the news to Stimson, Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain, Bruening, and Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, asserted his "doctor prescribed absolute rest and silence until further notice." But Tardieu was feeling well enough to receive Ambassador Edge at his home this afternoon and sign a convention abolishing double taxation on American firms with subsidiaries in France.

Tardieu Poses for Pictures.

The premier was a little hoarse, but he didn't look as if he were in danger, and he posed with good grace for many press photographs.

The doctor who called this morning told Tardieu he is suffering from laryngitis, which threatens to become serious. In consequence, Tardieu will not deliver a political address tomorrow with which he has been planning to wind up his election campaign.

The patient was officially stated to be feverish, but whether the temperature was due to laryngitis or to a symptom known as "Stimson reaction" was not stated.

"ASTRING-O-SOL has become a favorite in my home, mainly on account of the children. Any mother who has gone to battle day after day with her children on account of distasteful gargles and mouth-washes will end her troubles as I did by using Astring-o-sol.

"My doctor advised that the children be protected by a daily gargle and spray with an antiseptic solution. I began by using any solution — and the battle was on. My otherwise obedient children became a howling, kicking team. By the time I had them off to school I was completely exhausted.

"I finally appealed to my physician, who suggested Astring-o-sol, explaining that besides having powerful and lasting germicidal effects, it would be pleasant and the children would welcome it.

"He was right. I had made the mistake in the beginning of using any solution. What a pleasure the gargling and spraying process became when I introduced Astring-o-sol! We came safely through the winter with no colds or sore throats."

The above letter, word for word, is in the files of Frederick Stearns & Company, Detroit, Michigan. Here is a mouth-wash which, besides being pleasant to taste, is germicidal, antiseptic, penetrating, and very economical. Get a bottle of Astring-o-sol today. Your druggist has it.

COUNTY PAY CUT AND VACATION ORDER ILLEGAL

Circuit Judge Invalidates $730,000 Economies.

Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor held yesterday in a mandamus action that the 15 per cent pay cut which the county adopted in March was illegal. He held further that the county board had no right to impose payless vacations last summer on the 1,300 employés in county fee offices.

JUDGE THOMAS TAYLOR.

If his ruling is upheld by higher courts the vacation salary and pay deductions which must be refunded by the county will total approximately $730,000, according to Michael J. O'Connor, assistant county controller. Of this the wage cut amounts to $380,000 and the payless vacations to $350,000. The wage cut had been made retroactive to Dec. 1.

Plans Immediate Appeal.

County Attorney Hayden N. Bell, who defended the county board's actions before Judge Taylor, said that an appeal will be taken immediately. President Emmett Whealan of the county board expressed hope that the appeal might sustain the economy measures which, he said, were the only way the county was able to cut its budget to conform with expected revenues for 1932.

The mandamus action was brought by Attorney Victor Frohlich on behalf of Mario Pollistrini, a deputy sheriff, who sought and obtained an order directing the county board and county controller to pay him for the enforced vacation he took last summer, and to refund the 15 per cent deducted from his pay from Dec. 1, 1931, to March 1, 1932.

"Service Without Compensation."

Judge Taylor's ruling on the retroactive pay cut was interpreted to apply to all of the county's 3,500 employés. In upholding the plaintiff's contentions, he stated:

"To decide otherwise would be to injure public employés by arbitrary ex post facto conduct upon the part of employers; to obtain service without compensation. This court is of the opinion that in the situation here involved, the public welfare is not shown to be superior to the rights of the employés, or is it shown that it is a case where impairment of private contract rights is justified; no evidence was introduced on that subject."

Upsets 60 Year Precedent.

In the matter of the payless vacations, Judge Taylor's decision was held to be primarily applicable only to the county fee offices, which have about 1,300 employés. He stated that under the constitution and statutes, the judges of the Circuit court determine the number of employés in each fee office, and have done so for 60 years. The county board is required to appropriate for these jobs, he held. After the appropriations are made, control of them is vested in the fee officers themselves, the board acting only as a paying agent. In reference to the board's resolution ordering the payless vacations, he stated:

"It will not do now after 60 years of immunity to permit the county board, even with the best purposes, to invade that province in the subtle way the resolution suggests."

City Starts Collection of Filling Station Fees

City Prosecutor Rosinia took steps yesterday to begin the collection of gasoline filling station license fees as a result of the recent state Supreme court decision upholding the power of the city to regulate the stations. It is estimated that the fees will provide the city with an annual revenue of $300,000.

GROCERY CASHIER IS ROBBED.

RAIL PRESIDENTS JOIN IN DEMAND FOR LESS TAXES

Willard, Williamson Back Drive.

Encouragement was received yesterday by the Chicago Association of Commerce in its national campaign to reduce general taxation through sharp curtailment of governmental expenditures from two railroad presidents. George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago association, received letters from Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, and F. E. Williamson, president of the New York Central.

"The movement to secure a reduction in taxes is very encouraging," Mr. Willard wrote. "It appears to have the support of all thinking people in all parts of the United States. It seems as if some good should result from this almost, if not quite, nation-wide movement."

Williamson Sees Hope.

Mr. Williamson who, as former president of the Burlington road, is a former Chicagoan, stated:

"I have your letter and note with a great deal of satisfaction the resolution adopted by the numerous chambers of commerce throughout the middle west on the subject of taxation. One of the most hopeful indications in the present situation is the fact that so many influential organizations, industries, and cities are taking such an aggressive interest in this matter.

"The united protest ought to secure results, although it is essential that the pressure be not relaxed.

Kentucky Chamber Acts.

The Chamber of Commerce of Glasgow, Ky., sent Mr. Rossetter a copy of resolutions which endorsed the sentiments of the Chicago associations. Among the points developed in the resolution was the following: "Business, both foreign and domestic, is now stagnated because of taxation." It also stated that "from the memory of man governments have failed because of the abuse of government credit by overborrowing and because of the failure to reduce governmental personal activities and taxes."

Charles A. Pipenhagen, an official of the Pines Winterfront company, wrote Mr. Rossetter expressing satisfaction with the Chicago association's campaign. In his letter he criticized the proposed special manufacturers' tax on automobiles and automobile accessories.

Request for Information.

In addition a telegram was received by Mr. Rossetter from H. A. Nordheim of the Michigan Federated Utilities at Alma, Mich., requesting the Chicago association to send him information regarding the drive for reduction of governmental expenditures for use at a meeting of the Alma Rotary club tomorrow.

Members of the Midwest Manufacturers' Association, Inc., were urged yesterday by Samuel M. Hastings, president, to make an organized effort in the interest of reduced federal governmental expenditures. Mr. Hastings asked that they wire their members of congress in the interest of national economy and that they suggest that their stockholders and employés do likewise.

"A reduction of only 10 per cent in the federal budget would make unnecessary the most objectionable and destructive of the new and additional federal taxes that are now proposed in congress," Mr. Hastings said.

VOTE TO INDICT 6 ON COLLECTION RACKET CHARGE

True bills charging six men with conspiracy to defraud through a "collection agency racket" were reported to have been voted yesterday by the grand jury after an investigation of the affairs of the Ogden corporation, 134 North La Salle street. The reported action followed a raid on the offices Tuesday in which all the records were seized and every employé of the concern was taken to the state's attorney's office for questioning.

Those said to have been named in the true bills are Arthur Hesse, 746 North Wabash avenue, president of the corporation; Stephen Kirst, secretary; Morris Shapiro, manager of the "court cost" department; E. M. Cox, salesman; Attorney Samuel Hachtman, and Jerry Whyte, salesman.

The system used to defraud, according to officials of the Better Business Bureau and Assistant State's Attorney E. C. Duffey, was to have clients put up money for "court costs" in suits never started.

RAIL CROSSING DEATH MYSTERY TAKES NEW TURN

The apparent murder of Joseph F. Leslie, 45 years old, 8001 South Green street, who was found dead alongside a railroad right of way in Gary Tuesday morning, still baffled Gary police last night. Authorities there asserted that Leslie had been killed by blows on the head, and then thrown in front of a train to disguise the killing.

Investigation of the mystery developed several complications, based chiefly on the statement of Antone Robic, 38 years old, 1628 West 11th avenue, Gary, that Leslie headed a gang of which he was a member. Police admitted that Robic had made the statement against Leslie without seeing his body. Robic told police that a man whom he knew as Leslie was the gang chief. Two associates of Robic, also in custody, refused to talk.

Leslie's widow denied last night that her husband had engaged in any criminal enterprises. Nothing in Leslie's record supported Robic's story, police said.

COUNCIL VOTES SETTLEMENT ON BRIDGE CLAIMS

A settlement of the claims of the Ketler-Elliott company against the city for the construction of the Wabash avenue bridge and viaduct was authorized yesterday by the city council efficiency committee at a sum $37,095 less than the contract price approved by Richard W. Wolfe, commissioner of public works under the last Republican administration.

The saving to the city is represented in the difference between the price of $9 a cubic foot for caisson excavation below a depth of 75 feet, which the committee approved, and the contract price of $10. The contract price for the caisson work was investigated by the committee, as bids for that item ranged from $2 to $10 a cubic foot.

In a letter to the committee Col. A. A. Sprague, now commissioner of public works, said that the $9 settlement should not be considered as the cost of the caissons but as an allowance for settlement of all claims in connection with the viaduct work.

YOUTH HELD AS ROBBER.

Earl Daly, 23 years old, 4500 South Wells street, was held to the grand jury in bond of $10,000 yesterday by Judge Francis B. Allegretti in the South Chicago court on a charge of robbing George Bell, 7808 South Shore drive.

Mr. J. A. Van Buren,
Advertising Manager,
Cleveland Plain Dealer,
Cleveland, Ohio.

Dear Mr. Van Buren:

The success of the Kroger Stores in the Cleveland area has been founded on an existing knowledge of this market and the best means of covering it is our advertising.

The rapid growth of this city has created a series of interlocking home districts. Most Cleveland families, especially in the higher income groups, depend upon their morning newspaper, the Plain Dealer.

This has been thoroughly demonstrated by the results obtained from our Plain Dealer advertising. We are convinced that we go into the homes of the greatest number of solid, substantial, able-to-buy families by using your paper.

That is why we carry the consistent Kroger Food Foundation campaign in the Plain Dealer.

Yours very truly,

PEB-M

"May we come into your kitchen?" asks The Kroger Food Foundation

we want to listen to your problems and tell you the answers we have worked out for you in our own home-like kitchen — our own laboratories

FOR more than a year now The Home Service Department of THE KROGER FOOD FOUNDATION has been helping brides and mothers, home women and club women with many of their problems. Every day the friendly, helpful Home Service Department is answering such questions as these:

Why does the custard curdle and why won't my pie crust get flaky? How can I cook canned salmon and do you recommend canned soup for my children's lunch? Tell me something "different" to have for my bridge luncheon and how many pounds of coffee does it take for a hundred cups? Please tell me how to make jelly out of grape juice and can I use evaporated milk for puddings? Have you a recipe for English scones and how can I feed my family of four on $5 a week?

Surely, today, or tomorrow or some day soon, you will have some questions you want answered. Perhaps they will be simple ones on meal planning or food budgets, or cooking for a crowd. Again, you may want the answer to some problem on home management or health diet. Then there are always those most important problems on child feeding and stretching food dollars. And The Home Service Department of The Kroger Food Foundation is ready to answer them. No matter where you live. The Kroger Food Foundation is as close to you as a friendly neighbor — and just as anxious to help you. All you have to do to take advantage of this service is write to the Director of THE KROGER FOOD FOUNDATION, 25 Government Square, Cincinnati, Ohio.

THE KROGER GROCERY & BAKING COMPANY

The Kroger Grocery and Baking Company reaches more homes through the Plain Dealer . . . and so can you!

Kroger has long known that the Plain Dealer is the direct road into the Cleveland homes with money to spend . . . and that the Plain Dealer is the most effective "short-cut to sales" that can be found in the great, rich diversified Cleveland market!

The Kroger company is an outstanding merchandiser. That they have chosen the Plain Dealer . . . and use it consistently . . . means a lot to every advertiser who wants to win "a place in the sun" in the Cleveland area!"

Every day the Plain Dealer . . . a morning newspaper . . . goes into more buying homes than any other Cleveland newspaper!

Every morning, women use the Plain Dealer as a "shopping guide." Impartial surveys reveal that most women prefer this great morning newspaper!

And this is easy to understand . . . for every morning the Plain Dealer carries many features to interest all women!

Cleveland is unique in that its buying power is dominated by one newspaper! The Plain Dealer is unique in that it is the one paper that dominates!

Cleveland is a market worth winning! And in the Plain Dealer you have made-to-order the medium which insures your winning it! Don't wait another day to get the whole story of Cleveland and the Plain Dealer. Write, wire or 'phone . . . now!

This is one of a series of full-page advertisements featuring The Kroger Food Foundation, which is appearing currently in the Sunday Rotogravure Sections of the Cleveland Plain Dealer and newspapers in nineteen other cities. This campaign has produced excellent results.

2 ATTACKS OPEN ON $90,000,000 SCHOOL BUDGET

Defeat of Tax Levy Is Threatened.

Two attacks, one direct and the other indirect, were launched yesterday against the school board's $90,000,000 budget for 1932.

ALD. JOHN S. CLARK.

The direct attack was made by members of the city council, which will be called upon tomorrow to approve the school tax levy based on the budget. Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the council finance committee, stated that although the matter is not officially before the committee, the levy will be discussed at the committee meeting today. He added that he would not vote for the levy in its present form because he believes the board had appropriated in excess of a reasonable estimate of its tax revenues.

Foe of High Budget Acts.

The indirect attack was started in the school board itself, by Trustee William D. McJunkin. He was one of the three trustees—President Lewis E. Myers and Robert F. Carr being the other two—who voted against the high budget. He introduced a resolution asking that the Strayer commission, now making a survey of the Chicago school system, inform the board just what it could expect in the way of an educational system based on annual expenditures of $50,000,000, of $70,000,000, of $80,000,000, and of $90,000,000.

Mrs. Helen Hefferan and other trustees who voted for the present budget opened fire on the resolution immediately, and Mr. McJunkin eventually withdrew it, stating that he would present it again at the board meeting Monday.

A third factor which enters the situation is that tomorrow Mayor Cermak is expected to submit to the council appointments of successors to two of the school trustees whose terms expire May 1. Both of these trustees, Walter Brandenburg and Oscar Durante, voted for the present budget.

May Muster Majority.

It is considered entirely possible that with his two new appointees seated Mayor Cermak may be able to muster a working majority in the board, which has refused to join in the economy régime which he has established in the city hall. With approval of the tax levy based on the 90 million dollar budget held up by the council, it would then be possible for the board to cut the appropriations set up in the present budget. Then it could submit a new and lower tax levy ordinance for the council's approval, lawyers held yesterday.

It is mandatory upon the city council to pass the tax levy ordinance for school purposes submitted by the board of education. The council has no control over the school budget proper. But aldermen thought they saw a legal loophole yesterday in the fact that the school budget, in the opinion of a number of them, is itself illegal in that it is in excess of proper estimates of revenue.

In estimating its tax revenue, the school board used $3,278,367,868 as its 1932 assessment figure on which to base its levy. This is almost 100 million dollars greater than the estimate made by the council finance committee staff for the city's 1932 budget.

"Loss and Cost" Too Low.

The school board estimated the loss and cost in collection of taxes at 10 per cent, which was a normal figure in the days before Cook county's fiscal muddle and tax strikes. The loss and cost on the 1928 taxes is 18 per cent at present, and on the 1929 taxes it is now 30 per cent. The finance committee staff estimated the ultimate loss and cost on 1929 taxes at 13¼ per cent and on the 1930 taxes at 12 per cent. The staff pointed out, however, that it may take four or five years for collections to reach a figure justifying even these estimates. Meanwhile the taxing bodies will have to carry an added burden of interest on borrowed money, if they appropriate to the limit of such estimates.

"It is true," said Ald. Clark, "that at the board's request it is mandatory upon the council to pass the school tax levy. But it is also true that the law intends that the school board stay within its estimated revenues. I believe that the legislature intended that the council should have some discretionary power in passing on the levy, to insure that the school board stays within the spirit of the law regarding estimated revenues.

"It is a question whether the board should levy a tax for new school buildings when taxes are already more than people can pay. Taxes cannot be materially reduced unless local governments reduce expenditures. The city corporate fund is proceeding this year on a basis $12,000,000 below the 1931 appropriations.

"I won't vote for the school levy in its present form, because a vote for it would indicate approval of expenditures in excess of revenues."

Trustee McJunkin made a lengthy statement in introducing his resolution at the school board meeting.

Blames Taxes for Depression.

"There is no question in my mind," he said, "but that governmental expenditures, national, state and local, are more responsible for the present depression than any other factor. The earning capacity of the entire country is $56,000,000,000 annually; the cost of running the various governments of the country, $14,000,000,000, or 25 cents of every dollar earned. During the last seven years taxes per capita have increased from $22.68 to $83.21, or a present rate of $416.05 for an average family of five.

"While we passed our budget, and while it is true that we made a far larger reduction in our original budget than any other local governmental body—from $108,000,000 to $90,000,000—we're going to have to cut it still further."

Mr. McJunkin cited figures on the budgets and expenditures of the school board, which rose from $20,447,546 appropriated and $19,343,182 spent in 1916 to $91,768,237 appropriated and $78,828,912 spent in 1930. The average cost per pupil, exclusive of administrative and building expense, rose from $45.96 in 1916 to $112.60 in 1931, he pointed out.

"It is important," said Trustee McJunkin, "that the Strayer report include a tabulation of just what we gave the school children in 1916, when we spent $19,000,000; what we gave them in 1920, when we spent $31,000,000; what in 1925, when we spent $55,000,000, and what in 1930, when we are obliged to come within budgets of sixty million dollars, seventy million dollars, eighty million dollars, and ninety million dollars."

List of Courses Taught.

"This report should include a complete list of the courses taught in the schools, and such other activities as were paid for out of the funds of the board of education.

"We should also receive the recommendations of Dr. Strayer and his experts as to the way to proceed, with the least harm to the system, if we are obliged to come within budgets of sixty million dollars, seventy million dollars, eighty million dollars, and ninety million dollars."

Opposition Opens Fire.

As soon as Trustee Carr seconded the resolution the trustees who voted for the $90,000,000 budget began to assail it. Mrs. Hefferan asserted that it was an attempt "to coerce" the Strayer group. Trustee John A. English protested that the budget was already reduced to a point "where it already interferes seriously with the operation of our schools."

When it was indicated that the high budget advocates were prepared to vote down his resolution Trustee McJunkin withdrew it.

Col. Howard P. Savage, business manager of the board, recommended to the trustees that the seven sedans, formerly used to transport members of the board, be sold as an economy measure. Use of the cars was stopped last year, although not without considerable protest by some trustees. The board has since been paying $35 a month to store the idle machines, in addition to fire and theft insurance, Mr. Savage said.

WOMAN ROBBED IN BAKERY.

1930 Tax Payments Dwindle to $694,726 for One Day

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Tax payments dwindled again yesterday when total collections were only $694,726. This contrasts with $707,000 paid Tuesday, $1,300,000 on Monday, and more than $8,000,000 last Saturday. Still smaller collections are expected today.

If the penalty date had been left at May 1, it was expected that $20,000,000 to $25,000,000 would have been collected this week. But the action of the legislature in fixing June 1 as the date when penalties on delinquents will accrue will probably slow down payments to a snail's pace until the last week in May.

$103,401,158 Already Paid.

The present status of taxes levied and collected in Cook county for 1930 may be summarized as follows:

Property—	Taxes levied.	Taxes paid.
Railroad	$ 13,339,415	$ 5,444,861
Personal	55,492,275	18,489,894
Real estate	221,452,080	76,467,263
Totals	$290,283,770	$103,401,158

Accordingly there is $186,882,000 of 1930 taxes yet to collect. It is estimated that $165,000,000 of this amount would still be unpaid on June 1, when the county collector is required to seek judgment against the delinquents.

The D. F. Kelly tax conference last Monday recognized that it is impossible to realize $165,000,000 by forced collections and recommended that the property owners be given more time to pay. The members of that conference, although they made no public statement of their views, are known to believe that the people haven't the cash to pay all of the taxes assessed.

Experts say that little more than the $20,000,000 to $25,000,000 in 1930 taxes expected before the penalty date is likely to be collected this year. Such a shortage, it is pointed out, may curtail the amount of cash the local governments can obtain through tax anticipation loans. This is true because, to some degree, it has been the policy of banks to lend on tax warrants to the extent that taxes are paid to retire outstanding warrants.

At present outstanding tax warrant issues of most of the major governments are being offered for sale at 2 to 8 points discount. However, the tax warrants of the school building fund were offered yesterday at 91, with only 88 bid, but other warrants were offered at 96 to 98. The sale price of these is influenced by the fact that they can be used, in lieu of cash, to pay 1930 taxes.

When the large property owners get all of them they desire for that purpose, and the public believes there will not be enough taxes collected to pay them off, the price is expected to drop substantially.

CONNOLLY TRIAL BEGINS; JURY IS PICKED IN HOUR

A jury was selected in one hour yesterday to try Timothy L. Connolly, former purchasing agent of the sanitary district, and Donald R. Joyce, former superintendent of vehicle maintenance, before Judge John Prystalski on charges of forgery. Few questions were asked the veniremen, the state questioning them as to their political affiliations and the defense quizzing only as to prejudice against the defendants.

JOHN E. NORTHUP.

Prosecutor John E. Northup told the jurors that the state charge will be based on the alleged preparation of fake bill heads by which the defendants are alleged to have collected $2,200 from the district for services that were not rendered.

Paid for Auto Hire.

He said that the district had paid that amount supposedly to the Regalie Brothers Automobile Repair company, 3939 5th avenue, for the hire of automobiles for use by district officials.

Six bills were presented to the district in February, 1928, and a check drawn for $2,200. He said the state will show that the Regalie company had no automobiles for hire ad that the bill was not on a regular form of that company.

The state says it will show that Joyce forged the signature of the Regalie company on the voucher and that the document bore the approval of Connolly.

Defense Opening Statements.

Attorney William Scott Stewart, representing Joyce, who is a son-in-law of Timothy Crowe, and Attorney Cameron Latter, for Connolly, made brief opening statements for the defense. They said they would show the jurors that there was no forgery and that their clients "are decent citizens."

Connolly, named in the original indictments in the sanitary district graft trial, was absent from Chicago from the time the indictment was returned until his arrest in California during the course of the trial of the other defendants.

The first witness called by the state following the opening statements was John J. Musa, head bookkeeper of the sanitary district under Crowe and now the district cashier. He identified the documents on which the state case will be based.

ALDERMEN WILL DISCUSS BUILDING TRADES PAY CUT

The question of applying the wage reduction of 20 per cent taken by the building trades to employes of those crafts in the city service will be considered today by the finance committee of the city council. Several pay rolls, mostly in the department of public works, have been held up pending a determination of policy by the council.

More than 1,000 men in the city service whose monthly pay based on the union daily rate has already been cut 20 per cent under the city's continuation ordinance are protesting that a further cut would discriminate against them, slashing their salaries by a total of 40 per cent. Other union men who are paid by the day protest that they are now getting only four and five days work a week. Some have signified their willingness to take the cut if they are given work five and one-half days a week.

JAP ARMIES PUSH ON INTO REVOLT TORN MANCHURIA

New Conquest Is Ordered by Tokio.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUKDEN, April 28.—[Thursday.]—Under instructions from War Minister Sadao Araki, the Japanese armies today are pushing forward in northern, eastern, and western Manchuria with the object of making a complete reconquest of Manchuria. The northern operation was called Japan's largest since the Chinchow drive last December.

LIEUT. GEN. SADAO ARAKI. [Acme Photo.]

The league of nations' investigating commission, including Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, American representative, is in Manchuria and occupies a reserved seat in a position to observe the Japanese military operations. These are likely to carry the Japanese army to the border of soviet Siberian territory near Vladivostok and Khabarovsk, where Russia is alleged to have concentrated four divisions of troops and more than 200 bombing planes.

Japs Make Pincer Move.

Gen. Shigeru Honjo, Japanese commander in chief, has ordered three brigades into the areas east of Harbin. Part of these troops are moving down the Sungari river and the remainder along the eastern branch of the Chinese Eastern railway. The Japanese object is to crush the Chinese loyalist forces in a gigantic pincer movement. The Japanese forces are commanded by Lieut. Gen. Hirose, assisted by Maj. Gen. Murai, who is operating northward from Imienpo in the direction of Fangcheng and Ilan, and Maj. Gen. Yoda, who is leading a brigade eastward along the Chinese Eastern railway.

Another brigade, under Maj. Gen. Nakamura, steamed down the Sungari amidst ice floes aboard a unique armada of 22 river boats, converted into ironclads, each carrying two field guns. The flotilla is convoyed by two Chinese gunboats which the Japanese seized at Harbin.

District in Anarchy.

The district upon which the Japanese are advancing is in a state of anarchy and aflame with rebellion. Most of the towns have been burned by bandits, irregulars, guerillas, and partisans, all of whom call themselves loyalists.

Soviet authorities, who control the Chinese Eastern railway, have begun sending all remaining rolling stock not held by the Japanese into Russian territory by way of Manchuli.

Reports from Harbin today said Chinese loyalists, commanded by Gen. Li Tu, are strongly entrenched at Sansing and are prepared to resist the Japanese. The Chinese "National Salvation army" of 20,000 men is reported to have occupied Chuho, west of Imienpo, cutting off the rear of Maj. Gen. Murai's mixed brigade, which is stationed in Imienpo.

Mobilize Railway Guards.

The situation at Tunghua, east of Kirin, is said to be most serious. The Japanese are mobilizing all available railway guards along the South Manchurian railway for service at Tonghua.

Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, whom Japan ousted as governor of Manchuria and who is now at Peiping, is blamed here for the disturbed situation.

Meantime, the situation at Harbin, where a Japanese garrison of 20,000 is stationed, is becoming increasingly chaotic. Russian and Chinese merchants are being kidnaped daily and there have been several bombing incidents. Mobs of White Russians stormed the head office of the Chinese Eastern railway, demanding back pay which the soviet management withheld when the Whites were discharged from the railway in 1929.

Adopt New Peace Formula.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, April 27.—Sir Miles W. Lampson, British minister, announced tonight that he had succeeded in inducing the Chinese and Japanese peace delegates to agree on a new formula covering the withdrawal of Japanese troops from Shanghai. The text of the formula was not announced, but is said to provide for "face saving" all around, enabling an early resumption of the peace conference, which adjourned in a deadlock three weeks ago.

However, the Cantonese faction has declared opposition to any scheme which does not provide for continued armed resistence to the Japanese. Sun Fo, son of the late Dr. Sun Yat Sen, founder of the Chinese republic, announced that he had forwarded a scheme to Nanking providing for active Chinese coöperation with both the United States and soviet Russia as a means of forcing the Japanese off the Asiatic continent.

SHOTGUN SQUAD AMBUSHES OHIO GANG "TIPSTER"

Survives After Being Riddled with Slugs.

Canton, O., April 27.—[Special.]—Harry Bouklias, 43, former gangland "informer," was ambushed and riddled with shotgun slugs. He is in Mercy hospital and physicians say he has a fighting chance for life.

Bouglias probably escaped instant death by dropping to the porch of his home and pulling a heavy chair in front of him. Two men composed the "execution" squad.

Bouklias for several months has acted as circulator and reporter for the Ohio Examiner, a weekly paper fighting vice conditions, published in Urbana and distributed in several Ohio cities, including Canton.

In 1923 Bouklias appeared before Gov. Donahey as one of the chief witnesses in the scandal in which C. C. Curtis was removed from office as mayor of Canton. Bouklias later offered part of the testimony which resulted in conviction of E. E. Curtis, former safety director, on a charge of accepting a bribe. The witness himself was convicted of perjury and served a sentence in the Ohio pen.

Several arrests on liquor law violation charges are listed against him and one case now is pending against him in Tuscarawas county.

MAYOR REVOKES THE LICENSES OF 5 DANCE HALLS

The licenses of five dance halls operating in Chicago were revoked by Mayor Cermak yesterday on recommendation of Commissioner of Police Allman. This action means that the police will raid the places if they continue to operate unless they obtain court injunctions.

The licenses revoked were those for the Marckie-Sitron corporation, 8 West Lake street; Ellswood Wood, 36 West Randolph street; Chauncey Dickerson, 334 South Wabash avenue; Plaza School of Dancing, 1210 North Clark street, and the Chateau company, 3810 Broadway.

"These places posed as reputable dancing schools when they obtained licenses," said Police Commissioner Allman. "Police investigation showed they permitted indecent dancing."

VESSEL BRINGS TRIBUNE RECORD LOAD OF PAPER

The Joliet, a 500 foot ore freighter chartered from the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company, docked at THE TRIBUNE wharf at 8 p. m. yesterday with more than 6,300 tons of newsprint for THE TRIBUNE. It was the largest amount of newsprint ever carried in a single ship. Unloading is to start at 4 a. m. today, and will take three days. Capt. W. T. Mooney, master of the vessel, said the boat sailed from Thorold, Ont., on Sunday and had fine weather for the trip except for a snow storm on Lake Huron on Monday night. With its load the big freighter drew only 16 feet on arrival.

JAPAN'S RULERS ENSHRINE MEN KILLED IN BATTLE

TOKIO, April 27.—(AP)—Emperor Hirohito and the empress, accompanied by the highest dignitaries of the Japanese court, officiated at a special worship today, the first of its kind since 1906, in honor of Japanese soldiers who died in battle for their country.

The ceremony took place at the Yasukuni shrine of the national Shinto temple which crowns the highest hill in Tokio and where the Japanese believe the souls of soldiers and sailors killed in action are enshrined.

The last previous ceremony was performed by Emperor Hirohito's grandfather, who in 1906 honored and enshrined the souls of those who died in the Russo-Japanese war.

The solemn Shinto ceremony was the climax of a four day national patriotic religious observance in which the spirits of 531 soldiers who died at Shanghai, as well as of those who died in the Tsinan campaign in 1928 and in the suppression of the rebellion of Aborigines in Formosa in 1930, were added to the empire's pantheon.

Those spirits added to the shrine today included only the soldiers who fell up to Feb. 10. Several hundred more must be added at a later ceremony.

Gunmen Raid Office and Seize $1,100 and Jewelry

Two gunmen invaded the offices of Henry McNair, horse commission merchant in the Union Stockyards yesterday afternoon, threatened six persons and escaped with two boxes containing $1,100, three diamond rings valued at $950, and 96 shares of nonnegotiable Swift & Co. stock. The box containing the rings and stock were owned by the cashier, Charles V. Becker, 1511 East Hyde Park boulevard, who was one of those threatened. The money belonged to the company.

TELLS WIFE HOW TO RUN BUSINESS, KILLS HIMSELF

Ignore Get Rich Quick Schemes, He Advises.

New York, April 27.—[Special.]—Russell Styles, 44, a social and civic leader of Brooklyn, killed himself early today after writing a letter advising his wife how to rear their two sons and run the water heater business he left. The children are Russell Jr., 5, and Donald, 13 months old.

Mr. Styles, who had been worried over the slump in business, committed suicide in his office by turning on the gas of a demonstrator heater. A note beside him said:

1. Don't get hysterical. You are young. I have not reached the daring age. I trust that my estate is large enough for you to carry on and bring the boys up right. I will watch over them.

2. Do not listen to any get-rich-quick schemes. Put your excess capital in various savings banks and be satisfied with 4½ per cent and the business.

3. Call up Mr. W. Hanson for any business advice. You will find that he is regular.

4. Explain to the boys that their dad was industrious and make them believe he will come back to tell them about the business. Anna is nice, and have her take hold right away. A lot of promises may keep business on. She understands all details, so try to keep her on.

I believe Anna, Lester, and Bob can run things. I suggest a working force of Lester, $40; Anna, $30; Robert, $30, making a total of $100. Let them employ an extra man for about $18. Charles Tobin will take care of prospective sales at regular rates. Pay all minor notes when they mature.

The persons referred to by their first names are Anna McCaffrey, bookkeeper; Lester McFarland, Mrs. Styles' brother and chief mechanic of the company, and Robert Comptello, assistant foreman. Mr. Tobin is sales manager of the firm.

WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

ROOSEVELT ADDS TO PRIMARY LEAD IN PENNSYLVANIA

Victory in Massachusetts Pleases Smith.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 27.—[Special.]—Gov. F. D. Roosevelt of New York drew slowly ahead of former Gov. Smith today as returns filtered in from their presidential preferential contest in yesterday's state-wide primary. The situation surrounding the election of delegates to the national convention, however, remained in such confusion that the leaders of both factions agreed tonight that it might take several days to determine exactly how many of the seventy-six Pennsylvania votes either candidate would command at Chicago.

With returns in from 5,742 of the 8,181 districts the vote stood:

Roosevelt, 91,918; Smith, 69,328.

On the basis of the incomplete returns, Warren Van Dyke, chairman of the Roosevelt for President league, definitely claimed fifty-seven delegates for the governor, with eleven other places in doubt. John R. Collins, chairman of the Democratic state committee and a leader of the group which has insisted upon an unpledged delegation, insisted that reports to him showed that the delegation would be equally divided between Roosevelt and Smith.

Overcomes Philadelphia Vote.

While the nation was scanning the returns because of the expected psychological effect the result would have on the Roosevelt for President movement, the governor by his vote in the interior counties gradually overcame a lead of 9,000 rolled up by Mr. Smith in Philadelphia.

On the basis of the incomplete returns Gov. Roosevelt had carried at least forty-two of the sixty-seven counties of the state. Mr. Smith led the field in Philadelphia, Luzerne, Lackawanna, Erie, Elk, Schuylkill, and several others. The outcome in Allegheny county was expected to be close.

Complete, but unofficial, Philadelphia returns gave Smith 18,738, Roosevelt 9,715.

Senator Davis, running on a wet platform with the backing of the regular Republican organization, won the Republican nomination for United States senator over Gen. Smedley Butler, the bone dry candidate, backed by Gov. Pinchot, by a plurality that probably will exceed even the campaign estimates of Senator Davis' supporters. Gen. Edward Martin, chairman of the Republican state committee, expressed the belief that the Davis plurality might reach 400,000 votes.

Smith Voices Pleasure.

New York, April 27.—[Special.]—Alfred E. Smith was convinced today that as a result of his sweeping victory in the Massachusetts primary yesterday plus his unexpectedly strong showing in Pennsylvania the headlong rush to nominate Gov. Roosevelt for President, almost unimpeded up to this time, has been halted if not definitely stopped.

The complete returns give Mr. Smith the solid Bay state delegation of thirty-six votes with an overwhelming indorsement in the popular preferential vote. Mayor Curley and the Roosevelt forces were beaten by a 3 to 1 vote in that state.

Mr. Smith was openly elated over his showing.

"This puts the chock under the bandwagon for the time being at least, and will stop people from jumping on the wagon on the theory there is nowhere else to go," he said.

Seen as Jolt to Roosevelt.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 27.—[Special.]—Apparently the net result of the presidential primaries yesterday was a jolt for the candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York for the Democratic nomination.

The governor failed to land any delegates in Massachusetts, an Al Smith stronghold, in which, however, the Roosevelt managers counted on getting 10 out of the 36.

In Pennsylvania it is a question on the face of incomplete returns whether Roosevelt won the 60 out of 76 delegates his managers were claiming. The Smith vote in that state was much greater than had been anticipated. Altogether the two primaries have served to put new life in the "stop Roosevelt" movement, which had been languishing as the New York governor swept one after another of the primaries previously held.

While Gov. Roosevelt and his principal opponent in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination held the center of the stage, other controversies of much political importance were settled in yesterday's primaries.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania and his senatorial candidate, Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler of marine corps fame, took a hard toss in the Republican primaries in the Keystone state. Senator James J. Davis has defeated Gen. Butler in the senatorial primary by a big vote, and the Republican organization of the state appears to have put through its slate generally.

The Davis victory over Gen. Butler is a blow to the drys and a boost for the wets. Davis espoused the anti-prohibition cause after William S. Vare, the Republican boss of Pennsylvania, threatened to put an organization candidate in the race against him if Davis did not declare against the 18th amendment. Gen. Butler ran as a bone dry.

The result may mean a militant Pennsylvania delegation in the Republican national convention, fighting for a plank promising resubmission of the 18th amendment.

GIRL IS KILLED IN AUTO CRASH; HER ESCORT HELD

Miss Veronica Slattery, 24 years old, of 1503 East 72d street, was killed early this morning when an automobile in which she was a passenger crashed into the rear of a gasoline truck in South Chicago avenue at 89th street. Police arrested Robert Leigh, 25, of Seattle, Wash., the driver of the automobile. They alleged he had been drinking.

Leigh, a guest of Arnold Sheppy, 7051 Bennett avenue, and Miss Slattery were driving north in South Chicago avenue when their car struck the rear of the truck. The automobile was crushed. Miss Slattery was taken to the South Chicago hospital, but was pronounced dead on arrival. Sheppy and Ruth Hood, 8023 Ridgeland avenue, who also were in the car, were seriously injured.

Two other automobile fatalities in Cook county yesterday increased the toll since Jan. 1 to 351. The victims:

Owen Dempsey, 50 years old, of 1532 West Congress street. Died early this morning at the county hospital of injuries suffered last night when he was run down at Grand and Ashland avenues by an automobile operated by Anthony Peluso, 39, of 3248 Potomac avenue.

Emerick Sabo, 74 year old, 3649 North Sacramento avenue. Died at home from injuries sustained March 15 when he was struck by the car of Henry Sonbesm, 7223 North Paulina street.

4th Crash in Home Made Plane Kills Young Flyer

Brainerd, Minn., April 27.—(AP)—Walter Van Doren, 25, of Merrifield, eight miles north of here, was killed today when his home made airplane fell into a swamp adjoining the Rosko airport here and burned. It was Van Doren's fourth crash in two years in planes of his own make.

SPEAKER PAINTS WASHINGTON AS BUSINESS LEADER

Calls Unjust Taxes Revolution Cause.

George Washington was the outstanding big business man of his day, who under the spur of necessity became a great soldier and statesman, Attorney George T. Buckingham said at a George Washington bicentennial luncheon given at the Hotel La Salle by the Association of Commerce yesterday.

G. T. BUCKINGHAM. [Morrison Photo.]

Attorney Buckingham said Washington was the wealthiest aristocrat in the American colonies, that he lived well and administered his estate of 62,000 acres with great ability. He described the social life at Mount Vernon, saying that Washington was a devotee of dancing.

General Fond of Dancing.

"In fact, it is recorded that Washington once danced for three hours with the same lady," Mr. Buckingham said. "Just think what a bill he would have had to pay if his partner were a Chicago taxi dancer!"

Washington emerged as the greatest leader the country has ever had, the speaker said, adding that the cause of the revolutionary war was 2 per cent a desire for liberty and 98 per cent revolt against impossible taxes imposed by the British upon rich and poor colonists alike.

John Hancock, whose signature is most prominent on the Constitution of the United States, was a big rum distiller who was forced to indulge in bootlegging on the side to evade confiscatory taxes imposed by Great Britain on the molasses imported from the West Indies, Attorney Buckingham said. Hancock had the good business sense to help start the revolutionary war when he saw the way taxes were mounting. A suit to collect $500,000 in taxes he had evaded was pending against him when the colonies rose in revolt.

Speaks on Military Show.

Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commanding the 6th corps area, spoke of the military tournament to be staged by regular army troops in Soldiers' field from June 24 to July 4 in celebration of the Washington bicentennial. The tournament will be the greatest military display staged in the United States, with 100 planes and 1,000 troops participating, he said. The proceeds will be divided between the army and Cook county relief funds.

Col. T. A. Siqueland, in charge of bicentennial celebrations in Chicago, urged members of the association to attend the Army and Navy ball at the Stevens hotel on Saturday night, and to support the military pageant.

It's Lake Shore Drive Now from Belmont to Montrose

The Lincoln park board voted yesterday to change the name of Sheridan road to Lake Shore drive from Belmont avenue to where Sheridan road turns west just north of Grace street. This makes Lake Shore drive continuous from the river as far north as the new outer drive is completed at Montrose avenue, but it leaves a gap of nearly a mile in Sheridan road. Superintendent Otto Weege told the board that 75 per cent of the abutting property owners had petitioned for the change.

PRESS FREEDOM IS DEMANDED BY U. S. PUBLISHERS

Assail Action Against Dakota Editors.

New York, April 27.—[Special.]—The American Newspaper Publishers' association today adopted a resolution characterizing the decision of Judge J. H. Bottum of the South Dakota Circuit court in the contempt proceedings against the American-News of Aberdeen, S. D., as "an encroachment upon freedom of the press."

The resolution was submitted with the report of the committee on freedom of the press over the signature of the committee's chairman, Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Publisher Is Commended.

The report was submitted by Joseph Ridder of the New Yorker Staats-Herald. He introduced this resolution:

"Be it resolved, That the decision of Judge Bottum in the contempt of court proceedings against the American-News of Aberdeen, S. D., and its publisher and editor is, in our opinion, an encroachment upon freedom of the press; and be it further Resolved, That this association commends the publishers of the American-News in their expressed intention of carrying the case to the highest court in order to maintain unimpaired the right of fair comment upon a judicial decision."

The resolution was overwhelmingly adopted.

At the morning session the subject of radio was introduced by Elzey Roberts, St. Louis, Mo., Star, in presenting the report of the committee on radio, of which he is chairman.

Explains New Device.

Speaking of the growing distaste of radio listeners to radio sales talk Mr. Roberts cited the use of a new device that may be attached to a radio set and may be used by listeners to cut out sales talk by the press of a button.

He explained that progress had been made in the elimination of trade names from radio programs as published in newspapers and he discussed the possibility of transferring radio programs from news to advertising columns. No action on that matter was taken.

Poet Crane Lost at Sea, Message from Ship Says

Warren, O., April 27.—(AP)—Relatives of Hart Crane, poet, today received a wireless message from the steamer Orizaba, out of Vera Cruz for New York, that Crane had been lost at sea. Crane, who won the Guggenheim Foundation prize last year, sailed Saturday from Vera Cruz. He had spent most of the last year in Mexico City.

Michigan's G. O. P. Adopts Dry Law Referendum Plank

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 27.—[Special.]—Referendum of the prohibition question under provisions of article five of the eighteenth amendment was voted by Michigan Republicans in convention here today. The convention also voted indorsement of President Hoover.

The platform was adopted practically unanimously after a riotous session on the floor, preceded by two hours of debate in the committee on resolutions, and followed by a vote of 857 to 454 against outright repeal.

Adoption of the referendum plank was the greatest blow struck against the drys in the state since prohibition went into effect. When the "dripping wets" were defeated on the resolutions committee by a 9 to 8 vote the minority report was taken to the floor of the house.

Referendum Plan Carries.

B. J. Onen of Battle Creek outlined the majority resolution submitted by W. B. Henry of Bay City. This resolution read:

"We believe that the question of repeal of the eighteenth amendment is not a party issue. Members of all political parties sincerely differ on the advisability of its repeal. The Republican party, however, always advocates the submission of such important issues to a discussion by voters. We believe that time now has arrived when the question should be submitted to the voters.

"We therefore recommend that the question be submitted to conventions of the people, in the several states, under provisions of article 5 of the federal constitution."

The resolution, Mr. Henry said, was offered as a compromise. After reading the measure Mr. Onen stated that passage of the minority resolution would result in a division of the party. "Do not say that the Republican party recommends repeal," urged Mr. Onen. "Avoid dissension in our ranks by voting only the majority referendum report."

Roll Call Shows Sentiment.

The roll call of county delegations on the minority report revealed the upper peninsula aligned almost solidly for repeal. Delta county, Senator Rushton's home, cast its 12 votes for the minority resolution, as did Algeria county its 4, Baraga its 7, Gogebic its 14, Houghton its 22, Iron its 14, Menominee its 11, and Ontonagon its 8.

Chippewa county split its vote, three for the minority and five favoring the referendum. Marquette likewise split, six and seven, and Luce, one and one, while Dickinson, Mackinac, and Schoolcraft declared solidly for the modified form.

Most of the lower peninsula counties went against the complete repeal. Besides Wayne county only Macomb, Presque Isle, and Otsego counties voted for outright repeal. Monroe favored it, 10 to 7, and Emmett and Benzie counties split their votes.

Delegates Elected.

Gov. Brucker, former Gov. Green, and former United States Ambassador C. B. Warren were among the seven delegates at large elected to the national convention.

The resolutions committee refused a report on the soldiers' bonus question.

Workmen will start breaking ground today for the 1933 World's Fair replicas of buildings which history associates with the life of Abraham Lincoln. The structures, which will be built at 26th street and the lake front, will include the Kentucky log cabin in which Lincoln was born, the grocery store at Salem, Ill., where he worked, and the Wigwam in Chicago where he was nominated for the presidency in 1860. Work was begun yesterday in the uncrating of the replica of the Golden Pavilion of Jehol, an example of Chinese lama architecture.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

ORGANIZE FOR TAX RELIEF.

The Illinois Chamber of Commerce is to be congratulated upon the latest step it has taken in its campaign to bring about reduction of public expenditures. It has sent out an appeal to its membership to address their representatives directly, demanding relief, and adds the names of the Illinois delegation. As THE TRIBUNE has repeatedly pointed out, resolutions and general appeals will get nowhere. There must be an immediate, personal contact between the citizen and his representatives. Form letters go into congressional waste baskets and ought to. Citizens should prove their determination by personal communication that obviously means business.

But business associations should do more than rouse their membership to action. They should adopt the course of President Rossetter of the Chicago Association of Commerce, who has asked its members not only to act themselves but to appeal to other employers to act and encourage their employés to act. All are fellow sufferers from the consequences of exorbitant taxation, the employé who still has a job and wants to keep it, the man who is out of a job and wants to get one, the man who is still taxable, and the man whose hope of ever having anything taxable depends upon the reduction of the public burden on enterprise and the people's livelihood.

The restoration of employment and the prosperous private enterprise which alone it can bring about depends decisively upon relief from excessive taxation. This touches every man and woman in the United States. But the forces which resist it are powerful and it cannot be accomplished without the organization of the demand for relief and the concentration of direct influence upon the individual members of congress. This organization and concentration have begun, but they are lacking in many parts of the country. The national business and civic organizations should lose no time in rounding up laggard states and districts.

THE SWANSON CHARGES.

The controversy between Judge Feinberg and Judge Fisher as to whose special grand jury is the true one and whose the false one has now been referred for decision to the Illinois Supreme court. Comment upon what might be called the issue of legitimacy as between the two grand juries might, therefore, be improper at this time and will not be indulged in. But there are other aspects of the matter which are not before the court, but which are, perhaps, of even greater public importance.

It will be recalled that Judge Feinberg summoned a special grand jury and appointed a special prosecutor after a political supporter of his had filed allegations of terrorist activities by the opposition to Judge Feinberg in the recent primary. Judge Feinberg ordered an inquiry into these allegations. The grand jury was also to consider the allegations which had been made by State's Attorney Swanson regarding Judge Feinberg's official conduct in certain foreclosure and receivership cases in his court. Judge Fisher, as chief justice of the Criminal court, insisted that Judge Feinberg had no right to summon a special grand jury, a right which in Judge Fisher's view is reserved to the criminal branch and which he thereupon exercised by calling another special grand jury and appointing another special prosecutor.

However the court may decide the question of the right of a judge in the civil branch to summon a grand jury, it is obvious that Judge Feinberg's jury is ill equipped to conduct the inquiries which it is instructed to undertake.

A grand jury impaneled on Judge Feinberg's order, instructed in its duties by Judge Feinberg and guided by a special prosecutor hand picked by Judge Feinberg can hardly escape the suspicion of partisanship in an inquiry into the political opposition to Judge Feinberg, or into Judge Feinberg's conduct. More than that, the accusations made against Judge Feinberg reflect solely upon the propriety of his behavior as a member of the bar and as a judge on the bench. The grand jury can be concerned only to discover if Judge Feinberg committed a crime, a question which was not raised by Mr. Swanson.

What Mr. Swanson did say, in effect, was this: Judge Feinberg has departed from the routine procedure in real estate receiverships and foreclosures. He has proclaimed his right to appoint receivers, attorneys for receivers, and masters in chancery, even when all the parties to the proceeding, both borrowers and lenders, come into court agreed on a different set of receivership officials. He has permitted his own appointees to draw fees which are grossly excessive. He has made his appointments in these receivership cases with an eye to building up a political organization for himself and his political faction headed by Robert Crowe. This political machine has been created, therefore, at the expense of precisely those persons whom the court is supposed to protect—the innocent bondholders and the borrowers.

Mr. Swanson supported these charges with a mass of specific illustrations. They unquestionably involve matters with which the Chicago Bar association and only the bar association is qualified to cope. It is plainly the duty of the bar association to go into these matters without further delay, and it is well that the association has resolved on such a course.

What is expected of the bar association is the answers to these questions:

Did Judge Feinberg (and other judges sitting in chancery) so handle the cases before them that litigants suffered needless losses?

Did Judge Feinberg (and other judges sitting in chancery) misuse their powers for their own personal or political advantage?

If Mr. Swanson's charges are well founded, it is the duty of the bar association to bring disbarment proceedings against lawyers and judges, if any, who have violated their trust. More especially it is the duty of the association to lay down unequivocally the proper procedure in receivership cases and insist that any judge and any lawyer who wishes to remain in good standing follow those regulations to the letter.

MR. LA GUARDIA'S REVELATIONS.

The senate banking committee has before it a good deal of evidence suggesting that some New York newspaper men betrayed the public and their employers. According to Representative La Guardia, who presented the documents to the committee, these newspaper men were paid for giving publicity favorable to stock jobbers and pool operators. The public was misled into thinking the securities which were favorably mentioned were better than they really were. The public lost. The unscrupulous dealers and their allies of the financial pages profited.

The charges are so serious in their nature that they must be pursued as far as the trail will lead. When Mr. La Guardia has completed the presentation of his evidence the duty of the committee to subpœna all those who have been named by him is plain. No doubt in fairness, the editors and publishers of the newspapers concerned should also be summoned.

No one in his senses can suppose that the executive heads of such honorable institutions as the New York Herald Tribune, the New York Times, and the New York Evening Post, to mention but three of the newspapers involved, shared in any way in these irregular transactions. No one with a broad acquaintance among newspaper men will believe that the offense charged by Mr. La Guardia is a reflection on the general morality in the profession. Nevertheless, serious charges have been made, the implications of which in some minds may go far beyond the facts. The good repute of American, and particularly of New York, journalism is, in a measure, at stake, and it is for that reason that the inquiry must go far beyond the point at which the committee left it on Tuesday afternoon.

Whatever the full airing of the facts may disclose, this much is evident: No newspaper writer can honorably accept pay, except from the newspaper which employs him, for any item which is inserted in his newspaper.

FEDERAL JUDGES IN A FEVER.

A violent federal judge in the Charleston, W. Va., district undertook to make Volstead a veritable terror to the nonconformists in the neighborhood by threatening bootleggers, a number of whom were before him, with excessive punishment if they did not disclose the names of their customers. He said he would like to give the "good citizens" who bought the liquor, they having "no more moral character than jackasses," two years in Atlanta.

The honorable judge was in a state of mind, as other honorable federal judges have been and as judges in all times have been when a particular zeal for one law has warped any judical conceptions they might otherwise have had. Bad law has required bad legislators and makes bad judges. The Volstead act originated in disrespect for tested principles of law and conduct. It came from a bolt of goods which has been found unfit for human wear whenever a garment for the individual was cut from it, and all lawmaking experience has taught government not to use it. In its origin it defied reason and rights and in administration it has trampled on everything, legal, social, and political.

It will be strange if some of the federal judges who have carried their personal animus into the disposal of cases before them be not found ripe for impeachment when the hysteria of the eighteenth amendment has been quieted with the ousting of the hysterical. The sedition law ebbed to leave Judge Chase for trial. Some of his judicial kin are on the federal bench now.

Editorial of the Day

[New York Herald Tribune.]

It is cheering evidence of that optimism which is the handmaiden of sport to find most of the jockey clubs and racing associations in this country and Canada carrying on this year with full programs, or with offerings so nearly normal that the difference is well nigh negligible.

That this policy is being pursued in some instances in the face of what seems like certain loss is a tribute to the courage and sportsmanship of those in control. The determination to carry on through a few lean years after several seasons of profit will make friends and should be rewarded when opportunity affords itself, either in increased patronage by the public or the relaxing of certain standards that have militated against the sport in some parts of the Union during the last generation.

It is surprising to find that one organization has actually increased its offerings for 1932. The Arlington Park Jockey club of Chicago during a thirty day session in July will include a stake daily on its rich program and bring its total of prize money well above the $700,000 mark. This should be welcome news to the owners and breeders of thoroughbreds that have found an alarming shrinkage in bloodstock values since 1929. Increased earning power makes for better prices at the sales ring, at the farm and on the race course.

The wisdom of the Arlington directorate in having supplementary closings on June 1 for their great stakes, including the $70,000 Classic for three year olds, the Arlington cup, and other rich fixtures for three year olds and upward, has been demonstrated in other years, and again will be exemplified this season when new and desirable material is injected into the situation. Phar Lap, had he lived, would have entered the lists against all comers in the Arlington gold cup and other tests, in which he would have been asked to meet the best of our thoroughbreds.

With a program of such richness it is safe to predict that every good horse in training will be at Arlington Park next July.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

AND, INDEED, WHY NOT?

How we shuddered when the prohibition whangdoodle used to tell us that he actually knew of the case of a man who had died because he drank too much of the hell broth served him in saloons. "Murdered by whisky!" the whangdoodle would roar, "and if you in this great audience before me now do not rise in your might and drive the curse of rum forever from this land then I charge you with being accessories to this man's murder!" Hot stuff and it finally went over. But last year in these United States of America there were 33,000 deaths by automobiles and 1,000,000 people injured. Are we not accessories to these deaths and these injuries unless we rise at once and make the manufacture, sale, and use of autos forever forbidden in this land of the free and the home of the brave? Aye, even so. We are giving away our car today. (Lykell, lykell, lykell!)

SUPPLICATION.

When journey's end is mine,
Let not it be
That I must go when April's come again,
For I would miss
Her pageant on the hills
And the magic of her humid rain.

I should be loath to leave
Her wooded paths,
Made new for me, or lose the amethysts
The chalice of the iris
Holds for her
With the lifting of the morning mists.

So let it come when
Down the withering slope
November blasts a pathway of distress,
And let me be when
He has gone his way,
A part of beauty turned to nothingness.

THAT FELLA DOWN IN STEEATOR.

THE SENATE FINANCE COMMITTEE reported yesterday to double the income tax rate of all us individual taxpayers. And how grievous we felt the burden was before and now its doubled! There's only one way to beat it, quit the job and get in the bread line. But, pshaw, what's the use? The senate will turn in then and put a tax on the privilege of standing in the bread line. Maybe we could fix it with the cook on duty at the bread line to throw us a hard boiled egg and a crust of bread over the fence so we wouldn't have to stand in line. Then the senate would probably hunt us down with bloodhounds to get the tax they'd put on hard boiled eggs and crusts of bread. No, sir, you can't beat it.

APPARENTLY they stopped Mr. Roosevelt in Massachuetts, but he got away from them in Pennsylvania. And now they've got to stop him in California. And even if they do stop him, what then? (Ah, good morning, Mr. Ritchie, how is it by you? And you, too, Harry Byrd, how's everything? Oh, nothing—we were just wondering.)

MOVING TIME and not so many people moving at that. Probably because of the w. k. depression, because it takes money to move. Nothing but Old Man Prosperity sticking around behind that corner would make people give up the joy of moving. Why they take joy in it is something else again, but they do; in fact, moving is one of America's favorite outdoor sports. Come spring and everybody begins to run around hunting a new flat. And now they're going to pretty much stay where they are. Well, when we see the streets filled from curb to curb with moving vans plowing along in every direction we'll know we've got back to normalcy. For the first thing everybody will do when that happens will be to get up and move. It's in their blood.

BALLAD OF WASHTUB ARISTOCRACY

"Bror G. Dahlberg, whose suit for divorce against Mrs. Mary Alexander Dahlberg was heard by Judge Daniel P. Trude, alleged that his wife deserted him because she could no longer stand close contact with Chicago's socially élite, whom he declared she described as 'washtub aristocracy.'"—News item.

Ladies sere and ladies yare,
Whate'er be your ancestral strain;
E'en you who culture's standard bear,
And climbers "on the fringe" destrain;
Hark you, mesdames, though high on stair
Of social leadership you be;
If of Chicago, then despair
—You're washtub aristocracy!

Princes of Spain might find you fair,
If soapy gold washed out the stain
Of plebeian blood on 'scutcheon rare;
Might shrug a shoulder, and refrain
From many a startled, wondering stare
At the crassness of plutocracy.
Still—all is not lost beyond repair;
—You're washtub aristocracy!

Come, Herald, a handsome shield prepare
'Gainst which no true man may complain;
With rotund tub on field of vair;
A rampant mop with tasseled mane;
Le quarter trois? . . . A rub-board there;
And in the fourth, a laundry tree.
Proudly this 'scutcheon you may rear;

L'Envoy.

Princess, your granddam's chiefest care
Was next to Godliness; she'd dare
To scorn the scorner's mockery.
Her wash was white beyond compare;
—You're washtub aristocracy!

FOODS FOR BABIES.

BOTH growing children and their mothers can get along satisfactorily on a near vegetarian diet containing a minimum amount of meat and milk products, in the opinion of Dr. Dorothy E. Lane of San Francisco. She bases her opinion upon her experience. Her observations were carefully and scientifically checked.

In dieting pregnant women, in order to promote their own welfare and to protect their prospective offspring, she followed this plan:

After the fifth and until the beginning of the ninth month the woman was given one-tenth more food than she had had previously. In the last month of pregnancy she lived on a somewhat reduced diet. During the last half of the term a small square of butter daily, occasionally a little cream, and an egg or a small serving of meat once a week constituted the only foods of animal origin.

Other than this the diet consisted of peas, lentils, peanuts, whole wheat flour, and foods made with it, bran, shorts, almonds, figs, oranges, bananas, tomatoes, green lettuce, raw green cabbage, raw celery, raw carrots, cauliflower, sweet and white potatoes. No prunes, plums, cranberries, spinach, nor manufactured cane sugar were used, and all pastries were avoided. Oils and dressings were used on salads. A teaspoonful of cod liver oil was given daily. One woman on this diet gained twenty pounds.

Newly born babes were breast fed by mothers eating this diet. If it was necessary to give a baby an artificial food a modified lactic acid milk was used. In a short while, whether the baby was getting mother's milk or lactic acid cow's milk, some vegetable milk was added to the diet. At five months of age the babies had been shifted from animal to vegetable milk. All babies old enough to have it were given fruit juice and then, a little later, cod liver oil was added.

A typical diet for a child 18 months of age and some months older was:

10 a. m.—4½ ounces orange juice.

4 p. m.—4½ ounces orange juice.

In order to balance these diets she gave rather large portions of cod liver oil and orange juice. A child three months of age got 1 teaspoonful of cod liver oil and 1 tablespoonful of orange juice at each of five feedings. At 2 years of age, 11 ounces of orange juice daily and 3 dessertspoons of cod liver oil three times a day. At 8 months of age children were getting some vegetable in addition to the vegetable milk.

ABOUT IODINE.

O. G. writes: An osteopath, in a lecture, claimed that iodine is filth. Another says that iodine in this country is made mostly from fertilizer.

1. What is iodine, the 7 per cent solution in alcohol?
2. How is iodine procured here and abroad?
3. Can iodine be used with assurance that it is safe and pure as sold in drug stores?
4. What is the standing of iodine?

REPLY.

1. Iodine is a mineral like iron. It is found in rocks, in the soil, and in water. Sea water is rich in it, as are animals and plants that live in sea water. Vegetables have a varying content of iodine, dependent mostly on where they are grown. What is commonly called tincture of iodine is a solution of the mineral in alcohol.
2. Mostly from seaweed and sea water; partly from mineral compounds of different salts. Neither A nor B is right. They are about the length of the alphabet from the truth.
3. Yes, within limits. Since alcohol evaporates old tincture is apt to be too strong. By "assurance that it is safe and pure" I assume you mean that it contains nothing but alcohol and iodine.
4. Excellent, in its field.

JUST IGNORE IT.

Mrs. E. H. W. writes: My little daughter, 3½ years old, frequently walks on her toes like a toe dancer. Should I encourage this habit or forbid it?

REPLY.

Neither. Take no notice of it. See that others follow the same policy. This treatment will cure her and probably in a short time.

IT'S FORM OF CANCER.

M. M. P. writes: Will you describe sarcoma, its cause, and its effect upon a person?

REPLY.

Sarcoma is one of the forms of cancer, or rather, the sarcomas are forms of cancer. There are several kinds of sarcoma. They have the expected effects of malignant tumors.

LICENSED ENGINEERS.

Chicago, April 22. — [Friend of the People.]—I am a licensed engineer and would like to know how I would go about getting a job as a firemen or an engineer with the city or school board. What qualifications must I have? Must I take the civil service examinations? If so, when and where will same be held?

F. L. F.

No examinations are scheduled at this time for stationary firemen, stationary engineers, school firemen, or engineer custodians, original entrance. However, we have placed the name of the writer on our mailing list for notification of these examinations when called. A stationary engineer's license is required for the examination for stationary engineer and engineer custodian. Applicants for examinations must be citizens of the United States, more than 21 years of age, and residents of the city of Chicago for a period of at least one year immediately preceding date of examination.

Civil Service Commission.

COLLECTING JUDGMENT.

Chicago, April 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.] — A party owed a doctor $324 for services. He made payments right along until his wife was taken sick and rushed to the hospital for a serious operation. The doctor has now turned it over to a lawyer. This party had paid $123 off on the bill. 1. Now he was served with a judgment note of $448.50. This lawyer is going to take the little home they have. 2. Can he do it? This party did miss a couple of payments on account of his wife's sickness. 3. How can they collect $448.50 after he has paid $123 off and the bill was only $324?

E. P. R.

1. Your letter does not explain how the judgment comes to be larger than the amount due. Were the facts disputed? Or did the matter go by default? Or had the debtor signed a note agreeing to pay attorney's fee?
2. In general real estate can be sold subject to exemptions to satisfy a judgment. The homestead exemption is $1,000 worth.
3. See No. 1.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1895

CHEFOO, Feb. 28.—The Japanese are evacuating their advanced positions at Wei Hai Wei. Ning Hai, a town about midway between Wei Hai Wei and Chefoo, has been abandoned. The greater part of the Japanese army which captured Wei Hai Wei has embarked upon transports which have left the city for Tallenwan on the Liu Tung peninsula, almost directly across the Gulf of Pechili from Wei Hai Wei.

HIROSHIMA, March 1.—Field Marshal Count Oyama reports that he met the Chinese near Taping Shin and defeated them. He adds that on Feb. 24, 13,000 Chinese troops attacked Hai Chang, but were repulsed and retreated to Kin Kao.

HIROSHIMA, March 3.—Official dispatches say that on Feb. 28 the Japanese completed the occupation of the whole district of Sai Yen Tai as far as Ta Fu Kon. The Chinese retreated slowly north after one encounter.

SHANGHAI, March 3.—It is proposed that Li Hung Chang and Prince Kung, the Chinese peace envoys, be met by the Japanese representatives at Shimonoseki in the southern part of the island of Nippon, the largest island in Japan. If the credentials of the Chinese are found to be satisfactory the negotiations will be transferred to Hiroshima.

LONDON, March 5.—Peking dispatches confirm previous reports outlining the success of Li Hung Chang at the Chinese capital. They say that after tedious telegraphing through United States Minister Charles Denby the text of Li Hung Chang's credentials as peace envoy have been accepted by Japan. His powers to negotiate for peace are believed to be complete and with his actual commission signed he left Peking for Tientsin.

28 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 28, 1904.

PARIS.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Journal reports that a Russian submarine has sunk a Japanese transport which was convoying 600 men to Corea and that all the troops were lost.

LIAOYANG.—The Japanese troops which crossed the Yalu river north of Tchangdjiou charged during the night of April 26-27 the Russian position near Lizavena, a village on the Manchurian bank of the Yalu. They were repulsed, but their loss is not known. Two gunboats steamed up the river to the support of the Japanese and a Russian field battery at Amisam opened upon them. The Russian fire was so hot the gunboats were forced to turn and steam out of range after a twenty minute battle.

ST. PETERSBURG.—The Japanese, the general staff says, tried to cross the Yalu river at six or seven different points and succeeded at only one place.

LONDON.—The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Irkutsk, Siberia, says that the Japanese have blown up a portion of the railway at Khailar, but that the resultant damage is insignificant. Aside from this the situation in the vicinity of Port Arthur is unchanged.

CHICAGO.—The board of foreign missions of the Methodist Episcopal church has repudiated the gift of $80,000 proffered to it in the will of W. W. Cooper of Chicago and Kenosha. Mr. Cooper, an enthusiastic member of the church and interested in its missions, lost his life in the Iroquois fire on Dec. 30 last year. It is understood in Kenosha that the church board refused the bequest "because Mr. Cooper met his death in a place of amusement not countenanced by the church."

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 28, 1916.

LONDON.—Martial law has been declared throughout Ireland and Maj. Gen. Sir John Maxwell, who, until recently, commanded the troops in Egypt, has gone over to take charge. He has been given full powers for the suppression of the rebellion in Dublin which has spread to other parts of Ireland. Here in London, where Sir Roger Casement, his fellow conspirators and the twenty-two German members of the crew of the scuttled steamer that sank off the Kerry coast with a full cargo of arms are in prison, it is said that the authorities are in possession of papers that show a widespread plot in the United States as well as in Ireland and Germany. It seems that Casement's plots were laid with extraordinary minuteness in the United States. Germany had promised that rebel organizations in Ireland would be furnished munitions in abundance.

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico.—Gen. Alvaro Obregon will submit his assurances to Maj. Gen. Scott at their conference that the Carranza forces are now able to cope with the Villista bandits. He said he hoped to arrange for an early retirement of the American troops from Mexico. Gen. Obregon will arrive at Juarez at noon for the conference with Gen. Scott to be held on April 29.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—Gen. Carrasco, heretofore a Carranza follower, has started a revolution in southern Sinaloa against the president of the de facto government of Mexico, according to a report received by officials at the Mare island navy yard and borne out by advices from Guaymas.

CHICAGO.—Nicholas Hunt, chief of detectives, resigned his post and unless unforeseen developments come up the resignation will be accepted by the mayor.

BACK TO THE LAND.

Chicago, April 25.—The movement under way to help provide food for the unemployed by planting and cultivating gardens is good, in a way, but why not try to provide housing also?

In northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin there are a large number of idle farms of various sizes, made so by foreclosure, death or other similar circumstances. As most every one knows, property left unoccupied for any length of time decreases in value, the buildings become run down, generally making it an undesirable asset to the community.

While there is yet time to put in crops and start baby chicks, why cannot the owners of some of these idle farms give the free use of them for one year to reliable unemployed families with the provision that they keep up the buildings and cultivate at least part of the ground? This would provide a living for the occupant until the depression is relieved and it would also increase the sale value of the property.

My husband, a skilled mechanic, has been without employment, through no fault of his, for almost two years and our small savings are fast disappearing. Having been brought up on farms and knowing the ropes, we would welcome just such an opportunity, as also would several other families of our acquaintance, and to all of whom the word charity has a bitter flavor.

FLY-BY-NIGHT.

Chicago, April 25.—While the letter of F. F., published in your column on April 25, with the heading "The Moving Van Racket," is purported to characterize the activities of "certain moving van companies," it in fact stigmatizes and casts asperations upon all operators engaged in the business of furniture moving.

Assuming as true all of the facts contained in the communication, the acts complained of could only have been perpetrated by some fly-by-night company. Such acts are contrary to the established and recognized ethics of the moving industry in Chicago.

If F. F. or his sister will communicate with the Movers' Association of Chicago or with me, and will disclose the name of the company guilty of the acts complained of, I can assure you that a full and rigid investigation will be made, and if the guilty party happens to be a member of the Movers' Association of Chicago [which I am confident he is not], disciplinary action will be swift and reparation will be immediately forthcoming. It is for this purpose that the Movers' Association of Chicago was organized 31 years ago and it is for this purpose that it exists today; namely, for the protection of the moving public.

LOUIS D. DAVID,
General Counsel, Movers' Association of Chicago.

BASEBALL OR CONCERT!

Chicago, April 24.—If any one labors under a delusion of the high cultural state of this country of ours, let him consider the fact that it takes no less than five local radio stations to broadcast the same game of baseball, while one station is sufficient to broadcast the New York Philharmonic orchestra concert during the season. And even that single station must necessarily turn on to baseball before the concert season is over.

CHRIS A. PETERSEN.

SALES TAXES.

Chicago, April 25.—There appears to be a good deal of misunderstanding on the part of the people in general as to just what is meant by the manufacturers' sales tax which was incorporated in the original draft of the pending tax bills now before the senate.

The house of representatives provided that the tax be borne by the "last processor of the merchandise." It is the common belief that such a tax could be passed on to the ultimate consumer, yet certain members of congress advocated that the tax be absorbed by the manufacturer.

Another school of thought has been under the belief that the so-called manufacturers' sales tax was a general sales tax to be applied at point of final sale only. It is this latter belief which has created a great deal of confusion as to just what the intent of the bill was and as to what the effect might ultimately be.

If ultimately the revenue bill that must be passed in order to balance the budget contains a manufacturers' sales tax it will very likely have the opposite effect to what congress intends. It will prove to be of extreme hardship to a large majority of average size manufacturers whose profits are already very narrow or who are suffering from a deficit.

A general sales tax is one that would apply at the final point of sale and one which would be more likely to be equitable, since every one purchases goods at retail and if a tax as small as 1% were added to the retail price of a wide variety of articles it would be considered very nominal and yet would be instrumental in raising an enormous amount of revenue, probably far in excess of the six hundred million dollars that the house of representatives expected that the manufacturers' sales tax would raise. The manufacturers' sales tax was to be at 2½ per cent of the manufacturers' sales price.

We believe that some of the writers on economic subjects in your columns would be doing a real service to explain in greater detail than can be done in the small amount of space that is available to the writer the real difference between the so-called manufacturers' 2½ per cent sales tax and a general sales tax. It would enlighten a very large part of the public that ought to be better informed than it is at present.

FELIX VAN CLEEF.

BROADWAY.

Chicago, April 24.—As a subsequent move to the renaming of Wentworth avenue and Clark street to Broadway, would it also not be advisable to have the important intersections along the new Broadway designated as squares, the squares to take their names from the main intersecting streets or the names of adjoining buildings? For example, Madison and Broadway could be known as Madison square; Randolph, City Hall square; Chicago avenue, Metropolitan square; North avenue, Lincoln square or Lincoln Park plaza; La Salle street and Lincoln Park, La Salle square; Center street, Ogden square; Diversey, Broadway and Clark, George Rogers Clark square; Lawrence, Uptown square; Devon avenue, Loyola square, etc. This plan might also be followed to designate important intersections on South Broadway and would add, in no small measure, to the dignity and metropolitan aspect of our city.

BILL TO ABOLISH OATH ASSAILED IN THE IRISH DAIL

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, April 27. — President Eamon de Valera is not going to have the easy passage of his bill to repeal the oath to the British king that was expected. It is quite possible that he may be compelled to accept amendments to the measure before it is passed by the Dail Eireann.

This became apparent today when the dail began its debate of the bill which also seeks to remove the clause from the constitution requiring it and all subsequent legislation to conform to the terms of the treaty of 1921 between Great Britain and the Free State under which Ireland was given dominion status. Great Britain has taken the stand that if the dail passes De Valera's bill the treaty is violated and ceases to exist.

Labor Party Bolts.

It became apparent with the opening of the debate today that De Valera cannot depend on the vote of the Labor party, which holds the balance of power in the dail, and that Labor is not at all satisfied with his policy of putting a purely political and sentimental question, such as the oath, ahead of the serious economic condition of the country.

The Labor party went so far in this attitude as to defeat him today—his first legislative defeat since the election. The defeat arose out of De Valera's motion to devote all of the dail's time to discussion of the oath bill until it is passed, which is expected to be Friday.

Deputy Morrissey, Independent Laborite, immediately protested. He demanded a debate on the unemployment question tonight. De Valera was defeated in the subsequent vote, 74 to 66. All the regular Laborites, on whom he is relying to support him, voted against him. The opposition cried "Resign," but De Valera paid no attention and proceeded to open the debate on the oath bill.

Denies He Will Scrap Treaty.

De Valeras opening speech lasted half an hour. In it the president said he was only carrying out his election promises, but that he did not intend to scrap the treaty. He maintained that deletion of the oath was not an infraction of the pact.

Answering questions, however, he declared himself to be an unrepentant Republican and ready to "lead the Irish people into an independent republic the moment they are ready to go." His chief argument was that if the Irish legislature could not abolish the oath, then it is inferior and not co-equal with the other dominions, for no one has suggested that the parliaments at Westminster, Ottawa, or Canberra could not abolish their oaths if they so desired.

De Valera was followed by former President Cosgrave, leader of the opposition, who argued that Ireland is bound in honor by an international document and that whatever her legal rights might be, she would be forever dishonored if she broke the contract without even asking the consent of the other party—Great Britain.

Ridicules De Valera's Claims.

Desmond Fitzgerald, former minister of defense in the Cosgrave government, declared the bill a gross violation of the treaty and ridiculed De Valera's contention that the British could do nothing to keep Ireland in the empire.

The whole British policy, Fitzgerald declared, is governed by her concern for the safety of her food routes, and she would find some way of protecting them against a possibly hostile Ireland.

Fitzgerald ridiculed De Valera's statement that he wanted peace, and declared that he was driven by the Irish Republican army, Sinn Fein, Saor Eire, and other secret and sometimes communist societies to steps which would ruin Ireland and make her prey to subversive forces.

Asks Declaration of Policy.

The surprises of the debate were provided by two new and hitherto almost unknown members, independents, both bearers of famous Irish names. They were Frank McDermott, son and heir of The McDermott, ancient Irish chieftain, and Seumas Dillon, son of the Irish patriot, John Dillon.

McDermott, dressed faultlessly and speaking like the product of Oxford that he is, submitted an amendment urging that the government, before proceeding with the bill, declare its policy on separation from the empire. He declared that he was willing to separate if the majority of Irish people favored it, but declared that they were being led by subterfuge into something they have never been consulted about.

Moreover, he declared, the country is inexpressively sick of the waste of time on such questions while economic conditions are growing worse and worse. He said he was dissatisfied with the president's profession of faith.

Calls Bill an "Outrage."

"It is an outrage to abolish the link with the commonwealth without consulting the other members," he cried. "I suggest that the government go to the British government like men and say, 'There will never be any health in Ireland while this abominable treaty is the foundation of the constitution. Let's make a fresh start on the basis of the statue of Westminster. We will put it to our people if they want to remain in the commonwealth or not and you promise that you will not try to stop them if they want to go.'

"If you do that I don't believe any one in Britain but a few old generals and admirals would object and we would have the free choice of our own future."

Dillon accused De Valera of having told the people one thing during the election and now trying to make them believe that what he is doing is under their mandate, while really it was a different thing.

The De Valera bill, however, betrayed the promises of the Irish leader to the Irish people and dishonored Ireland, he declared, and he appealed to De Valera to accept amendments for a discussion of the situation with Britain and the other dominions.

JILTS COUSIN

INFANTA BEATRICE.

PARIS, April 27.—(AP)—The unofficial engagement of the former Princess Beatrice of Spain, daughter of former King Alfonso XIII., and her second cousin, Don Antonio Alvaro d'Orleans, has been definitely broken off.

Simultaneously it was reported that the duke of Spoleto, cousin of the king of Italy, was again seeking the hand of the first daughter of the long time Bourbon monarch. The duke, the son of the duchess of Aosta, is now in Rome, where the Princesses Beatrice and Cristina are visiting members of the royal family.

Royalist sources here said that Cyril, brother of the king of Bulgaria, was also in Rome with the idea possibly of seeking marriage with one of the Spanish princesses.

ABILITY TO PAY HELD FACTOR IN MEDICAL COSTS

3 Doctors Stress Issue Before Society.

The problem of medical costs was discussed from various angles by three physician speakers last night at a meeting of the Chicago Medical society in the Medical and Dental Arts building. All agreed that the patient's ability to pay must be considered in the future in determining the size of his doctor bill.

"The American citizen desires to be self-supporting, although he may temporarily find himself without funds in these times," said Dr. R. G. Leland, director of the bureau of medical economics of the American Medical association. "He hesitates to ask for free service, and physicians may well consider whether the interests of the public and the profession will not be best conserved by continuing to care for this class of patients, temporarily financially embarrassed, on some deferred payment plan rather than force them to seek free service.

Might Doom Private Practice.

"Once the public is educated to accept free medical care it becomes problematical whether it will revert to the private practicing physician when it shall again attain a paying status.

"The organized profession has no desire to obstruct reasonable and honest efforts to provide the best medical care for persons receiving low incomes. If the profession will unite in a well coördinated action to study medical economics to find means whereby the public can secure the best possible medical service at prices that can be met by all classes, another medical milestone will have been reached."

Because of the illness of Dr. Arthur T. Holbrook of Milwaukee, his paper was read by Dr. Herman L. Kretschmer, president-elect of the Chicago Medical society.

"Much of the present misunderstanding of the problem of medical costs has been caused by the failure of the physician and his patient to be absolutely frank concerning the amount of hospital conveniences, extra nursing, and other services the patient's income will provide," Dr. Holbrook's statement read.

"When through judicious questioning the doctor is able to balance more accurately the cost of being sick with the ability of the patient to pay, the problem of medical costs will be a long step nearer solution."

Dr. Fishbein Speaks.

Discussing medical advertising, Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the American Medical Association Journal, pointed out that the medical profession today is attempting to supply newspapers with material concerning medical progress and for the good of the public health. Through such organized methods the injustice of advertising individual physicians is eliminated, he asserted.

"Corporations should not compete unfairly with the individual practitioner by announcements planned primarily to sell the services of the corporation when the corporation cannot render such service to greater advantage than the individual," he said. "The appeal particularly on the basis of price rather than quality of service is a menace."

Hospitals Face Business Crisis.

Hospitals are facing a crisis in business administration because of the decrease in pay patients and the increase of charity work, J. Dewey Lutes, president of the Hospital Association of Illinois, told 300 delegates to a joint meeting of the Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin associations in the Hotel Sherman yesterday. "In one Chicago hospital alone there has been a decrease of 18 per cent in revenue from pay patients and an increase of 10 per cent in charity patients," said Mr. Lutes.

Edward Rowlands, vice president of the Indiana association, said the standardization of hospital charges is necessary to overcome constant ill feeling among patients, who cannot understand why one institution charges more, or less, than another.

JANITOR GETS YEAR IN CELL ON GIRLS' CHARGES

Accused of Luring Children to Flat.

Municipal Judge Francis B. Allegretti yesterday sentenced James Green, 41 years old, 7322 South Shore drive, a janitor, to the Bridewell for one year for contributing to the delinquency of a child. He was accused of indecent conduct.

The south side has been alarmed during the last several weeks due to more than a dozen attacks on women and young girls and Judge Allegretti called attention to this in the trial in the Grand Crossing court.

"There was an instance recently of a young man and a young woman riding in an automobile being halted by two men of the most vicious type," Judge Allegretti said. "They were forced to ride to a lonely prairie where the girl was most brutally treated.

"The contemptible creatures who have been committing these crimes boasted of their misdeeds. The men of the south side should be up in arms to protect womanhood. The police should catch those depraved morons and speedy justice should be administered."

Green was arrested on the complaint of the mother of an 11 year old girl. He had enticed several little girls into his basement flat, according to the testimony. Green's defense was that the children happened into the basement while he was undressing and his employer said he was of good reputation. Two girls testified, however, that he had called them into the basement.

A charge also was made against Green that he had taken liberties with a 5½ year old girl. The child was in court, but Judge Allegretti found it impossible to obtain from her sufficient evidence for conviction.

Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker ordered that Green be sent to the bureau of identification for further investigation before being taken to the House of Correction.

THE WHISPERER

By ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

"The 'Whisperer' Crimes" have held London terrorized for months. Numerous wealthy persons have been kidnaped and held for ransom. The ransom victim is sent a small wireless receiving set, by means of which the "Whisperer" speaks, using his own short wave, and gives directions for delivering the ransom demanded. Police dare not interfere, because death results for the captive if directions are not carried out.

Joyce Merrow, engaged to Roland Blatch, secretary to Sir Henry Glazeborough, M. P., a leading philanthropist, is taken captive. In Roland's keeping are valuable jewels, donated to Sir Henry to be sold for charity. Roland is forced to steal them for the bandit to insure the safe return of his beloved. When Joyce is again safely home, Roland decides to accept an offer from the bandit to join his band and try to recover the jewels. He is sent to an address where a woman named Connie gives him a facial treatment which alters his appearance. Roland reports every day to Connie, where the Whisperer talks to him through a telephone loud speaker, but remains hidden from view. He is assigned the task of collecting ransom from Lord Whiddon, whose wife is held captive, and is involved in the killing of Lady Whiddon when her husband fails to meet the Whisperer's demands. Roland follows Connie and finds the Whisperer's hideout. He sees Sir Henry leaving and is faced with the staggering truth that the Whisperer is none other than Sir Henry himself.

INSTALLMENT XVI.

A NEW VICTIM SELECTED.

Roland's German was a bit rusty for he had no need to keep it up since leaving school, but he managed a translation.

"Parradine Gas Masks. Two in this package. Instructions:—Draw felt over the head and fasten tightly with tape below chin. To exhale grip mouthpiece between teeth."

"Just what I want!" muttered Roland and tucked the package under his arm.

There was that other room on the other side of the staircase. Perhaps that was the very room in which Joyce herself had been imprisoned—in which Lady Whiddon had spent her last few hours on earth.

Slowly he faced the fact that he was caught——

The next moment there was no doubt about it. The room had been described before by victims who had been released.

Although it was very dusty, it was a pleasant room. There was a note almost of luxury in its fittings. Even the door, as he stepped into the room to examine it, closed behind him on silent pneumatic springs.

The only suggestion that the room was a prison was in the window itself, which was crisscrossed with steel bars, behind which was the further protection of wire netting, so that the frosted glass window could not be broken. Near the window was an elaborate washbasin with running water. There were sofas and chairs covered with chintz and an occasional table with a number of illustrated weeklies and a bookcase well stocked. Over the mantelpiece was a loudspeaking telephone disc, a replica of the one he had noticed in the Whisperer's room, smaller and less elaborate than the one in Connie's room behind the shop.

Roland shivered. The room gave him the creeps. In spite of its practical modern note, it seemed to be haunted with the ghost of Lady Whiddon and those three others, who had either been murdered in the room itself or had passed from it straight to their death.

He had stayed long enough—had seen all that he needed to see, to lay his evidence before the police. He would not, on second thought, say anything about Sir Henry Glazeborough. He would just report—anonymously, for his own sake—that he had found the headquarters of the Whisperer.

The doorknob turned in his hand—but the door did not open. He pressed on the knob and turned again—with the same result. Then he noticed that there was no keyhole.

Fascinated, he stared down at it. It was a single, comparatively common device. The door had neither lock nor bolt—but it would open only from the outside.

At that moment his anxiety was limited to getting out without leaving any traces behind him. The door, he imagined, would not ultimately give him any great difficulty. He had forgotten that the room had been used to imprison men as well as women, and that the first thing that would occur to a man would be to use his weight and strength to break down the door.

Roland took out his penknife and unscrewed the knob. It was a dummy knob and had no effect on the mechanism. He put his hand quite lightly against the panel to feel its strength. Then with quick suspicion he drove the point of the knife into the panel.

Then he stood back, gasping, as if that tiny movement had been a great effort. For the knife had revealed the truth. There was an eighth of an inch of woodwork covering a door of steel. Then, frantically, he hurled his full weight on the panel but the door did not even shake.

Slowly he faced the fact that he was caught—that he could do nothing.

* * * * *

It was a little before six that evening when Connie returned to Maviste's. She smiled graciously to the young girl behind the counter.

"You can go now, Jessie. I'll lock up."

She saw the girl off the premises, locked the shop door, then went into the inner room. She was tired and she sat down in the client's chair—so very rarely occupied by a woman who wanted her hair dressed. At six o'clock the Whisperer's voice sounded through the loudspeaking telephone.

"All correct?"

"All correct, chief—but only just," she answered. "But I had to spend some money. Your letter of introduction from the Duchess didn't help me very much. The Harners are very democratic people."

"That surprises me. Those people are the first to fall for a title."

"Miss Harner didn't. Although she's only twenty she's very self-possessed. When I saw that line was going to fail I got off it quickly and worked the conversation 'round until I discovered that the Harners are quite poor. The Australian government is paying for that suite at the Savoy and the incidental expenses. The girl's dresses are fairly good but not very expensive. So I told her the Duchess was a shareholder, which made her laugh. Then I said that if she would let me do her hair and give me leave to tell my other clients I'd done it, the advertisement would be worth a hundred pounds to me. Of course, she's very ignorant of English ways—thinks her father is as well known here as he is in Australia—and she agreed. I gave her a hundred pounds on the spot—and I'm to be there, in her own room, at ten o'clock tomorrow."

"In her room—in a suite at the Savoy," repeated the voice. "How will that be of any use to us?

"Listen, Chief," she said anxiously, for the note of censure made her tremble. "At ten o'clock there is going to be a meeting in the sitting room of the suite, at which she will not be present. A deputation of manufacturers are coming to see her father. They are being introduced by Sir Henry Glazeborough. I found that out in conversation."

"I knew it already. Please go on."

"If you can put a car in the court of the Savoy I'll have that girl in it within ten minutes." She added hastily; "Please don't make me explain how. I know I can do it."

"Very well. I will give you a car—and Number Six shall drive it. As Miss Harner doesn't know London you can drive straight to the depot and we can deal with her in the garage. Number Six must wear a chauffeur's uniform. What time are you seeing him again?"

"I expect he will be at the flat when I get back."

"Then tell him to speak to me—in the room you're in now—at eleven-fifteen tonight."

"Very good, Chief!" she answered wearily. She had been looking forward to an evening with Number Six—with Roland Blatch.

She went out and had a hurried meal, then, with her usual precautions against being followed, drove back to her flat in Camden Town. She ran lightly up the little staircase from the garage and let herself into the flat.

"Coo-ee." It was the call of a happy girl. She was confident that Roland would answer it and they could at least have a little time to themselves before they need remind themselves of the grim duty that bound them together.

She was disappointed when she found the flat empty—then annoyed. To pass the time she picked up an evening paper. She did not read anything that had to do with the Whisperer—and there was still a very great deal about the latest outrage. She turned to the quieter parts of the paper and there saw a photograph of Miss Harner, the girl she had interviewed that afternoon in her father's suite at the Savoy.

"Miss Harner, whose father, Mr. Renbold Harner, is Minister of Development in the most progressive state in Australia. Mr. Harner has come to England at the request of his government with a special credit of £500,000 to place orders for British-made farm machinery."

Then, as an hour passed and another, and still Roland did not come, she became alarmed. There was no means of communicating with the Whisperer until eleven-fifteen. Alarm now had crowded out all other consideration.

She waited until eleven o'clock and then drove rapidly to Maviste's.

Even so she was late. As she burst into the inner room the voice was repeating monotonously on the telephone. "Number Six . . . Number Six."

"Hullo, Chief!"

"Where is Number Six?"

"He hasn't turned up. He hasn't been back to the flat all day."

There was a silence. She could not endure it and broke it again;

"He went out after breakfast this morning to get himself a new outfit, but not a single package has arrived at the flat. Has he been arrested, Chief?"

30,000 Women Back Meeting at 1933 Fair

Ruth Nichols Describes Plans at Tea.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

The voices of Chicago club women were raised 30,000 strong yesterday in an invitation to bring to the Century of Progress exposition representative women from all nations in an international congress of women.

RUTH NICHOLS. [Acme Photo.]

Signed by the 30,000 Chicagoans, the invitation was presented to Ruth Nichols, New York aviatrix, at a tea given for her in the Palmer house by the Chicago committee of the National Congress of Women. Miss Nichols arrived at the Chicago Airport Tuesday, this being her eighth stop on a 3,000 mile flight to collect the signatures of 1,000,000 women of the middle west and the east. The National Congress is composed of 5,000,000 members of twenty-four national women's organizations.

While she touched on aviation, Miss Nichols devoted most of her talk at the tea to the importance of bringing women together from all corners of the earth to promote a better international understanding. Of aviation she said:

"I am here because aviation is both my profession and my best loved pastime. Aviation is like the proposed international congress for women. It brings people together who have hitherto been strangers. It links New York with Los Angeles, Chicago with Buenos Aires, London with Paris and Berlin.

"I believe the international congress of women will accomplish the same thing," Miss Nichols continued. "It will bring together women of many countries. Perhaps they will be from countries which have viewed each other with jealousy or suspicion or fear. But suspicion arises usually from lack of understanding, and a great gathering like the congress will establish the kind of acquaintanceship which promotes understanding."

Miss Nichols was given a luncheon in the administration building of the Century of Progress by the trustees. The affair was attended by the Chicago group representing the National Congress of Women, headed by Mrs. Clarence G. Goodwin, Mrs. Francis Broomel, president of the Wellesley club of Chicago; Dorothy Schmidt, president of the Junior league, and others. Rufus C. Dawes, chairman of the Century of Progress, presided. An inspection of the World's Fair grounds followed and Miss Nichols was shown the site of the social service building which will house the international congress of women.

Man Tells About Woman's Cruelty to Opposite Sex

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Man's injustice to woman is given a humorous twist in an article by an anonymous contributor in an English poper. It's worth setting down here, so we women may see ourselves as others see us:

"For many years," says the writer, addressing women in general, "you have jibbed most strenuously at the alleged one-sidedness of marriage. You have been described as 'chattel,' 'drudge,' and so on. So, let's see how one-sided the matrimonial state really is."

Our accuser proceeds to remind women that at their discretion the word "obey" may be deleted from the marriage service. They have abrogated to themselves the right to decide if and when they will bear their husbands a child. They may go out and work if they wish, but men have to pay the income tax, though the women may retain every penny of their wages for themselves.

Should women contribute any or all their income to the maintenance of the home, their luckless husbands had better never have been born, the writer thinks. Said wives inevitably will proclaim from the housetops the part they play in the domestic weal. Never will they permit the opportunity to pass of informing husbands of their self-sacrifice and nobility in being, in fact, what they promised at the altar, a helpmeet in times of adversity.

Continuing, the protesting gentleman doth proclaim that there is no law to compel women to look after the home, should there be no necessity or excuse for her working away from the home. The law does not insist that the woman cook, darn, polish or scrub. If servants are employed there is nothing to prevent the woman from spending her days playing golf in the morning, bridge in the afternoon and dancing all night. If the husband objects, the wife may up and leave him on the score of mental cruelty.

And that isn't the half of it, my sisters. Men reviewing the injustice charge see something incongruous in woman's demanding chivalry under the current woman-in-business position, woman's aggressiveness in general. What men would like to see happen is summed up thus by the anonymous speaker for the male side of the house:

"We would like to restore the habit among women of regarding men as the stronger sex. We would like you to be as you were a score of years ago—difficult to catch, but easy to hold. Today, alas, you are so easy to catch that half the time you are not worth holding.

"You have surrounded yourself with a wall of artificiality. You scorn the simple delights that make life worth while. You are demanding further latitude, greater freedom and increased rights. But when it comes to a matter concerning our chivalry you never fail to remind us that you are a woman and entitled to the utmost respect."

All of which complaining on man's part might serve to suggest to us women that maybe they have a case against us after all. Well, anyway, half a case.

Many Confuse Rock Gardens, Piles of Rock

Some Hunt Materials on Shores of Lake.

BY PAUL POTTER.

There's a rather new classification of hobbyists that needs "writing up" and upon having been exposed to a few of them first hand on several occasions in recent weeks, it seems that the garden department is the place to give them publicity.

We refer to the "beach combers" the lakes and streams hereabouts, the gardeners in search of rocks for rock gardening. The situation has reached the point where the rock gardeners drive in search of vacant lots to carry on the hunt.

Several ardent fans of the rock garden craze tell me they have found the shores of Grant, Lincoln and Jackson parks poor pickings this spring. So many others have been there ahead of them.

This is an extreme that is causing some true lovers of rock gardens to develop a headache. It is evident that nature could never have supplied the motif for many city rock gardens. Really good rock gardens still are hard to find in the metropolitan area.

In general there are only about five kinds of rock suited to good garden formations. These are the glaciated bowlders, possibly broken up with the years; the igneous rocks, such as granites; the more popular rock called tufa, that is porous and light; the eroded sedimentary stones showing water action, and the sedimentary rocks, such as sandstone and limestone.

To weld these rocks into a true reproduction of nature is the artistic task of the rock gardener. The rock garden we have in mind as the real type to strive for provides a place for rock plants to grow. Where a corner of the yard, a slope or terrace, or a walled effect is to be built up, another treatment than the true rock garden is needed.

There are many authorities on rock gardens who insist that in order to produce an artistic and correct garden of this sort one must have studied the natural contours and development of rock plants to be seen in the wooded hills or quarries a day's drive or so from Chicago. After being in contact with some of the "beach combers" and seeing their handiwork, one is tempted to agree with these critics.

Children Often Lack Appetite at Breakfast

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Question: "My little boy is of kindergarten age and we are having struggles over breakfast. He often eats only half of it. Would you try keeping him home if he doesn't eat it?"

Answer: No, I should not keep him home to enforce the eating. Children frequently do not have much appetite in the mornings. I once solved a similar problem by changing the breakfast menu completely to tempt a laggard appetite, even to the point of omitting cereal and serving hot vegetables. We can use other foods at breakfast time than the usual breakfast foods.

Children grow tired of the same things, just as we do. Instead of making detailed suggestions I'd like you to be sure that he is not hurried or upset at breakfast time, and then read "Cultivating the Child's Appetite," by C. B. Aldrich, M. D.

Question: "I just can't hurry my boy—he's 7. He gets up early enough for school, but just has to be hurried. Takes his time dressing. Takes his time in the bathroom. Just hate this continual, 'Hurry! Hurry! You'll be late!' It really worries me now. What can I do?"

Answer: I do not think there is anything to worry about. Children at this age often go through this phase of being unable to hurry, and it is quite true that they have no conception of time. Hurry is a useless, grown-up word which has little reality to them.

For a while I'd omit the constant prodding. Then I'd plan carefully so that your small son has plenty of time for each operation—in fact, more than enough time. Children need leeway. Then, occasionally, I'd stress the fact in a friendly way that you, or his class, or teacher, perhaps, are inconvenienced by unnecessary slowness."

Stamps are NEWS

You need not be a philatelist to understand and appreciate stamps. Stamps are interesting because they bring news of men, events and places . . . because they have interesting historical and geographical backgrounds . . . because they tell absorbing stories with fascinating pictures.

Every Saturday The Sun publishes an illustrated feature called The Stamp Collector. It shows and describes the new stamps, refers to their historical and political significance, reports the stamp exhibits and the activities of the stamp clubs, and records in an interesting manner all the important events in the stamp world. The Sun probably publishes more up-to-date, live stamp news than any other newspaper.

For $1.50 you can have the Saturday issues of The Sun containing The Stamp Collector sent to you every week for a whole year . . . and in addition to the stamp news the Saturday Sun will bring you a wealth of valuable information through special pages and features on Antiques, Books, Art, Music, Gardens and other interesting subjects. It will bring you also the popular feature called It Happened This Week, which gives in five brief columns a summary of the world's events.

Home Treatments Can Rid the Face of Small Imperfections

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

In removing blackheads with one of the little instruments known as comedone extractors, correspondents sometimes complain of skin bruises. It must be said in fairness to the implement that it is not its fault, but the nonprofessional method of its handling. And in all probability due, too, to the desire to remove too many of these facial blemishes at a time.

If one feels inexpert in handling the small implement, it is better to take a clean bit of linen, such as a small hanky, lay it over the operating fingers and extract the blackheads with finger pressure. But do not let enthusiasm run away with you. Just remove a few at a time, whether you use the instrument or fingers.

And be sure the extractor is sterilized before using and that the linen bit is immaculately clean. If by any chance, then, you bruise the skin, you'll avoid infection trouble which often ensues with careless blackhead removal. And for safety sake, always apply an antiseptic to the surface before and after removing blackheads.

It cannot be said that blackheads are always the result of careless washing. But in nine cases out of ten they result from this very thing. Diet has a good deal to do with regulating the glands and keeping them in healthy state of operation. But even so, with expert local care the difficulty may be minimized. The best way to prevent blackhead formation in the biginning is to keep the skin surface clean and keep the blood underneath stimulated so that the pores automatically throw off the impurities, as it is their job to do.

When the blackheads become deeply imbedded and heavy in numbers it is too late to depend on face washing alone. Steaming the face a couple of times a week is good if you follow with the extraction of those blackheads that now come out easily. But don't put too much pressure on. Wait until the next steaming for another attempt at the stubborn ones. And always after the steaming finish the washing treatment with as cold water as you can stand. There's nothing like cold water to stimulate the action behind these hardened little cheese formations and loosen their hold.

It's possible in some cases to fight the stubborn blackheads with cleansing cream or oil. This may soften the substance embedded in the pore opening.

New Raincoats Cause Prayer for Downpour

Something Has Been Done About the Weather.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

SADIE THOMPSON, the gal that made "rain" famous, should see the new raincoats . . . slick new things that will shed rain and water like a duck . . . new models that are as gaudily efficient as their barbaric colors. There's no excuse for dull, droppy, bedraggled rainy day shoppers this spring or coming [?] summer with all these snappy new slickers around the town . . . priced so low that they fairly cry to be bought.

Even a dry will vote for such wet costume equipment after looking the new collections over with a Chicago weather eye open for cheerful new ideas that will shine when it rains. Even though a lot has been said about the weather, contrary to the famous man who wittily said very little was ever done about it . . . a lot really has been thought about adequate rainproofing effects in the way of coats.

For instance, away back when an umbrella was almost a small tent, some canny Scotchman squandered a lot of candlelight and time perfecting the voluminous mackintosh that certainly was not a thing of beauty or chic, but it certainly covered the anatomy and various ankle defects most efficiently, and how those atrocities could hang on to life.

But nowadays you'll be singing in the rain, damply speaking, when you wear these good looking new gloom chasers . . . you'll even try some yodeling in the bathtub when you know your new 1932 rainproof hangs without! What good rain hater could resist the new corduroy raincoats that look just like a smart English sports coat? . . . It's an ideal addition to the wardrobe of those who shiver and chill even when the raindrops steam, for it is warmly lined with contrasting checked wool . . . it is designed to look like a snappy military greatcoat with a swanky big collar, cuffs, and capacious pockets. You can ask for your most becoming colors without any of the usual and former disappointing news that the coats were only available in two or three shades.

Another new wet preventive is the slicker that looks exactly like it were made of cellophane . . . colored cellophane that is transparent and as thin as a much used depression dime . . . these slickers have many improvements on the old models that did such a distressing job of sticking together when you needed them the most . . . the new ones don't stick even after months spent in the seclusion of a clothes closet . . . they are made with wide lapels and wide collar and you can pull them snugly close around your waistline with a wide belt.

Others look like linen and silk . . . a sort of fabric texture that doesn't shine, but efficaciously protects and fends off wind and weather and water . . . these, too, have pockets that will hold a lot of extras. They have harmonizing colored linings and cuffs that can be buttoned tightly over wrists.

And for the shoppers who have never forgotten the warm and dry comfort of the light tan trenchcoat . . . there are plenty of these this year . . . a bit lighter in weight and delightfully more supple and very smartly fashionable in a lovely beige tone. The best coverall of them all is the newest ensemble . . . a brilliant red raincoat of crash texture . . . a smart little beret tam of the same fabric, and a short but snappy umbrella of the same color and style . . . this is a discovery for the knowing water sprite that can't stay on land without a fashionable ensemble, assembled according to the mode of the moment!

Clara Bow Gets New Contract to Re-enter Films

Hollywood, Cal., April 27.—[Special.]—Clara Bow this afternoon signed a contract to resume her film career after more than a year in retirement. She signed with the Fox studio for one film, to be titled "They Call Her Savage," and the contract contains an optional agreement for further films if the studio desires to exercise it.

Richard Barthelmess, motion picture star, accepted the changed economic conditions in the movie industry today by signing a new contract which will give him only $58,333 for each film he makes, instead of $87,500, as in the past. His annual salary will stay at $175,000, but for the next two years Barthelmess will make three films each year instead of two for First National-Warner studio.

Hollywood, Cal., April 27.—(AP)—From an authoritative source a statement came today that Paramount studios have started preparation of a suit for $100,000 damages against Josef von Sternberg, insurgent film director.

Earlier in the day an announcement was made that the studio would sue Von Sternberg for losses incurred when the director walked out during the preparation of a picture for Marlene Dietrich, German star.

Library Association Selects Fifty Notable Books for 1931

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

THE fifty sheep of last year's literary output were recently selected from the goats by the American Library association with the help of a group of authors and critics among whom were Sinclair Lewis, Christopher Morley, Stephen Vincent Benet, Henry Seidel Canby, and Lewis Mumford. A list of "Fifty Notable Books of 1931" was voted on at the 54th annual conference of the American Library association at New Orleans, and has just been made public.

There were a few books which were chosen without a single dissenting vote. In fiction Willa Cather's "Shadows on the Rock" [which by the way is my candidate for the year's Pulitzer prize for fiction] and Pearl S. Buck's "The Good Earth" which is probably the book which will receive the award as Miss Cather has been honored in the past. Both novels are fine, noble pieces of work, both eminently worthy of laurel-wreathing.

In history "The Epic of America" by James Truslow Adams, "Only Yesterday" by Frederick Lewis Allen and "The Forty Niners" by Archer Butler Hulbert were unanimously chosen. The Pulitzer award in history is liable to go to "The Epic of America."

In the field of belles lettres and art three books were unanimously chosen: "Fatal Interview" by Edna St. Vincent Millay, the volume of poetry which will probably carry off the Pulitzer poetry wreath; "Mourning Becomes Electra" by Eugene O'Neill which will make its author again the Pulitzer drama prize recipient [if I'm not a bad prophet] and "Axel's Castle, a Study of Imaginative Literature of 1870-1930" by Edmund Wilson.

Lincoln Steffens' "Autobiography" was the only biography unanimously chosen and it too is slated for Pulitzer honors.

I talk so much about the Pulitzer awards because they are due now any moment and every one is speculating about them.

One other book was chosen unanimously. In the field of science Raymond Ditmar's "Snakes of the World" [believe it or not, it is a fascinating volume].

HISTORY.

"The Epic of America" by James Truslow Adams.
"Only Yesterday" by Frederick Lewis Allen.
"Forty-Niners," by Archer Butler Hulbert.
"Martial Spirit, a Study of our War with Spain" by Walter Millis.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS.

"Survey of American Foreign Relations, 1931" by Charles P. Howland.
"Can Europe Keep the Peace" by Frank Herbert Simonds.

SOCIAL SCIENCE.

"Dynamite; the Story of Class Violence in America" by Louis Adamic.
"On Understanding Women" by Mary Ritter Beard.
"Law and Literature, and other Essays and Addresses" by Benjamin Nathan Cardozo.
"Representative Opinions of Mr. Justice Holmes" by Oliver Wendell Holmes.
"Making of Citizens" by Charles Edward Merriam.
"The Dry Decade" by Charles Merz.
"Life Among the Low-Brows," by Eleanor Rowland Wembridge.

ECONOMICS AND BUSINESS.

"Soviet Challenge to America" by George Sylvester Counts.
"The Problem of Unemployment" by Paul H. Douglas and Aaron Director.
"America Weighs Her Gold" by James Harvey Rogers.
"Modern Economic Society" by Sumner Hubert Slichter.
"America's Way Out" by Norman Mattoon Thomas.

SCIENCE.

"Reason and Nature" by Morris Raphael Cohen.
"Snakes of the World" by Raymond Lee Ditmars.
"Up from the Ape" by Earnest Albert Hooton.
"The Insect Menace" by Leland Ossian Howard.

PHILOSOPHY.

"Philosophy and Civilization" by John Dewey.
"The Contemporary and His Soul" by Irwin Edman.

"Nogushi" by Gustav Eckstein.
"Living My Life" by Emma Goldman.
"Jean-Jacques Rousseau" by Matthew Josephson.
"Newton D. Baker" by Frederick Palmer.
"Theodore Roosevelt" by Henry Fowles Pringle.

"Classic Americans" a Study of Eminent American Writers from Irving to Whitman," by Henry Seidel Canby.
"Men of Art" by Thomas Craven.
"Fatal Interview" by Edna St. Vincent Millay.
"Brown Decades, a Study of the Arts in America" by Lewis Mumford.
"Mourning Becomes Electra" by Eugene O'Neill.
"American Humor; a Study of the National Character" by Constance Mayfield Rourke.
"Axel's Castle" by Edmund Wilson.
"Modern Architecture" by Frank Lloyd Wright.

TRAVEL.

"Mexican Maze" by Carleton Beals.
"Mexico,' a Study of Two Americas," by Stuart Chase and Marian Tyler.
"Red Bread" by Maurice Hindus.
"Great Plains" by Walter Prescott Webb.

FICTION.

"The Good Earth" by Pearl S. Buck.
"Shadows on the Rock" by Willa Cather.

Oddly enough no books on psychology or applied science or religion are on the list, as formerly, but on the other hand there are titles in economics, business and sociology, which shows which way the literary winds are blowing.

D. A. R. to Mark Grave of Katherine Alden Gardner

Daughters of the American Revolution will dedicate a marker on the grave of Mrs. Katherine Alden Gardner, a descendant of John and Priscilla Alden, at 1 o'clock Saturday at Rosehill cemetery. Mrs. Gardner was born in 1819, a daughter of Ebenezer Alden, a soldier in the revolutionary war. Chicagoans who are descended from the Aldens are invited to attend.

Good Morning!

Wet or dry, I think you'll concede "The Wet Parade" to be an excellently produced and entertaining movie.

Adapted from Upton Sinclair's novel, the film, with remarkable agility, straddles the fence of controversy, and impartially presents the subject as seen on both sides. It paints the horrors of drunkenness and, just as vividly depicts a nation's throes under the plague of Volsteadian epilepsy.

It can't be said that the picture settles anything, for it ends on the note—"I wonder." So, for that matter, though you felt the author favored prohibition, did the book? But it gives all the devils their dues—which is, you will admit, in the nature of an achievement.

The action starts down in the hard-drinking south and bring a lovable old aristocrat, Roger Chilcote, to his alcoholic death—in a pig sty. Call it symbolic if you care to. Her father's fate turns his adoring young daughter, Maggie May, into a rabid prohibitionist, and she comes up north to guide her brother, a playwright, who is "afther," as the Irish say, following in his father's footsteps. Here she meets the nice young, liquor-hating son of a northern ne'er-do-well, Pow Tarleton, whose addiction to the flowing cup has made a boarding house keeper of Kip's gentle mother and a boarding house clerk of himself.

Comes prohibition—and tragedy on ITS heels . . . Kip becomes a dry snooper [an honest one] and Maggie May a snooper's bride.

There's a lot more to the story—but why tell it here when McVicker's screen is just bursting with details?

The cinema version differs in some respects from Mr. Sinclair's novel—but to no disadvantage. I disliked exceedingly having May turn lecturer—in the book. On the screen she doesn't. That's just one instance. There are others.

"The Wet Parade" is extraordinarily well staged and atmospheric [I know I overwork that word, but what other is there that means what I mean?]. Direction is honest and astute and the cast—with the possible exception of Neil Hamilton, whom I found rather hammy—a humdinger.

Honors go to Lewis Stone and Walter Huston as the two old sots, Dorothy Jordan as ardent, pioneering Maggie May, Robert Young—he was the son in "The Sin of Madelon Claudet"—remember?—as the dry son of a most awfully wet father, and Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante as, believe it or not, a noble federal agent who gives up his life for his friend.

While the picture is melodrama at its melo-ist, it never goes ten, twent', thirt', and it has some punches that are haymakers!

If you're wet, take a dry with you to see "Wet Parade"—and vice versa. It'll give the two of you something to argue about till the cows come home.

See you tomorrow.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., April 27.—[Special.]—Mrs. Gann was the honor guest at a luncheon today given by members of the National Women's Country club in the quaint club house on Bradley boulevard. Mrs. Walter H. Tuckerman, president of the club, presided and among the fifty members in the company were Mrs. Warren Austin, wife of the senator from Vermont; Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, Mrs. Mark L. Bristol, Mrs. Harry P. Huse, Mrs. Harry K. Daugherty, Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, Mrs. John L. Chamberlain, Mrs. Jouett Shouse, Mrs. Charles Mason Remey, and Mrs. Sherman P. Allen.

Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Lamont had guests dining informally with them last evening.

Senator John S. Cohen of Georgia who succeeded the late Senator William J. Harris, accompanied by Mrs. Cohen, their son and daughter, John S. Cohen Jr., and Mrs. Charles D'Orme Jr., of Atlanta, arrived yesterday in Washington and are at the Mayflower. The senator took the oath of office at noon. Mrs. Cohen will return tomorrow to New York where she has been for the early spring.

Mrs. Lewis, wife of Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Chicago, addressed the League of American Pen Women yesterday.

Tall Brunette Is Selected as Blossom Queen

Grand Rapids Girl Can't Believe It's True.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Benton Harbor, Mich., April 27.—[Special.] — Something unusual, a beauty who takes the business of being a beauty queen as a sort of hilarious joke, won over twenty-five blooming girls, many of whom had tears in their beautiful blue and brown eyes before the annual selection of a Michigan Blossom festival queen was over tonight.

Miss Margery Noble Crampton, just 18, of Grand Rapids, a tall brunette with merry brown eyes and a smile which dazzled her audience, won in the ninth round of elimination over a blond and a blue-eyed brunette.

Called on for a speech, she said: "I might come to in the morning and believe this is so, but I can't do it now."

Back stage she laughed and said: "Can't take this seriously. You know, the little blond is lots prettier than I am. Guess I get this for being tall."

The "little blond" was Miss Battle Creek, Ione Merrill, whose home town supporters in the audience yelled lustily, "Battle Creek, stick in the fight," before she smilingly gave way and was named third.

Number two in the judges' choice was Miss Benton Harbor, or Dorothy Allerton, who said she didn't know whether she was blond or brunette. She was pretty though, as Mayor Cermak and the other four judges as well as the audience testified to.

At each appearance the contestants walked out in twos, circled the stage in languid, seductive steps or with indifferent walk but ravishing smile, and tried to break the hearts of the judges. Then, after the contest was all over, the smile-weary beauties were herded together back stage by the theater manager, Elwyn M. Simons, and commanded not to leave the stage, to pose for pictures, or kiss fond parents. No, sir, not with another audience coming in the theater.

So the beauties waited until a second curtain went up, when they smiled all over again for the crowd which couldn't get in the theater at the first performance.

After Miss Grand Rapids had made her little speech, Mayor Cermak was called upon. The mayor confined himself to the beauty of cities, however, describing Benton Harbor and St. Joseph as the most beautiful cities on this side of the lake, Chicago as the most beautiful on the other side.

He and Max Schmeling, heavyweight champion who arrived with the mayor, were applauded loudly, almost stealing the show from the beauties. Herr Schmeling told some one during the course of the evening he was disappointed it was not to be a bathing beauty contest.

The contest was not a mild affair. Quite early in the evening the crowds were shouting when Miss Kalamazoo, Grace Marks, in an orchid flat crêpe evening dress just a shade lighter than her eyes, appeared with the healthy blond beauty, Stella Grynwich. Stella played a responsible rôle, as she represented not one but three towns; Harbert, Lakeside, and Sawyer, or Chikaming township.

Another pair which always brought shouts of approval included Miss Battle Creek, whose blue lace dress clung to her slim hips and made her hair look more yellow, and Miss Paw Paw, or Lillian Tellem.

And little Miss Buchanan, Pauline Hartsell, an orphan child with a fairy princess look about her, with wide blue eyes and graceful carriage, was only eliminated by the judges over shouts of "no" by the audience. Likewise was pert Miss St. Joseph, Leontine Renner, one of the most popular girls, and Miss Sturgis, Betty Tooley, a languid beauty dressed in slinky white satin.

The queen, Miss Grand Rapids, is five feet six inches tall and weighs 120 pounds. She is the daughter of a manufacturer, Basil Crampton, and both her father and mother as well as a younger brother and sister were down in front watching her receive the bouquet which Mayor Stouck of Benton Harbor handed her.

Miss Battle Creek is eighteen, too, and Miss Benton Harbor is nineteen.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, April 27.—[Special.]—Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, who has been living in Paris in recent years, will pass much of her time in the future in New York and has taken the Schuyler Parsons residence in East Seventy-second street.

Friends of the Roosevelt family have learned that Dr. Richard Derby, whose wife was Miss Ethel Roosevelt, is convalescing in the American hospital in Paris, following an operation recently performed there. The necessity for the operation was brought about through a strain sustained by the surgeon while skiing in Switzerland.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Slack gave a dinner last evening in the Seaglade of the St. Regis for Miss Happy Shannon and Eugene G. Hodenpyl, who will be married on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wright Harriman, who two years ago sold their beautiful estate at Brookville to Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Smith, will rejoin the north shore colony this season, having leased the John W. Minturn estate at Syosset.

Seek Associate Members for Three Arts Club

Invite Hundred to Join; Tell Advantages.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THAT little band of women who serve as directors of the Three Arts club has evolved a very clever way of bringing this self-supporting club into closer contact with the social life of the city, and yesterday letters went out to about 100 well known men and women inviting them to become associate members of the club.

The fee of membership, which is very small, entitles one to the privileges of renting any of the rooms for meetings or entertainments, of having luncheon, dinner or tea at the club, and of taking as many guests as one wishes to the delightful Sunday afternoon musicals and teas which are given during the season without charge.

The club, which is located at 1300 North Dearborn street, in a most attractive home, enables students to enjoy a beautiful homelike residence during the period of study for a career in any of the arts at a very low charge. Mrs. Charles E. Kohl is president of the board, the other members of which are Mrs. James C. Ames, Miss Mary Louise Anderson, Mrs. Louis K. Boysen, Mrs. Americus F. Callahan, Mrs. James A. Cathcart, Mrs. Homer Chapin, Mrs. John A. Holabird, Mrs. Samuel Insull Jr., Miss Gwethalyn Jones, Mrs. Clay Judson, Mrs. Bowman C. Lingle, Mrs. Selim W. McArthur, Mrs. Charles A. Munroe, Mrs. M. Paul Noyes, Mrs. John C. Pitcher, Mrs. William J. Stenson, Miss Harriet Stuart, Mrs. Charles H. Swift, Mrs. Paul Walker and Miss Marjorie Ward. Mrs. Swift [Claire Dux], by the way, was one of the soloists at a Sunday musical at the club last winter, and she is very helpful to Mrs. Kohl in planning the musicals.

Bridal Dinner for Ruth Crossett.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Crossett will give the bridal dinner for their daughter, Ruth, and her fiancé, Edward S. French, tomorrow night at their apartment, 1200 Lake Shore drive, where the wedding is to be solemnized Saturday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock. Both young people are in bed this week with colds and have had to cancel all other pre-nuptial parties, but they are hoping to be well for the dinner Friday and the all-important event Saturday.

Miss Helen Stanley, too, is laid low this week by cold germs and so she is having to give up much of the informal partying that she expected to enjoy before her marriage a week from Saturday to Victor Elting Jr. Mr. Elting wants to have as long as possible for their wedding trip so he is not coming to Chicago from Cedar Rapids, where he is engaged in business, until just before the wedding, perhaps not even long enough before for there is to be a bridal dinner.

Miss Stanley, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Edwin Stanley, has been working as a saleswoman in a smart north side dress shop until last week and she had planned all sorts of things to do this week and next, but of course her illness has upset all the plans.

The bridal dinner for Miss Barbara Neff and Solomon B. Smith will be given the night before their marriage, on Friday, May 13, at the Casino, by her three uncles, J. Arnold Scudder and William M. Scudder of Chicago and Richard Neff of Houston, Tex. This dinner and a buffet luncheon that Mr. Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Solomon A. Smith, will give at the Shore Acres club on Sunday, May 8, are the only large affairs planned for this popular young couple, who, like every one else this year, want things done as simply and unostentatiously as possible. Their wedding is to take place on Saturday, May 14, at St. Chrysostom's church, where the Stanley-Elting nuptials will be held the Saturday before.

Scribblers Elect Officers Tonight.

The Scribblers, whose monthly meetings are held at noon except when they have their election of officers, will meet for that purpose tonight at the residence of Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, 2430 Lake View avenue. The meeting is to be at 6:45 o'clock, after which there will be dinner and then some of the clever entertainment which always characterizes the Scribblers' meetings. Tonight there is to be a moving picture shown, but what it is to be is a secret except from the five or six who have arranged it.

Mrs. Frank M. Gordon writes to tell us that the committee for the Madonna center dinner dance to be held on Saturday evening at the Hotel Sherman has arranged a program of entertainment by theatrical stars for the intervals between dances. Among those who have made reservations for tables are Mr. and Mrs. John Ward Amberg, Mr. and Mrs. David F. Bremner, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Cremin, Mr. and Mrs. William P. Heneberry, Mr. and Mrs. Edward N. Hurley Jr., Mr. and Mrs. William Lawlor, Mr. and Mrs. Allen B. Ripley, Col. and Mrs. Albert A. Sprague, and Mr. and Mrs. Bolton Sullivan.

Mrs. Nelson L. Barnes and Mrs. Ralph M. Shaw will arrive in New York tomorrow from a 6 weeks' cruise of the Mediterranean. Mrs. Barnes is expected to return to Chicago on Tuesday and Mrs. Shaw may come back a day or so earlier.

Cyrus H. Adamses Are in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams are in New York City for a short stay. They will move to Lake Forest from their apartment at 1560 Lake Shore drive in late May or early June.

Unless she decides to sublet her house at Watch Hill, R. I., Mrs. Louise de Koven Phelps of 20 East Cedar street will depart on June 1 to spend the summer there as usual. Her son, Hubbard Phelps, will be with her there during his vacation from the Middlesex school at Concord, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence De Golyer have given up their apartment at 222

Mrs. Ellen Trimble Becomes Bride of Oren Taft in West

Santa Barbara, Cal., April 27.—[Special.]—Mrs. Ellen Trimble became the bride of Oren Taft III., grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Oren B. Taft of Chicago, in a simple wedding service performed this afternoon at the home of the bride's mother by Dr. Robert Norriss McLean of the First Presbyterian church.

The bride is a graduate of Mills college, California, and a former student at the Sorbonne, Paris. She was unattended.

Mrs. W. K. has the stage this morning. She writes: "I would like to have you give me some advice about prunes. When I cook them with sugar, the following day they become very hard and cannot be eaten, even though covered with juice. When I cook them without sugar they remain soft, but do not taste good unsweetened. Is there any way to prepare them and still keep them soft for a day or two?"

Yes, indeed. Prunes may be perfectly cooked several ways, and be delicious and soft for several days after their cooking. The oldest and perhaps best known method is the one we apply to stewed prunes. When prunes are to be stewed, with or without sugar, they are first soaked and then cooked. Some prunes, a very fine though rather expensive brand on the market, may be cooked without preliminary soaking, but we are considering the average here.

Take the dried prunes, and if you are in a hurry for them, wash and pour boiling water over them and let soak for five of six hours. Never soak them longer than this period if you use boiling water. When cold water is employed, the prunes are generally soaked overnight. In either instance, after the soaking period place the prunes in a saucepan and let them simmer slowly for an hour in the water in which they have been soaked. Sugar may be added, but it should be added after the prunes have become soft and tender, and then they may be cooked a few minutes longer with the sugar addition.

Whether prunes are stewed in the above fashion or baked in a casserole in a moderate oven, the dish should be covered during the cooking. Allow four cups of water for each cup of prunes to be cooked. As in the stewing process, the sugar, too, should be added during the last quarter period of the cooking.

Steamed prunes are a third cookery treatment suggestion. Wash the prunes thoroughly and then place them in a colander over hot water, or in the top of a double boiler. Cover and let them steam until they are plump and tender. Then, again, prunes may be soaked until they have absorbed cold water to the fullest extent and be eaten without cooking.

Prunes have versatile menu habits. They may be welcomed at breakfast in a fetching cereal mold, be greeted at luncheon in a new French toast treatment, or may be cheered at dinner in their crisp fritter frocks.

Take three-fourths of a cupful of prunes and prepare them as for stewing. Then take three-fourths of a cupful of granular cereal, two cupfuls of milk, one-fourth cupful of sugar, and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt. Remove the prunes from the water in which they have been cooked, stone, and quarter. Keep the prune water, which is now juice, and place it with the prunes in a saucepan over a low flame. Add the sugar, salt, and milk, and gradually add the cereal. Stir well, and cook for five of six minutes over the fire. Remove to the top of a double boiler and cook for one hour. Then pour the cooked cereal and prunes into a mold wet with cold water, and chill. Serve with milk, cream, or a prune sauce.

PRUNE FRITTERS.

Simmer two cups of soaked prunes for ten minutes. Cool in their juice and drain. Remove the prune pits and replace with blanched almonds. Dip each prune in a light fritter batter and drop into deep hot fat. The fat should be hot enough to brown a cube of bread in sixty seconds; and the fritters should cook in about two minutes. Drain on unglazed paper, and dust with powdered sugar. Serve immediately.

WOMAN'S DRESS.

For a figure rather difficult to fit this model is marvelous, and all because of the cleverly placed bias bodice lines. The skirt, too, is length giving, cut in slightly circular gores that fit the hips snugly. A soft girdle is worn at the normal waistline. Printed and plain silk crêpe, or one of the crinkle crêpes, will be smart.

The pattern, 2791, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2¾ yards of 39 inch material, with 1 yard of 35 inch contrasting.

ENGAGEMENT

The engagement of Mrs. Marie Westlake of Chicago and California to Bradford Spencer Smith was announced last night at a dinner at the residence of Mr. Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Spencer Smith of 5720 Woodlawn avenue. Mrs. Westlake and her fiancé attended the University of Chicago. She is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kramer.

How Animals Express Their Humor Sense

Show Their Appreciation of a Joke.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Now that the dogs of both the rich and the poor have each had their inning—we refer to the recent Kennel club show and the "Be Kind to Dumb Creatures Week"—it is time to consider animals in general, their sense of humor in particular. For there are a few that smile and grin, titter and guffaw about as well as the rest of us.

The inspiration for this subject came by way of a curious experience. Here is the story.

Last week a Chicagoan requested a story about the Anti-Cruelty society.

The organization has a group of prominent persons for officers and directors, among them Charles S. Peterson, B. Botsford Young, John T. McCutcheon, Mrs. George M. Wisner, Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, Miss Katherine Drake, and Mrs. William S. Faurot. This request prompted a trip over to the society shelter at 155 West Grand avenue.

Here was old Dobbin lapping up water from one of the many drinking fountains the society has provided throughout the city. It wasn't the way he lapped the water but it was the way he expressed his delight afterward with antics of his delivery wagon driver—he smiled and grinned, appearing genuinely amused. Perhaps it was only the intoxication of one of our better spring days, but certainly Dobbin had every semblance of a sense of humor.

And if he has, what of some of our other animals, for a horse is generally conceded to have far less "sense" on the average than elephants, apes, dogs, or even mules? Of course, as scientists point out, we must not confuse laughing with a sense of humor for, just like humans there are animals that make a laughing sound with no feeling of humor back of it. Take a hyena for example. His laugh is a menace and a warning. Then, too, a crow laughs in mockery and a parrot in mimicry but, as Robert L. Dickey, the well known dog artist, explains, a dog laughs and barks in play and sport, just like a human being.

This recalls an experiment made several years back by a couple of animal psychologists. One of the electrodes from a dry battery was put down in a pan of water and a dog was coaxed to drink from the pan. Then one of the experimenters holding the other electrode in one hand took hold of the dog's tail. The dog received the shock, jumped, and broke away.

Immediately after the same man put a pan of watery milk where he knew a cat would drink and repeated the electrode trick. As soon as the dog saw the cat walk towards the pan he approached eagerly and sat down to watch the fun. And then when the cat took a lick and felt the electricity, her tail becoming twice its usual size, the dog actually barked and laughed.

Cats, by the way, do not express their humor by laughing but rather by purring. This, scientists say, is an expression of their pleasure. Of all animals the one that most nearly approaches a human laugh is the ape. There is convincing evidence that at least two kinds, the chimpanzee and the orang-outang, can laugh and feel amused much the same as any of us.

At the small animal shelter, Dr. H. J. Streibert, superintendent and veterinarian, explained that the society last year took care of 22,532 animals. This number includes 12,711 dogs; 9,757 cats, and 64 rabbits, birds, and other small animals. A good proportion of these were sent to Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin's "Orphans of the Storm" in Lake Forest while others were placed in homes or restored to their owners.

As a word of advice Dr. Streibert said, "Tell people never to call the dog pound to pick up a stray, unwanted, or injured animal. Let us know instead."

Paris Shrinks the Fur Jacket to Summer Size

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Summer furs make an appearance in Paris fashions, shrunken to miniature proportions. The fur bolero that can be worn both for day and evening is an important detail of French styles. Such a little mantelet, as the French call it, is a mighty useful garment, for it can be worn over summer frocks of different kinds, and whenever the evening is cool as it usually is in Paris, the protection is a great comfort.

Heim, who is an expert furrier as well as a dressmaker, is the chief protagonist of these tiny fur wraps. He makes short sleeved boleros of such light weight furs as broadtail and shaved lamb, and they come in white, black, or brown.

One of these is illustrated today, and it is made of black broadtail. This jacket is worn by smart French women over their white and printed chiffon frocks for restaurant dining and for afternoon. It replaces several cloth or silk jackets. The one button closing may be left undone, for the jacket is faced with fur, and when worn open two small fur revers appear.

The lower half of the sketch shows a dressy jacket of white ermine, also bolero, and no more than bust length, with the new full, elbow length sleeves. The jacket is bordered with sable, and the cuffs are of sable.

Six New Directors for Sunday Evening Club Meet

Six newly elected trustees of the Chicago Sunday Evening club attended their first meeting yesterday at the Midday club. They are F. O. Hale, president of the Illinois Bell Telephone company; Donald S. McWilliams, an attorney; Newton C. Farr, president of the Better Business bureau; James B. Forgan Jr. of the First National bank; Samuel Insull Jr., and Herman D. Smith. The elections were made to fill vacancies caused by the deaths of James Douglas, David R. Forgan, Richard C. Hall, Bernard A. Eckhart, R. Floyd Clinch, and the resignation of Frank F. Whans.

Why doesn't every girl who has such a hard time every month adopt this simple, harmless discovery that makes suffering just a memory? Tiny tablets that banish such pain!

Midol is not a narcotic, but it does banish suffering during the painful period, or from headaches, colds, etc. It acts quite harmlessly, but effectively; complete comfort in five to seven minutes. You will get this relief regardless of how hard a time you've always had. These tablets don t hinder the normal periodic process in any way. All drugstores have them. Just ask for Midol.

PhoneCompany Choruses Give Joint Recital

Balance, Accuracy, and Spirit Praised.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The combined choruses of the Illinois Bell Telephone company gave their annual concert at Orchestra hall last night under the direction of Dr. Daniel Protheroe. The groups are experienced: The men's chorus has been organized for seventeen seasons, the women's for thirteen, and they have been singing together for eleven.

As usual, they appeared last night as separate units and also a combined ensemble. Likewise, according to their custom, they made a point of singing agreeable songs rather than an extended cantata or oratorio. No one should be able to quarrel with their choice, for they sing songs uncommonly well. Dr. Protheroe has developed them into balance, also into accuracy and spirit, and with the good voices that are theirs, they make an impression in every way commendable.

Two soloists appeared as assisting artists. Florence Kossak, an employée of the company, disclosed a soprano voice of good range and quality and considerable charm. The other was Robert Macdonald, pianist, known hereabouts for a number of seasons as a highly competent but self-effacing accompanist, and who displayed himself here as a brilliant virtuoso in the possession of both highly developed technic and fire.

The Paulist choristers, 100 boys and men, will sing tonight at Orchestra hall. It will be their twenty-eighth annual concert. The proceeds of the event will go to support the Paulist camp at White Lake, Mich., where members of the choir are guests from June through September. The Rev. Eugene O'Malley, once a boy soprano in the choir and now its director, announces that tonight's program will be the most ambitious in the choir's history.

UNSAFE!
...to wash handkerchiefs used during colds, grippe, flu

Don't endanger yourself or others. Use KLEENEX Disposable Tissues

EVERYONE knows what a repulsive job it is, to wash handkerchiefs used during a cold. But do you know it is dangerous as well?

Those handkerchiefs are literally teeming with germs. They are unfit to be touched. They certainly should not be mixed with other clothing.

Don't use handkerchiefs when you have a cold! Use Kleenex—the new, sanitary, disposable tissue that makes ordinary handkerchiefs seem uncivilized.

Kleenex is a disposable handkerchief. It is made of soft rayon-cellulose. Though gentler and more absorbent than any handkerchief, it costs much less. So little that you can destroy each tissue as soon as used. You avoid self-infection from handkerchiefs during a cold. At any drug, dry goods or department store.

Convenient packages—in white or lovely tints

REPORTS ON 101 CLOSED BANKS ARE COMPLETED

Nelson Issues Statements of Last 21 Receivers.

State Auditor Oscar Nelson made public the statements of receivers of 21 closed banks yesterday, completing reports on the 101 state institutions closed in Cook county. The statements showed the condition of the banks on March 21.

The auditor's report said that three of the 21 banks showed an operating profit during receivership. The gross cost of the receiverships was given as 8.6 per cent of the money collected by the receivers and the net cost, after allowing for operating income, as 2.6 per cent.

The collections by receivers of the 101 closed banks so far total $43,610,282 and their expenses total $2,914,948, according to Auditor Nelson's report. The gross cost of the receiverships for the 101 banks was listed as 6.7 per cent and the net cost at 1.1 per cent.

A 20 per cent payment to depositors of the closed Waukegan National bank was begun yesterday under the direction of Melvin B. Ericson, receiver. Approximately $500,000 will be disbursed. Of this $370,000 will go to individual depositors, and the remainder to industries. The deposit liabilities will be paid out daily from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m., until the 20 per cent is completed. Further payments will be made, it was said.

N. U. TRUSTEES APPROVE BUDGET CUT OF $257,381

Trustees of Northwestern university last night approved a reduction of $257,381 in the 1932-'33 budget. No salaries will be cut, President Walter Dill Scott announced. The total budget for the year, as approved by the trustees, is $4,401,482. An anticipated deficit of $78,992 was authorized, but it is expected that this amount will be made up during the year. The board last night also approved the appointment of Prof. Homer F. Carey; Dr. Waldemar Trjitzinsky; Dr. James A. Work, and Dr. Bergen B. Evans. Dr. Oliver Justin Lee was named director of Dearborn observatory. He had been acting director.

To Get Degree

HELEN KELLER.

New York, April 27.—[Special.]—Helen Keller sailed for England today aboard the steamship President Roosevelt of the United States Lines. She will receive the honorary degree of doctor of laws from the University of Glasgow on June 15.

Miss Keller, who lost her sight and hearing at the age of 9 months as the result of an illness, was accompanied by her teacher, Miss Anne Mansfield Sullivan, whose instruction enabled her to establish contact with the outside world. Also with the blind author and lecturer was Miss Polly Thomson, her constant companion and secretary for eighteen years.

CRADLE PHONE USERS PROTEST ADDED CHARGE

Say 25 Cents Per Month Buys Instrument.

A number of subscribers of the Illinois Bell Telephone company have filed complaints in both the Chicago and Springfield offices of the Illinois commerce commission recently concerning the 25 cents a month surcharge against subscribers using cradle telephones, it was learned yesterday.

So far the commission has taken no action on these complaints because, it was explained, none of the complaining subscribers is willing to expend the time and money necessary to institute a formal demand for a hearing on the rate for cradle phones.

Most of the complainants say that the 25 cents monthly surcharge, running to $3 a year, is sufficient not only to reimburse the company for the alleged additional expense of maintenance on these instruments, but actually to pay the full cost of the instrument. The complainants maintain that, if the company is permitted to continue the surcharge indefinitely, the subscribers within a few years will have paid the company the actual value of the instrument three or four times over.

In Use Since 1927.

The Western Electric company, manufacturing subsidiary of the telephone company, perfected the cradle phone in 1924 and distribution was begun in the east. In the fall of 1927 the Illinois company asked permission of the commerce commission to supply the instruments to subscribers in this state on a 50 cent monthly surcharge on each phone.

Adducing figures in support of the proposed surcharge the company declared that each instrument cost $8 to manufacture and the maintenance of each instrument would cost $4.05 a year if on a non-dial system, and $4.15 a year on a dial system.

25 Cent Charge Permitted.

In a decision handed down on Jan. 25, 1928, the commerce commission declared that $2.51 was a reasonable estimate on the annual maintenance cost for cradle phones, and indicated that, in its judgment, the $8 manufacturing cost figure was also exaggerated. It stated that the proposed 50 cent monthly surcharge was "unreasonable and unjust" and approved a 25 cent surcharge.

The company maintains that, if the 25 cent surcharge were lowered or abolished, there would be such concerted demand for cradle phones that the company would be compelled to scrap thousands of desk phones now in use, with resultant loss to the stockholders.

The complaining subscribers reply, however, that when a customer orders a change from the desk instrument to the cradle phone, the company imposes a $3 service charge. This charge, they contend, should be sufficient compensation for the company in the scrapping of the outmoded instruments.

8 JURORS CHOSEN TO TRY SAM HUNT AS GUN TOTER

Sam Hunt, Capone gunman, went on trial before Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green yesterday on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. Hunt has twice escaped jail on gun-toting charges, once when he was caught carrying a sawed-off shotgun in a golf bag and again when he was arrested after a mysterious shooting in Grant park. Judge Green refused a delay. A jury was called. Defense Attorney Tyrell Richardson objected to four of the twelve veniremen, exhausting the supply. No other jurymen were available. The judge ordered the eight jurymen locked in the Auditorium hotel for the night. Four more will be picked today. Hunt was arrested two weeks ago and a revolver was found in his pocket.

FEAR MAN WAS KIDNAPED.

Linton, Ind., April 27.—Authorities are searching for Willard Calvin, pioneer citizen here, missing from home since Tuesday. Calvin was seen in the railway station where he bought a ticket for Terre Haute. Later he was seen leaving the station accompanied by two strange men. Relatives believe Calvin, who is wealthy, has been kidnaped for ransom.

Want 6 "plies" ★ at a Low Price?

HERE is a tire that needs no introduction to several million car owners who have proved its sturdy value and honest wear on the road.

But even to old friends, the price is NEWS. And get this fact—these tires are built by Goodyear—marked with the Goodyear name and house flag—sinewed by that famous Goodyear cord material, Supertwist.

All of which means that these Goodyear Pathfinders can give you more for your money than tires ever gave before, and that is saying a whale of a lot.

If the tread on your tires is getting bald—if the rubber is getting thin—don't flirt with trouble and take chances of skids. You can get a whole set of tires at such prices as these and hardly miss the money.

Read the sample prices shown here—remember they buy Goodyears.

Doesn't that make you ask yourself: "Why buy any second-choice tire when FIRST-choice costs no more?"

★ SIX "PLIES"

—of the six layers of cord fabric under the tread in this tire, two do not run from bead to bead—they are really "breaker strips", and that's what we call them, although some tire-makers call them extra plies

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

There seems to be no limit to the skill of those Cubs. Another stroke of misfortune caused a last minute juggling of their battle front yesterday and additional aggravation was caused by the Pirates' jumping away to a four run lead in the first inning. But they proved that handicaps were merely part of a day's work by applying their bats with such accuracy that the Pirates were beaten, 8 to 4. That made it five in a row for the Cubs and also gave them undisputed possession of first place.

When Malone's cap was knocked off at the start by a single, double, triple and homer the members of the anvil chorus among the 7,500 in attendance harmonized in their favorite piece. Pat was merely having a little harmless fun. As soon as he heard the raucous raspberry he put a stop to it by yielding only one hit in the last eight innings. That was a pop up fluke by Lloyd Waner.

Taylor, Richbourg Click.

The twisting around of the lineup as originally planned was caused by the illness of Johnny Moore, who was booked for center field. Dan Taylor, who was to be in right for the first time because of Vin Barton's weakness at bat, had to move into center and Lance Richbourg, the ex-Brave, made his debut in right field. Richbourg hit a homer while a teammate was on base, and Taylor contributed a single and a double. The box score also mentions a homer by Malone.

Malone's troublesome first inning began with Lloyd Waner punching a triple between Stephenson and Taylor. Brother Paul lined a two bagger over third to score Lloyd. Stevie's return throw on the hit eluded capture, so Paul moved over to third. Comorosky accomplished nothing, but Traynor stepped in with a single to right center, P. Waner scoring. Suhr then picked on Malone's first pitch and it floated into the right field seats for a home run.

Thevenow's Error Helps.

Thevenow kicked in with an error at exactly the right time in the second and the Cubs used it to help compile their first pair of runs. Hartnett set things in motion with a single to center. Grimm did the same, putting Gabby on third. Jurges bounced to short and Thevenow, in trying to hurry for a possible double play, reached in the wrong place for the ball. Jurges survived and Hartnett scored on the error. Malone's bunt sent Grimm to third and Jurges to second. Grimm ran home when

Sportsmanship? Well, It May Dismay British at Olympics

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 27.—A formal appeal has been issued to the American spectators at the impending Olympic games to remember their sportsmanship at all times lest the cause of international amity again be set back half the distance to the goal. The cause of international amity has been set back half the distance so many times, however, by untoward incidents in contests intended to promote mutual respect and love, that the goal has become a never-never land not to be found on any map.

The recent warning to the Americans may be taken as a suggestion that American sportsmanship is not always reliable. Certain hypersensitive bodies may resent this, but the fact remains nevertheless that it isn't. In fact, neither is the British sportsmanship reliable at all times, and if British sportsmanship is imperfect, then it can hardly be expected that primitive nations, such as the States, can achieve the ideal. It is freely admitted in Great Britain that British sportsmanship, which the English newspapers generally describe as true British sportsmanship, is the best there is, naturally.

What Would You Call 'Em?

Still, embarrassing incidents have happened and, although such violations of the code are always disavowed as un-British, it is difficult to explain precisely what they are. It would not be reasonable to call them Swedish or Bulgarian, for instance, for the Swedes or Bulgarians would hardly take the trouble to congregate in England merely to commit acts of muckerism and bring discredit upon British sportsmanship. They would feel that the British could attend to that themselves.

A familiar American practice which offends the British, or true British, sense of sportsmanship is the one of whistling or clapping the hands in unison at certain junctures of baseball games with the intention of rattling the pitcher. This is regarded as fair enough play in the United States and when this explanation is offered to a true British sportsman, he is triumphantly convinced that he was right all along.

On a recent occasion, however, a well known American actress, opening in a comedy before a London audience, was confronted with two rows of customers in evening dress organized as a claque, whose British sense of fair play and sportsmanship took the form of pronounced booing when she tried to speak.

Then There Was a Marathon—

And, of course, there was the memorable incident of the marathon race in the London Olympic games. In the last few yards of the London Olympic marathon, Dorando, the Italian, who was leading Johnny Hays, the American, collapsed and was unable to finish under his own power. At that, certain persons who unfortunately were identified as being neither Swedes, Bulgarians, nor even Italians, bent on discrediting true British sportsmanship, but actual true British sportsmen, picked up Dorando and carried him to the finish.

The Americans naturally received an unfavorable impression of the special kind of sportsmanship which they had been reading so much about. This impression was not dispelled by the explanation that the Britons concerned had been swept away by admiration for Dorando's pluck. Dorando's pluck had been a close imitation of true British pluck, which also is spoken of in true British modesty in the English newspapers. Therefore, in the absence of a convenient growler in which to ride to the finish, Dorando was carried across by hand and subsequently was disqualified.

However, it is unwise to challenge the English on the subject of good manners because it is well recognized in England that Americans are boors with no manners whatever.

It would be very foolish to resent any suggestions for the improvement of American sportsmanship. However, they probably will be more sporting in their attitude toward the athletes of other nations in the Los Angeles games than the British or French would be toward them.

French Case Is Different.

The French were distinctly unsporting to the American rugby team in the Paris Olympics notwithstanding which the Americans, who were the only rugby team in the United States at the time, won the Olympic title. Probably that was why the French were so unsporting to them.

Sportsmanship is not a natural attribute of any race, but a studied pose and civilization has not gone so far that any nation can rely on its sportsmanship at all times. American sportsmanship has failed often in domestic and international events alike, but in the impending Olympics it probably will establish a new high for this event. The reason is that the Americans are not jealous of any one, as the British are, and jealousy is always deadly to sportsmanship.

There may be some hostility to the French in case of a close decision or some questionable practice, but that will be easily explained. The French owe the U. S. money and their response to frequent duns, in the understanding of the common customer, has been "try to get it." It is a great strain on sportsmanship to be thrown into competition with a party who has money to pay what he owes you, but sneers at your gullibility in lending it to him in the first place.

So probably the cause of international amity will be set back half the distance to the goal once more in the California Olympic. But what is half the distance when the goal is only a theory anyway?

WHO'LL WIN BIG FIGHT? HERE YOU ARE, CUSTOMERS!

Straw Vote Gives Bout to Levinsky or Walker.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Well, who IS going to win this fight between Mickey Walker and King Levinsky tomorrow night?

The principals concluded their heavy duty training yesterday with a thumping flurry of gloves. The Stadium has collected $40,000 and officially announced that, with numbers of reservations remaining and so on, at least 17,500 will see the heavyweights carry on. If the Stadium's guess of $70,000 gross receipts is correct, Levinsky and Walker will earn $18,000 each for ten rounds or less.

But who will win the fight?

Jack Kearns [probably prejudiced since he is Walker's manager]: "Mickey will stop Levinsky in the first round if he can. Anyway, there'll be a knockout and the Hebrew will be on his back."

Mrs. Lena Levy [the King's sister, very prejudiced and decidedly excited]: "The King is ready. He's a great big boy and he'll whip Walker."

Jack O'Keefe [manager of Tuffy Griffith, who defeated Levinsky in 10 rounds and scored a financial victory by getting $25,000 from Levinsky for doing it]: "This fight? I pick Tuffy Griffith to lick 'em both."

Tuffy Griffith: "Walker will win if he's in condition." Editor's note: If Walker isn't in condition he's wasted four weeks and all the people who saw him work out are wrong.

Kid Howard [proprietor of the Arcade gymnasium]: "I'll take Levinsky." The King has trained in the Kid's gymnasium.

George Trafton: "Mickey's body punches will make Levinsky sick." Other remarks deleted by censor. And you've guessed it. Walker has trained at Mr. Trafton's. What a pal. Trafton collected $105 in cash admissions Tuesday afternoon. Yesterday wasn't quite so good.

Tiny Rifkin [elevator operator at Trafton's gymnasium, who holds the world's record for displacement and commands a five passenger car]: "What do I care? I'll be glad when Walker's gone and I can catch up on my reading."

Walker boxed four rounds yesterday. He met, in the order of their appearance, Mickey Patrick, Ed Wills, Benny Stanley, and Tom Jones.

Levinsky boxed two rounds with K. O. White and three with Roy Williams. Williams' succumbing to a body punch in the last round was a splendid bit of stage play.

Know Your Derby Horses

[This is the second of a series of articles on horses that are going to start in the Kentucky Derby on May 7 at Louisville.]

BY FRENCH LANE.

A giant from California has slipped quietly onto the Kentucky Derby scene at Churchill Downs, and the tongues of all the railbirds are wagging.

The California giant is Gallant Sir. He will race for the Northway stable maintained by Norman W. Church.

Gallant Sir is 17 hands high, and if he should draw a post position alongside Top Flight, the Derby favorite, will look something like a pony as she gets ready to begin the mile and a quarter gallop.

Far westerners claim Gallant Sir is equally as big a horse as the ill-fated Phar Lap and that he has a stride that compares well with the late champion from the land down under. Man o' War had a stride of 25 feet 6 inches when bounding along at top speed. Australians claimed Phar Lap's stride was even longer. Longfellow, one of the most famous of American horses, was credited with a 27 foot stride. Cudgel and Exterminator were other long striding fellows who gained fame in American racing.

It has ever been claimed that big horses lose ground when making the turns on a mile track. Maybe that will be the reason Gallant Sir does not win the Derby. Yet he is bred to run to the Rocky mountains and back, for he is another son of Sir Gallahad III., the sire of Gallant Fox. He is out of the mare Sun Spot, a daughter of Omar Khayyam. If you know your Derby history you will recall that Omar Khayyam won the Derby back in 1917.

But as a 2 year old Gallant Sir was sort of a bum. He started eight times and won only one race. When he scored his victory there were few fashionables to trail him home. But only recently he hit his stride as a 3 year old at Tanforan, near San Francisco. He beat all the good horses in the west and ran a mile and 70 yards in 1:42 3-5. He had no trouble making the turns in that race.

Gallant Sir's odds recently have been cut from 100 to 1 to 20 to 1, which is quite a slash. Efforts are being made to employ Pony McAtee to ride him.

In the Wake of the News

AMATEURS AND PROS.

In looking over conditions for the Western open golf tourney at Cleveland, beginning June 20, we find the entry fee for professionals is $5 and for amateurs $20. Evidently this is a move to discourage presence of amateurs in the tourney. Naturally one wonders the reason.

From investigation The Wake concludes the purpose is to reduce the size of the field. In fact, Western Golf association officials admit that. While it is an open tourney and therefore primarily for professionals, there is no objection to the playing of the good amateurs. In fact, they are most welcome and pros, as a class, are said to like to play with such amateurs or even be paired with them on the medal rounds.

When these tourneys, however, are held in any populous golf center, there are many young amateurs who enter for the "experience" with no real chance of finishing in the money. Perhaps they may "go crazy," as the golf expression is, for one round, but they are not likely to do so for four rounds.

In the open tourney of two years ago there were more than 300 entrants which was too large a field to handle. It involved starting one morning at 5 o'clock. Several finished after dark to which they naturally objected. At Dayton, last year, owing to the depression, the field was normal.

Even granted that an unwieldy field is a handicap to all concerned, there is some difference of opinion concerning the means of reducing it. While a $20 entrance fee, no doubt, will make smaller the number entering for experience only, others think limitation on amateurs would be better served by eligibility on a handicap basis, with none allowed to enter whose club handicap is higher than three.

Amateurs winning places in open tourneys for which cash prizes are offered cannot, of course, accept money prizes. They usually are awarded a commemorative medal, if winner, or take the value of the prize in silver plate. Some amateurs, however, decline to accept any prize of value except a simple token of the event.

Winning sectional or national open titles naturally has a commercial advantage to the professional which it has not to the amateur. Under the circumstances, it is surprising that there is so little, practically negligible, apparent friction between the two classes in open events.

UTERITZ QUITS DIRECTOR'S JOB AT WISCONSIN

Madison, Wis., April 27.—[Special.]—Irwin C. Uteritz, recently appointed director of intercollegiate athletics at the University of Wisconsin as successor to George Little, was transferred from that position to the post of assistant football coach by the board of regents in session here today.

The move was made at the joint request of Uteritz and Dr. Clarence W. Spears, Badger football coach. Spears desired Uteritz as full time back field assistant, while Uteritz desired to return to his position as assistant grid coach, which he had held here since 1926.

No Successor Named.

No director of athletics was chosen to succeed Uteritz, the regents instructing President Glenn Frank and Business Manager J. D. Phillips to effect a temporary arrangement with the present athletic staff for the administration of the departments of intercollegiate athletics and physical education for men.

The regents placed Guy S. Lowman, chairman of the four year physical education or coaching course, in temporary charge of intramural athletics. Joe Steinauer has been head of this department. Friends of Glenn Thistlewaite, resigned Wisconsin football coach, had sought to have him placed at the head of the intramural program.

Abolition of the athletic council as constituted for nearly 25 years was another action taken by the regents. The regents adopted the seven man plan of one of their own members, Daniel Grady, Portage, which called for four faculty, two alumni, and one student representative. There also will be two nonvoting members, the chairman of the regents committee on physical education and the business manager of the university.

Name Faculty Members.

Later in the day the regents approved the four faculty members naming Andrew J. Weaver, letters and science; G. L. Larson, engineering; Asher D. Hobson, agriculture, and Scott H. Goodnight, chairman of the faculty committee on student life and interest. Selection of the alumni members was postponed. The alumni association is to nominate a list of candidates.

Pending this action President Frank recommended that two of the three present alumni members living nearest Madison be retained. They are Jerry P. Riordan, Madison, and Walter Alexander, Milwaukee.

ADD .300 HITTER TO INFIELD BY ST. LOUIS DEAL

Hose Beat Tigers, 4-3; Make 6 Errors.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., April 27.—Manager Lew Fonseca of the Chicago White Sox tonight announced that Ralph [Red] Kress, shortstop, had been obtained from the St. Louis Browns in a trade for Pitcher Irving [Bump] Hadley and Outfielder Bruce Campbell.

Kress will report to the Sox tomorrow and probably will start at shortstop in the opening game of the Cleveland Indian series, Manager Fonseca said. Hadley and Campbell are now en route to St. Louis.

Acquisition of Kress, which has been a White Sox objective for several months, gives the Sox one of the best hitting infields in the American league. Johnny Hodapp, with an all time major league average of .319 for seven years, was obtained in a trade with Cleveland for Bill Cissell and Jim Moore last Sunday.

Drove in 111 Runs Last Year.

With Hodapp at second, Kress at short, Lu Blue, a regular .300 hitter, at first, and Carey Selph, a newcomer who has been keeping pace with the club's best offensive men, at third, the Sox are expected to have the batting strength long sought after in their infield.

Kress, who ranked third among the Browns' hitters and was the fourth best hitting infielder in the league in 1931, drove in 111 runs for St. Louis, 28 more than Fonseca, who led the Chicagoans in this respect last season. He has been playing third base for the Browns this year, but has been used at first base, in the outfield, and at shortshop.

With Browns Since 1927.

Kress is only 25 years old and has been in organized baseball six years. He started out with Tulsa in 1927 and finished the season with the Browns. His record follows:

	A.B.	R.	H.	Ave.
*1927—St. Louis....	24	3	7	.292
1928—St. Louis....	560	78	153	.273
1929—St. Louis....	557	82	170	.305
1930—St. Louis....	614	94	192	.313
1931—St. Louis....	605	87	188	.311
Total.....	2,360	344	710	.301

*Played in only seven games.

Kress is regarded as a dangerous hitter. Last year he drove out 16 home runs, 46 doubles, and 8 triples.

Hadley in Three Games for Sox.

Hadley, a right handed pitcher, was obtained from Washington last winter in a trade that sent Carl Reynolds and Johnny Kerr, outfielder and infielder, respectively, to the Senators. He won 11 games and lost 10 with Washington. He saved today's game at Detroit for the Sox when he struck out two men with the bases full in the last of the ninth as a relief pitcher. He has been in three games for the White Sox, defeating the Browns, 4 to 3, in the opening series at Chicago, allowing only seven hits; losing to the Browns at St. Louis, 5 to 0, and finishing today's game.

Campbell came to the Sox from Little Rock in the Southern Association last year, highly touted as a hitter. He finished with an average of .383 in 79 games for Little Rock.

The Browns attempted to obtain Campbell on a straight trade for a reserve infielder earlier in the season, but the Sox held out for Kress.

HADLEY BUMPS TIGERS, 4-3

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., April 27.—Bump Hadley today was a brilliant star in a clownish setting which saw the Chicago White Sox end their seven game losing streak and knock Detroit out of first place with a dramatic 4 to 3 victory.

With the bases full, the tying run on third and the winning run on second, Hadley, as reliever of Sam Jones, fanned Johnson and Davis to terminate the game and that persistent losing streak, which started ages ago.

The victory was all the more gratifying, at least for the Sox pitching de-

Jackie to Box Brouillard, Corbett First.

Jack Kearns and Ray Alvis, co-managers of Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, said yesterday title matches with Young Corbett at San Francisco this summer and Lou Brouillard at Boston May 30 will be accepted before a championship contest against Jimmy McLernin. Ancil Hoffman, San Francisco promoter, has offered $40,000 for Fields to meet Corbett, it is said. The match will be closed if a neutral referee is named.

Fields Wants $40,000.

Fields' managers said if McLarnin accepts the Stadium's 60 per cent for the encounter and will pay Jackie $40,000 the bout will be made.

They point to the fact that McLarnin has been idle a long time and is not the attraction as a welterweight he was as a lightweight.

Firpo Leaves Today.

Fields is training at the Arcade gymnasium for his nontitle combat with Henry Firpo at Louisville, Ky., Derby eve, May 6. He will leave for Louisville next Wednesday. Firpo leaves today.

Young Stribling will leave for New York late next month to board a steamer June 4, bound for Australia, where he is contracted for four bouts and a vaudeville engagement.

Buck Everett, Gary boxer, trained in the loop yesterday for his match with Jack Fox at Terre Haute, Ind., Monday.

It is said that Abie Bain gave Mickey Walker that black eye at Summit, N. J.

Mickey Balaban, who has been training with King Levinsky, left yesterday for Ypsilanti, Mich., where he battles tonight. . . . Jack Kilbourne will start light workouts Monday for pending matches. . . . Costas Vassis has been signed for four matches by Mique Malloy at White City. Vassis is seeking an extension of six months from the immigration authorities to continue his ring career in this country. . . . Jack Dempsey will referee the Joey Goodman-Alfonso Gonzales ten round fight at Sacramento, Cal., tonight. . . . Joe Merar, heavyweight, who was managed by Jerry the Greek, Dempsey's trainer, arrived from Butte, Mont., yesterday for fights in Chicago. He broke his left arm almost two years ago in a match with Babe Hunt. He is under the management of Jack [West Side] O'Keefe.

Semi-Finals in Peel Cup Play Set for Sunday

BY OFFSIDE.

The semi-final games for the Peel cup will be the only soccer contests played in Chicago Sunday afternoon. The Olympias will meet the Budas of Harvey, Ill., and the Swedes will face Sparta at Sparta field.

Sparta and the Budas are the favorites to go through to the finals for the trophy. Sparta recently won the National Professional league championship, while the Budas captured the Buda cup by defeating the Sunflower club of Chicago last Sunday.

Officials of the International league have set June 4 as the date for the semi-final round for the championship. The four survivors are the Norwegian-Danish squad, Polish-Italian, Germans and the Swedes. The date of the final game has not been set.

The winner of the International league title will receive the Mayor A. J. Cermak trophy.

Injury Closes Turf Days of Twenty Grand

New York, April 27.—[Special.]—Twenty Grand, champion 3 year old of last year and generally regarded as one of the greatest race horses of all time in America, may never race again.

This was the opinion of horsemen who inspected him at Belmont Park here today. A badly injured tendon was evident on Twenty Grand as the horsemen looked him over. It was a recurrence of the old injury which caused him to be retired early last fall.

Faces Retirement.

Unless the injury should respond to treatment at once, Twenty Grand will be retired and will stand at Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree stable stud in Kentucky, it was announced.

Early this season Trainer Brennan was afraid Twenty Grand would not stand up under the rigors of the long, difficult rehearsals necessary to make him ready for important engagements. As a result Twenty Grand's program called for a slow training period and he wasn't nominated for any stake events until midsummer during the July racing at Arlington Park in Chicago.

He has been sent through only easy drills this spring, but the old tendon ailment has been more pronounced than ever.

In two years of racing Twenty Grand won $359,924. With the many opportunities in front of him as a 4 year old, many turf followers expected him to shatter Sun Beau's all time money winning record.

TICK ON LOSES

Havre de Grace, Md., April 27.—(AP)—Springsteel, S. W. Labrot's Kentucky Derby hopeful, today showed his heels to five other Derby and Preakness candidates to win the Shenandoah, mile and 70 yard test for 3 year olds. Tick On, Loma stables co-favorite for the Derby, was second and Mad Frump third.

Tick On, favored with Top Flight for the Kentucky classic, and Mad Frump, C. V. Whitney's hope for the two stellar 3 year old events, both made their first start of the season in the race, and the former was a heavy favorite in the betting. Springsteel paid $10.20 to win, while Tick On returned but $2.50 to place and $2.20 to show. Mad Frump paid $4.50 to show.

Tick On was away to a bad start and suffered interference every time he attempted to make a drive for the lead. Horsemen were of the opinion Tick On ran a good race.

HALL WINS TWO BLOCKS; LEADS REISELT, 300-244

Allen Hall of Chicago scored a double victory over Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia yesterday and took the lead, 300 to 244, in their 12 block, 600 point three cushion billiard match at Mussey's Wabash Avenue Billiard room. Hall won in the afternoon, 50 to 36 in 48 innings, and at night, 50 to 41, in 52 innings. The high runs, afternoon, Hall, 9; Reiselt, 5; evening, each 4. The seventh and eighth blocks will be played today.

CHICAGO TENNIS TEAM DEFEATS LOYOLA, 6 TO 0

BY FRENCH LANE.

Some right good horses are arriving at Sportsmen's Park for the opening of the season on Monday. Sergeant Hill, a 2 year old which won in Maryland, is among the arrivals. He can't be a bad sort of a horse for an insurance company issued a $10,000 policy against him yesterday.

Sergeant Hill is owned by Phil Marshall the newest Chicagoan to get into racing. Marshall shipped a stable of 12 horses here from Maryland in charge of Trainer Harry Brown. If you care to know who Mr. Marshall might be, well, he's the big milliner on Halsted street.

The folks at the Aurora track got a thrill yesterday when such noted performers as Dr. Freeland, Whipper Cracker, and No More, stepped off the cars after a quick dash from San Francisco. All of them are scheduled to go in the Inaugural handicap.

From the way the horsemen at Sportsmen's park are endeavoring to land J. McLaren to ride their steeds over the new half mile oval one might come to the conclusion that he is the greatest half mile jockey in America.

A trainload of horses is scheduled to reach the Aurora track this morning from Lexington, where the spring meeting ended yesterday. Several carloads will also be dropped off at Sportsmen's park on the way out to Aurora.

A. E. [Tony] Barrett can train his own horses. His application for a license has been approved, it was announced yesterday. The first time he applied the application was tabled. "But it was all a mistake," said the Illinois Turf association officials and Mr. Barrett in chorus.

Elzy Brown of Kentucky, who has shipped a few horses to Sportsmen's Park, is one of the old timers among the trainers. He trained Little Nephew when that colt was trying to race the eyebrows out of Old Rosebud. Both were 2 year olds at the time. Old Rosebud won two of these encounters and Little Nephew won the other two. Later on Old Rosebud turned out to be much the greater horse.

Bob Shelly, the youthful racing secretary at Sportsmen's Park, picks Cold Check, owned by J. W. Parrish of Midway, Ky., to win the Derby. "He's the best looking 3 year old I've looked at in many years," said Mr. Shelly.

There are more than 900 horses at the Aurora track awaiting the opening of the season, a final checkup revealed yeserday. Most of them are ready to run. This should make it possible for the Aurora officials to offer better programs than have ever been carded at the track down in the Fox river valley.

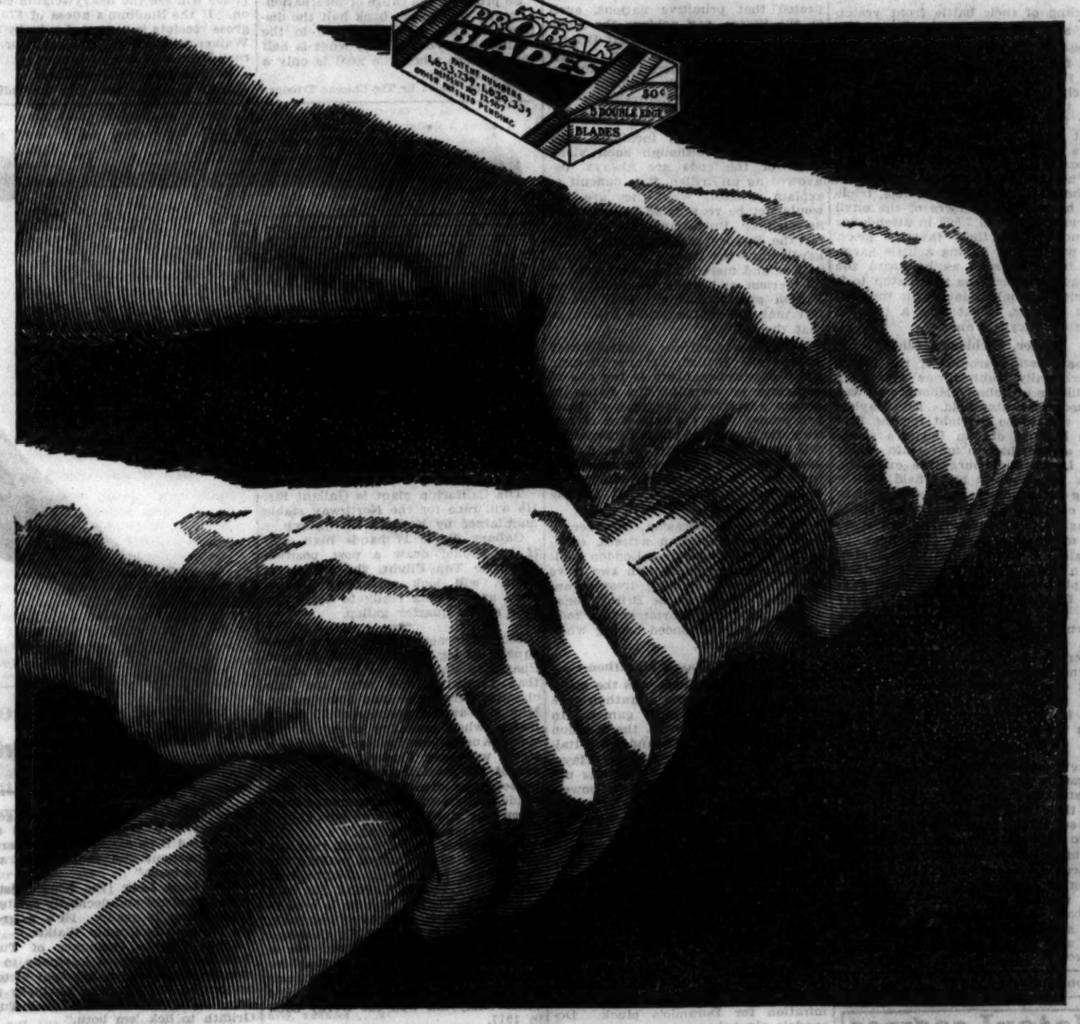
HE-MEN ASK US THIS QUESTION



● Here's a real bit of news we've never before disclosed—the answer to a question "heavy-bearded" men frequently ask. They want to know why no razor blade equals the double-edge Probak for shaving stubborn bristles smoothly. It's really very simple. We won't bore you with technical detail, but microscopic examination reveals this fact—Probak edges are entirely different from those of any other blade. They are especially honed for heavy duty service on tough bristles. This is the reason for Probak's popularity among regular men. Try Probak on our guarantee. We are sure you will like the way this blade feels as it shears wiry hair. If your satisfaction is not complete—return the package and unused blades to the store where purchased and get a full refund.

GREEN GROW THE GRASSES ON GOLF TESTING PLOTS

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Golfers who have been fortunate enough to play over the private course on the estate of Albert D. Lasker in West Lake Forest undoubtedly have caught a glimpse of a number of checkered grass plots about 100 yards to the west of the first tee. Workmen watch over the green and tan checkerboards with solicitous care, now trimming this corner, now setting a sprinkler at just the right angle on that one.

Although these plots may not appear particularly imposing, they bear the title of the Midwest Turf Garden and represent the scene of important activity in a field which most golfers overlook, although it is one of infinite value to every one playing the game.

It is on these few simple plots that work is being done which manifests itself every season on every fairway, tee, and green throughout the country. Here are carried out experiments which regulate the length of grass for fairways, methods of sprinkling, the kinds of fertilizer to be used, and the reactions of sun and wind and rain on every type of golf grass and soil.

Experiment in Its 4th Year.

The Midwest Turf Garden is one of the two large experimental stations maintained by the greens section of the United States Golf association. The other is located on the Arlington farms at Washington, D. C. In addition to these, 21 smaller demonstration gardens, 20 throughout the United States and one in Canada, also are maintained.

When the plan for a turf garden to accommodate a district the size of Chicago, with more than 200 clubs, was first brought up, the matter of a location was the big problem, but it was soon solved by Mr. Lasker, who offered the use of a portion of his private course at West Lake Forest. The first plots were laid in 1929, revamped in 1930, and are now entering the fourth year of their career as laboratory specimens.

Harold Clemens, formerly manager of the Nakoma Country club at Madison, Wis., is superintendent of the Midwest Garden. C. A. Tregillus, superintendent of the Lasker estate, acts in an advisory capacity.

One plot is used to test the reaction of various fertilizers to putting greens. When such common green ailments as large brown patch, dollar patch and pythium, have developed, half of the plot is allowed to die, while curative measures are taken with the other. Another plot is used to test the grasses against showmold, which appears frequently on courses in the northern states. Another is used to gauge the acidity in the soil under various grasses with a view to preventing clover. Another series of squares is concerned with the life and death of mixed grasses for tees.

Test Peat on Putting Greens.

An experiment new to the Midwest Garden is already under way, Mr. Clemens said yesterday, although it has been tested at the Arlington garden for nearly two years. This has to do with the use of peat in the soil texture for putting greens.

The plan is to mix peat with sand, clay, and natural soil and subject it to all of the regular tests. It is hoped to make peat the basis for a looser foundation under greens, which will make excessive watering unnecessary and thus prevent a number of grass diseases.

AMATEURS' ALBUM
Charles Bartlett

[This is the fifteenth and last of a series of sketches on the low handicap players of the Chicago District Golf association.]

JOHN HACKETT-JOHN MORRELL.

John Morrell and John Hackett are two golfers who can usually be found in the same week-end foursome out at Glen Oak—that is, if they aren't pitted against each other in a club championship match. Both are listed as three handicap players on the Chicago District Golf association's 1932 roster.

JOHN MORRELL.

JOHN HACKETT.

The golfing careers of Morrell and Hackett have followed the same path for more than twenty years, although it was not until they became members at Glen Oak that they became acquainted. Both began to play the game at the old Garfield park course and lived within a few blocks of each other without knowing the other.

Hackett came to Glen Oak in 1914 when the club was only three years old. Since then he has been one of the club's sharpshooters and served as vice president last year. He is a graduate of St. Philip's High school and the University of Chicago and is now engaged in the law business.

After having taken his first swings at Garfield park, Morrell joined the old Maywood club and later transferred to Glen Oak, where he has served on the board of directors. He is a graduate of the University of Illinois, where, in addition to playing golf, he did duty as third baseman on the varsity baseball team. He is now the local manager of an insurance agency, but has found time to hold the Glen Oak club championship for the last four years.

Last year the two friends battled twenty holes for the club championship before Morrell finally won, 1 up.

RIGHT GRIP AND HOW TO SLICE

Harry Cooper shows the proper position for the grip at the beginning of the backswing. The turn of the wrists has not yet started, so that a smoother downswing is insured and the club will return to its original position at the hitting point.

Elmer Dubb, with his peculiar ability for doing the wrong thing, has turned his wrists too soon, even before the left arm has straightened, so that the club face will be open when he hits the ball, and it will likely fly off to the right instead of going straight.

Am Is Bad, Eh Elmer? Well, It's All in Twist of Wrists

[This is the seventh of a series of articles by a novice golfer while taking a course of instruction from Harry Cooper, Glen Oak Country club professional.]

BY ELMER DUBB.

Who said this game of golf was nothing but a long walk with a sack of sticks and a ball? If I ever made such a rash statement I'll take it all back after today's lesson out at Glen Oak, when we started to find out what makes a No. 3 iron that way. At the end of the lesson I had discovered 8,947 muscles in my arms, shoulders and back that I never knew I had before. And they all ached. Don't let any one tell you there isn't plenty of exercise in golf.

One reason for this, I discovered, was that in using the three iron for the first time, I was supposed to be getting a bit more distance than I had in previous lessons with the iron clubs.

I didn't have to undergo the embarrassment of Tuesday when I took my first shots yesterday, for by this time Harry had finally driven home the value of keeping the head anchored on the ball, one, he added, that cannot be stressed enough in teaching a beginner.

Elmer's Aim Was Bad.

I glued my eyes on the ball until the club had struck it and then followed through, shifting my weight so that it was resting on the left foot with the right heel about four inches off the ground at the completion of the swing. The club struck the ball solidly, and it went far enough, but still there was something wrong. I thought my swing was smooth enough, but couldn't figure out why it was tacking to left and right instead of going right down the middle.

Harry sat on a bench facing me so that he could tell me what was wrong with the swing, but he let me go on sending them far, but out of line for some time.

"Don't you see what's wrong there?" he asked. "I'll tell you one way of finding out. When you keep your head on the ball you can just catch a flash of the position of the blade of the club when it strikes the ball and before it goes into the finish of the swing. Watch it."

The Wrists Fixed Everything.

I was so busy trying to keep my head on the ball and my hands at their full reach that I didn't get the flash he was talking about the first few swings. But finally I caught it, and in so doing found out what was wrong with the direction of my swings. The swing I found sent the ball far off to the right, and in that one fleeting glance at the club's blade as it met the ball I noticed that it was open, pointing toward the right side of the fairway.

"That's another point on which I'd like to bear down. There's a natural turn of the wrists on the back swing that should take the same turn when it's coming back on the down swing, so that the blade of the club will strike the ball at the starting position. You can gauge that turn by starting it just as the left arm reaches its full length on the back swing. Try it without the ball and stop the swing just about the time it would hit the ball if it were there."

A dozen practice swings of this nature followed and I finally caught the hang of the wrist turn—for the day anyway.

CARDINALS SLIP NEARER CELLAR; LOSE TO REDS, 6-4

Cincinnati, O., April 27.—[Special.]—The Cincinnati Reds won a hitting and base stealing contest today from the St. Louis Cardinals, 6 to 4, in the cellar step tussle between the clubs.

Playing for Heilmann at first, Jimmy Shevlin made good in his first start of the season by stealing two bases, one in a double steal in the seventh, in which Babe Herman scored.

DE PAUL GOLFERS BEAT N. U., 3 TO 2; TWO GET LOW 76

De Paul university's golf team won three out of five matches to defeat Northwestern, 3 to 2, at the Kildeer Country club yesterday in the opening meet of the season for both teams.

McKay and Karney both of De Paul tied for low score honors, each turning in a 76 for the 18 holes. The Purple golfers were off form with Capt. Fred Demaske shooting an 80 for the best round.

WHITE SOX GET KRESS IN TRADE WITH ST. LOUIS

Johnny Hodapp, making his Sox debut, was astoundingly inefficient at second base. He committed three scoreable errors and was saved from a fourth because he recovered a muffed popup in time to throw to second for a forceout of a base runner who couldn't believe the popup would be missed. In the last two innings Johnny was benched for Hayes to tighten up the defense and protect the Sox slim lead.

The Tigers' three runs not only were based on errors in their early progress, but all three actually crossed the plate on misplays—two by Hodapp and one by Watwood. The other two errors were registered in the form of muffed flies by Fothergill and Selph, who in the first and second innings helped Hodapp in the perpetration of three straight errors on three batted balls.

True Blue Lu Stars.

There were heroes in the game besides Hadley and Jones, however, and it must be emphasized that among those who were in no sense clownish was Lu Blue. Lu drove in the first two Sox runs and scored the fourth and winning one after a single. Appling drove in that winning run with his second hit, but his accomplishment was somewhat marred by an immediately subsequent bit of stupidity on the bases.

Jones battled bravely on through all the lapses and stumbling of his mates, and allowed only five hits, all singles, up till near the blowup in the ninth. After opening the ninth by striking out Rogell, Sam was embarrassed through singles by Walker and Pinch Batter White, which placed runners on third and first with only one out. It was here that Hadley entered the game and walked Pinch Batter Alexander to fill the bases. He then bore down and struck out Johnson and Davis.

In the first inning, with one out, Davis singled to center. Then Fothergill dropped Stone's easy fly. Gehringer sent a nice double play grounder at Hodapp, but it got through Johnny's heels, Davis scoring and Stone going to third. Stone and Gehringer essayed a delayed double steal, but it finished as a double play, Grube to Hodapp to Grube.

Every Drive, an Error.

To start the Tigers' second inning, Selph made it three errors on three successive batted balls when he muffed Rhell's pop fly. Rogell lined to Fothergill, who caught the ball this time, after which Walker grounded to Hodapp to force Rhell. Walker was caught stealing, Grube to Hodapp.

The Sox took a 3 to 1 lead in the third in this manner: Watwood was safe when Gehringer booted his grounder with one out and stopped at second on Selph's single. Seeds got his second walk, filling the bases and Fothergill walked forcing in Watwood with the tying run. Lyons ran for Fothergill.

Blue knocked what would have been a double or a triple with clear base lines, but the runners were holding up for a possible miracle catch by Johnson and the smack went for a single, Selph and Seeds scoring and Lyons stopping at second. The runners advanced on Hodapp's tap to Sorrell, but the rally ended when Walker caught Appling's long fly.

Sox Go Altrock.

One of the funniest of the Sox's moods became apparent as the Tigers tied the score in the fourth. Stone walked with one down. Then Gehringer popped a fly back of second, the one which Hodapp muffed. Hodapp, however, was able to recover in time to throw to Appling to force Stone at second. Rhiel singled to right and Watwood kicked the ball all over the place, Gehringer scoring and Rhiel reaching second. Rogell's easy grounder went straight through Hodapp, Rhiel scoring. Walker fouled to Grube.

In the sixth the Sox took the lead. Blue singled and went to second on one of Hodapp's three taps to the pitcher. Appling singled to center, scoring Blue. Then Grube popped to Rogell. Appling apparently had forgotten completely what he was doing and was on third when the shortstop pulled down the pop and was easily doubled.

South Parks Will Open to Golfers on Saturday

Golfing in the south parks will open Saturday at daylight, it was announced yesterday by George T. Donoghue, superintendent of the park system. There are three courses, an eighteen hole and a nine hole course at Jackson park, and an 18 hole course at Marquette park. Twelve new greens have improved the courses, Mr. Donoghue said.

MAYBE HE'LL GET THOSE HITS

Ralph (Red) Kress, hard hitting infielder who will join the White Sox today at Cleveland. Kress was traded last night by the St. Louis Browns for Irving Hadley, pitcher, and Bruce Campbell, outfielder.

Swetonic walked Hack to open the fifth and it didn't take the Cubs long to finish him for the day. Herman drove a two bagger down the left field line and Hack had no trouble scoring from first. Richbourg then put an end to Swetonic's reign by smashing his homer into the bleachers in right.

Pat Slams One.

Malone led off in the sixth with his homer, which just cleared the screen at the end of the right field seats. Hack struck out for the second time, but Herman walked and stole second. Traynor booted Richbourg's roller, Herman going to third. D. Taylor whacked a liner to right center and, unluckily for the Cubs, the ball hopped over the fence, thereby making it a two base hit. Herman scored, but Richbourg, under the rule, had to return to third base.

Grimm and Jurges coöperated for the run picked up in the seventh. The former slammed a drive down the first base line, but Suhr knocked it down to hold Grimm to a single instead of a double. Comorosky had to race over into the left field corner to chase a wallop by Jurges. Grimm scored on it, but Jurges, in trying to add a triple to his record, was nailed, Comorosky to Thevenow to Traynor.

Three Pirates Get to First.

After the first inning only three members of the Pirates were able to break up the one,two, three order established by Malone. Traynor walked in the third and was promptly gobbled up in a double play. Paul Waner survived on Jurges' wide throw in the sixth and Hartnett's arm fixed him when he endeavored to steal. Then Lloyd Waner, with one out in the eighth, singled on a Texas leaguer just beyond Herman's reach.

Bob Smith Is Cub Choice Today in Game with Cards

The St. Louis Cardinals, who aren't doing a very good job of upholding their right to the world title, will start a four game visit at Wrigley Field against the Cubs this afternoon. Bob Smith will greet them in the opener. The famous Dizzy Dean may be the St. Louis starter.

Burleigh Grimes, who has been afflicted with a series of ailments since the day the season opened, made his home debut in uniform yesterday. To keep out the chilly breezes he wore, among other things, a Turkish towel wrapped around his neck and a rubber shirt. No work can be expected from him in less than a week.

Vin Barton came close to mowing down a half dozen athletes in the pregame practice. The bat slipped from his hand, sailed close to Coach O'Leary's head, passed through a group of Pirates and finally hit Glen Spencer, a pitcher, on the right Achilles tendon.

So many mail requests were filed for tomorrow's regular ladies' day game that President Veeck took care of the overflow by mailing 5,000 tickets for today. Applications now are in order for tickets good on May 6. Requests containing self-addressed, stamped envelopes should be mailed to ladies' ticket office, Wrigley field.

Lloyd Waner grounded to short in the fifth and Jurges pegged wide of the target but Grimm managed to keep one foot on the sack while spearing the ball with his bare hand.

How I Got My Start in Baseball

BY HAL McKAIN.

[As told to Edward Burns.]

Detroit, Mich., April 27.—[Special.]—When I was 10 years old I decided that sooner or later the major leagues would be in need of my services as a pitcher. By the time I was 14 the idea had grown to the point that when my aunt, Mrs. Gussie Bingley, departed for her home in New York City after a visit with us in Council Bluffs, Ia., I assured her that it wouldn't be long until I would be seeing her—when I came to New York with a big league team.

HAL McKAIN.

Almost everything I did after that was with the view of making good my promises to my aunt, an ambition I realized when I was taken to New York with the Cleveland team in 1927.

Of course, I played with my school team at Abraham Lincoln High, Council Bluffs, but my showing there, I guess, wasn't as good as I thought it was, for when one of my teachers, Miss Mary Wallace, passed out vocational cards and I filled in mine with "major league pitcher" I got an awful razz from the kids.

After high school I played on the Council Bluffs Athletics and then went to Sioux City stockyards team where I won 26 and lost 7. Next I was with Waterloo, my first engagement in organized ball. When I won 20 and lost eight for Waterloo, I felt sure that it wouldn't be long until I would get to pay my visit to my Aunt Gussie.

BESIDES ADE AND RILEY INDIANA IS FAMOUS FOR BASS

BY BOB BECKER.

Illinois fishermen who rush the spring season by going into Indiana for white or silver bass, have until Saturday night, April 30th, for a final expedition. The season closes at that time.

Reports this week say bass in Freeman and Shafer lakes near Monticello, Ind., are "working," indicating favorable chances for a good catch. After April 30 there will be no fishing for any other kind of bass until late in June.

They're Game Fellows.

The white or silver bass is a good game fish especially on fly tackle. It takes a lure quickly and puts up a good scrap. One hot summer morning's fishing for this species in Freeman lake revealed nearly all fishermen using much heavier casting tackle than was necessary. In fact some rods were more fitted for muskalonge than white bass.

The fish had schooled and were flashing to the surface, making it comparatively easy to get the limit catch quickly. In this respect, silver bass should be a prime favorite with the beginner who wants a string without resorting to a lot of technical methods. When this species strike, either artificial or live bait, there isn't any hesitation about his manner.

Bass Are Plentiful.

Both Freeman and Shafer lakes are heavily stocked with silver bass. These lakes are artificial inasmuch as two huge dams have collected the waters of the Tippecanoe river thus forming two large fishing holes fairly well stocked with a variety of fish.

If you do not care for lake fishing, but prefer a float on the Tippecanoe river, we recommend going to Buffalo above the two lakes. It is possible to get a nice "float" for about twelve miles down the stream over a good stretch of fly rod water. This is a delightful trip late in the season during the black bass and crappie season.

FERRELL WINS 4TH VICTORY; INDIANS BEAT BROWNS, 7-1

St. Louis, Mo., April 27.—(AP)—Wes Ferrell, Cleveland pitcher, limited the St. Louis Browns to 5 hits today and enabled the Indians to win a 7 to 1 victory that gave them a clean sweep of the three game series here.

FOOTBALL, SHOT GO A LONG WAY FOR MR. MUNN

Minnesota Star Holds Big Ten Record.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Clarence Munn, football player extraordinary at the University of Minnesota, winner of THE TRIBUNE football trophy last fall as the most valuable man to his team in the Big Ten, also may boast of a series of track marks. Munn's outstanding play last fall as lineman, punter, and plunging back, not to include a couple of forward passes he caught at critical times, probably has overshadowed other athletic ability.

CLARENCE MUNN.

Munn won the Big Ten shot put championship last spring, and in the indoor Big Ten meet at Chicago in February won the same title and set a conference record.

Beats Behr in 1931.

Munn crashed through to win the outdoor shot put title in 1931 when it appeared that Sammy Behr of Wisconsin was ready to add a sixth championship in the event. Behr had taken both indoor and outdoor competition since 1929. He still holds the conference outdoor record of 49 feet 1⅛ inches, which he set in 1930 at Dyche stadium, Northwestern. But last spring, on the same field, Munn pushed the shot 48 feet 8¼ inches, while Behr's best was four inches less.

The indoor record set by Munn this winter is 48 feet 9⅛ inches, which was one-quarter of an inch better than Behr's mark.

Munn was second to Hugh Rhea of Nebraska in the shot put last week at the Kansas relays. Munn's mark was 46 feet 3¼ inches, while the winning throw was 47 feet ⅛ inch. All competitors in the field events at Kansas were handicapped by weather conditions. Rhea and Munn will resume their duel tomorrow and Saturday at the Drake relays.

Seeks Olympic Place.

Munn not only is seeking the Big Ten outdoor shot put record, but he hopes to qualify for the final United States Olympic tryouts. To qualify he must develop into a 51 foot artist, for the Olympic championship undoubtedly will be won by a throw at least one foot farther.

Munn is an all around performer, but not outstanding in other events. He still holds the Minnesota interscholastic records in the shot put, javelin throw, and 100 yard dash. He has been timed in 10 seconds for the hundred.

Munn has been married since high school days. He has worked his way through the university, from which he will be graduated this June. He is a popular campus figure and a member of Phi Kappa Sigma. He will be assistant football and track coach at Minnesota and instructor in physical education next fall.

BRADLEY OFFERS 2-1 TOP FLIGHT IS OUT OF MONEY

Lexington, Ky., April 27.—[Special.]—Col. Edward R. Bradley, who is at his Idle Hour farm, near here, awaiting the running of the Kentucky Derby, does not believe Top Flight will win the Derby.

"Did you say Top Flight's Derby price was 4 to 1?" Bradley asked a visitor at Idle Hour farm this afternoon. "I'll bet you $20,000 against $10,000 that she doesn't finish one, two, three."

Col. Bradley likes Tick On to win, but says he has a great chance to score another Derby triumph with his Brother Joe or Burgoo King.

WOMEN'S LEAGUE SHUNS DEBATE ON 2 DANGER TOPICS

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., April 27.—[Special.]—Debate on the floor of the tenth convention of the National League of Women Voters here tomorrow will, from all indications, avoid any reference to the two major topics shunned by this organization over a period of years. They are prohibition and birth control.

BELLE SHERWIN.

Delegations from three states are known to have submitted proposals concerning the latter to the committee on child welfare, for addition to the study program of the league. The committee in its preliminary deliberations vetoed the items, although a report on them probably will be given in the regular order of business.

Shuns Larger Topics.

In her annual address here tonight, Miss Belle Sherwin, national president, dwelt at length on the problems confronting the nation and the league membership as a part of it, but no reference to either of the two subjects was contained therein.

"The habit of sifting and assaying new plans, proposals and measures must result if the league is to hold the place it has won," she said in part. "You can readily multiply instances of measures the league has made its own, and which have taught us the virtue of control, of experimentation, of persistence with patience. But we should not fail to recognize now that while changing conditions counsel disciplined conduct, they particularly challenge to new and bold explorations by study and in thought.

Dr. Carroll to Lead Fight.

Dr. Mollie Ray Carroll of Chicago is expected to lead the defense tomorrow in arguments on the main item submitted for league support by the committee of women in industry. The proposal is to aid a system of federal, state and local unemployment relief.

A recommendation that the league support reorganization of the administrative branch of the federal government is expected to provoke more lively discussion.

The department of international cooperation to prevent war is recommending that the convention vote its support also to official cooperation of the United States with the league of nations in all matters pertaining to the pact of Paris.

Legislation in Illinois has provided free text books for public school pupils, but there remains doubt as to the wisdom of the selection, Mrs. Laura Hughes Lunde of Chicago said in commenting on the recommendation of the committee on education that "free text books selected with the advice of the state department of education," be placed on the study program.

Mrs. Lunde brought to the gathering in the Book-Cadillac hotel here, three maps of school districts in Cook county, showing the excessive number of one room schools.

Honor Julia Lathrop.

Early in the proceedings Mrs. Arthur Kohn of Chicago presented a memorial resolution to the late Miss Julia Lathrop, first head of the child labor bureau and one of the first presidents of the Illinois League of Women Voters.

Three other recently deceased members also were commemorated with memorial resolutions. They were Mrs. Pearce Rodey, president of the New Mexico league; Mrs. Mary Tenney Healy, and Miss Florence Kelley.

THREATS AGAINST THE ACCUSERS OF DOCTOR CHARGED

Attempts to intimidate witnesses who are scheduled to testify before the state medical board on May 6 against Dr. Lewis K. Eastman, proprietor of the Keystone hospital, were reported yesterday by J. E. Edwards, chief inspector of the state department of registration. The department has cited Dr. Eastman on charges of malpractice and extortion.

Mr. Edwards stated that Mrs. Agatha Janusz, former patient at the Keystone hospital and now a paralytic, was one of the witnesses who said she had been threatened. She told inspectors that on Feb. 23 a man called at her home at 2516 74th court, Elmwood Park, and told her to drop a $200,000 damage suit she had filed against Dr. Eastman, or "it would be just too bad." Again on March 3, she said, a man carrying a shotgun tried to frighten her at her home.

Frank Pajewski, 18 years old, another witness, has gone into hiding as a result of indirect threats relayed to him through a speakeasy proprietor, Mr. Edwards stated. Three men called on Tuesday at his home at 2254 North Laramie avenue and were told by relatives that he had gone away. Pajewski will remain in hiding until the case comes to trial, Mr. Edwards said.

URGE LONGER RUN FOR "FROLICS" OF THE UNEMPLOYED

Field & Co. Buys Up 3 Performances.

The plan to continue for another week the performances of the "Breadline Frolics" in the Majestic theater is meeting with support, Robert W. Beasley, director of the clearing house for unemployed and homeless men, announced yesterday. The "Frolics," an old time minstrel show, is being staged by and for unemployed men who are housed in the shelters maintained by the Joint Emergency Relief commission.

Mr. Beasley said large concerns are responding to the suggestion that they purchase blocks of seats in the theater so their employés may see the show. Marshall Field & Co. has taken over the entire theater for three performances—tomorrow night and Saturday and Monday nights. It is the first large concern to buy up the seats for an entire performance, Mr. Beasley said. The tickets will be given to employés in Field's store.

Hopes to Extend Run.

"If the show, with the cooperation of large businesses, can continue for an additional week," Mr. Beasley said, "we can realize about $12,000. The proceeds will provide funds for the recreational department of the clearing house, such as gymnasium facilities and entertainment.

"We are trying to provide some entertainment for the men. It is necessary to keep up their morale. The state gives them two meals a day and a place to sleep, but that is not enough. The longer the show can continue the more we can do toward accomplishing our object. Blocks of seats can be had at reduced prices."

Show Praised by Critics.

Mr. Beasley pointed out that the show can stand on its own merits. The cast comprises men from 25 shelters, many of whom are professional actors out of work. Chicago dramatic critics praised the performance as a hit on its opening night.

Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank, in a letter to Mr. Beasley yesterday commended the show and urged employers to purchase blocks of seats for their employés.

A. J. DUTCHER, RAIL AGENT, TO BE BURIED TODAY

Andrew James Dutcher, import and export freight agent for the Union Pacific railroad, who died Tuesday, will be buried today in St. Mary's cemetery, Lake Forest. His home was at 1544 Sherwin avenue.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock this morning in the chapel at Foster and Western avenues. The Rev. Dr. Alvin Smith, of the Rogers Park Presbyterian church, will officiate. Prayers will be said at the grave by the Rev. Father Daniel Frawley, of St. Jerome's Catholic church. Mr. Dutcher was a Presbyterian. His widow is Catholic.

Mr. Dutcher was 53 years old, and was born in Omaha. He was a veteran of the Spanish-American war. He joined the Union Pacific thirty years ago. During the world war he was appointed by the government to direct troop movements from Detroit.

Salesman Killed by Train as He Crosses Tracks

Erwin H. Mandler, 54 years old, 5764 Avondale avenue, an unemployed salesman, was killed yesterday when he was struck by a Chicago and North Western train at the Nagle avenue crossing. Mandler was repairing his automobile beside the tracks and walked across to get gasoline at a filling station. It is believed he became confused by east and west bound trains and stepped into the path of the latter.

School Boy Accidentally Wounded in Rifle Play

Thomas Fox, 14 years old, 8008 Dobson avenue, a student of Calumet High school, was accidentally wounded in the abdomen yesterday afternoon when he and several companions were shooting with a .22 caliber rifle in a vacant lot at 83d street and Kimbark avenue. The gun was fired by James Loehr, 14 years old, 7827 Ingleside avenue. Fox was taken to the Burnside hospital.

HENRY S. ROBBINS, 79, PROMINENT CHICAGO ATTORNEY, IS DEAD

Henry Spencer Robbins, prominent Chicago attorney, died yesterday in his suite at the Ambassador East hotel, after an illness of several months. He was 79 years old.

HENRY SPENCER ROBBINS.

Mr. Robbins was born in Stoughton, Mass., Feb. 5, 1853, and was graduated from Yale. He received his law degree at the University of Wisconsin in 1874. After practicing law for two years in New York he came to Chicago in 1876, where he married Frances F. Johnston, who died in 1927. In his practice here he was associated with the late Mayor Hempstead Washburne and with Senator Lyman Trumbull.

For 26 years he was attorney for the Chicago Board of Trade. He became nationally known in Democratic circles as an associate of the late William Jennings Bryan.

He is survived by his widow, the former Helen Beatrice Graham of Toronto, Can., whom he married in 1929; four daughters, Mrs. Frank Hibbard, Mrs. James M. Hopkins, Mrs. Charles W. Isaacs Jr., and Mrs. William Odell Jr., and a sister, Miss Alice Robbins, who lives in France. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Graceland cemetery chapel.

Lake County Pioneer Dies on Her 86th Birthday

Mrs. Mary Siver Stewart, who died in Waukegan Tuesday, her 86th birthday, will be buried this afternoon in Oakdale cemetery in Lake county. Funeral services will be held at Christ Episcopal church, Waukegan. Mrs. Stewart was born in Oneida county, New York state, and moved to Lake county eighty-two years ago. She was a past president of the Woman's Relief corps of Waukegan and its secretary for thirty years. Surviving her are three sons.

WILLIAM W. PIKE'S DEATH REVEALED BY FILING OF WILL

The death of William Wallace Pike, son of Eugene S. Pike, pioneer Chicago real estate operator, in Munich, Germany, on April 20, was revealed yesterday, when his will was filed with Probate Clerk Mitchell C. Robin. He was a brother of Eugene R. Pike, former city controller and former president of the Lincoln park board.

Mr. Pike, who had been in Europe almost continually since the first decade of the century, was 59 years old when he died after a short illness. His wife, Mrs. Johanna Pike, and a daughter, Mary Louise, were at his bedside. They have not yet returned to this country.

Under the terms of the will, which, attorneys estimate, will control an estate of approximately $1,000,000, the larger portion of the property was left in trust, the income to be shared equally by Mrs. Pike and her daughter. Miss Pike also was willed her father's share of the income from her grandfather's trust created in 1917. The United Charities of Chicago were bequeathed $20,000. The trust will terminate at the death of Mrs. Pike and the principal will go to Miss Pike.

In 1902 Mr. Pike, then president of a mercantile corporation in Chicago, was a principal in a breach of promise suit which attracted much newspaper publicity. The complainant was "Baby Jo" Moffitt, whose letters and testimony of a common law marriage held the attention of Chicago for two weeks until "Baby Jo" was declared an adventuress b. Judge H. C. Clifford.

CAPT. JAS. MADDEN IS DEAD; 41 YEARS ON POLICE FORCE

James Madden, 74 years old, former police captain and a veteran of 41 years' service on the police force, died yesterday of heart disease in his home at 7010 Normal boulevard. He had been ill for six weeks. Capt. Madden joined the police force in 1882. He served as a captain for 31 years and retired in 1923. He was for many years in command of the Englewood police district. Capt. Madden is survived by his second wife, Anne; a son, Harry, and two daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Steinhurst and Mrs. Helen Larkin.

John C. Ross, 82, Grain Man and Farmer, Dead

John C. Ross, 82 years old, of Rochelle, for many years a grain trader in Chicago, died suddenly at his home yesterday. Mr. Ross, with a son, had operated a grain and stock farm eight miles north of Rochelle since his retirement from active business in 1912. However, he retained his membership in the Chicago Board of Trade until 1918. Born in Sincoe, Ontario, Mr. Ross spent his boyhood in Rockford. Surviving him are three children, Mrs. Irving Sullivan of Rochelle, Harry F. of Harvard, and John A. Ross, with whom he operated the farm. Funeral services will be held at the Rochelle farm at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Greenwood cemetery, Rockford.

N. Y. ATTORNEYS POSTPONE VISIT TO COAL FIELDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 27.—[Special.]—The scheduled visit of leaders in the American Civil Liberties union to the Kentucky coal mine country was postponed today for legal and publicity reasons. The delegation, headed by Arthur Garfield Hays and Dudley Field Malone, nationally known lawyers with radical backgrounds, had planned to set forth on its expedition into a zone lately forbidden to labor agitators, slightly "Red" college students, and all communists tomorrow afternoon. Now the journey will not begin until May 10.

DUDLEY FIELD MALONE.

Members of the delegation, including Mr. Malone, said the trip into Bell and Harlan counties, storm centers of the strike area, would be made regardless of whether or not legal protection could be obtained.

Information was received this afternoon at the offices of the Civil Liberties union, an organization identified with radical and communistic activities in the past, that a hearing on an application for an injunction restraining the authorities of Bell and Harlan counties from interfering with the visiting group would be held at London, Ky., on May 12.

ECONOMIES, PAY CUTS BOLSTER RAIL EARNINGS

March Reports Show Improvement.

BY O. A. MATHER.

There is no doubt that drastic economies, combined with reduced wages and salaries and somewhat higher freight rates, are combining to bolster railroad earnings. Some thirty of the class 1 carriers have reported March earnings in the last few days. Most of them show improvement in net railway operating revenue over February, which was to be expected in view of the moderate improvement in traffic that occurred last month and is continuing this month.

More significant, however, is the fact that about a third of the roads show larger net operating earnings than for March, 1931. Inasmuch as traffic last month fell considerably below that of a year before, it is clear that the improvement has resulted from the causes heretofore mentioned. However, the improvement in earnings should be accepted as only indicating an upward trend, as a number of the roads are still failing to earn fixed charges and still have serious financial problems to work out.

North Western Figures.

In the middle west, the Chicago and North Western reported net operating income of $227,338 for March, compared with $181,641 in February. But last month's figure was well under the $831,137 a year before. Net earnings for the first quarter were only $135,242, compared with $1,721,700 for the same period in 1931.

The Rock Island reported March net operating revenue of $576,670, compared with $365,013 in February and $1,093,319 in March, 1931. However, the road had a loss of $572,900 after charges last month, which made the first quarter loss of $2,591,097, which compared with surplus of $237,626 for the first quarter of 1931.

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe reported March net operating revenue at $843,550, compared with $921,306 in February and $1,469,016 in March, 1931. Net revenue for the first quarter was $1,638,955, compared with $4,072,356 a year before.

Northern Pacific Report.

The Northern Pacific had an operating deficit of $299,086 last month, against a deficit of $519,899 in February and net revenue of $467,806 in March, 1931. For the first quarter there was an operating deficit of $1,374,242, compared with net revenue of $406,203 a year previous.

The Burlington last month had net income of $787,402, compared with $341,803 in February and $1,352,263 in March, 1931. Net income for the first quarter was $1,072,364, against $4,084,167 a year before.

Among the eastern roads the Pennsylvania reported March net railway operating income of $3,940,854, compared with $2,629,499 in February and $4,248,686 in March, 1931. For the first quarter the figure was $9,230,863, against $10,326,817 a year before.

Baltimore and Ohio Gain.

The Baltimore and Ohio had March net railway operating income of $1,716,696, compared with $1,402,591 in February and $2,519,002 a year before. For the first quarter, the figure was $4,474,203, against $4,560,723 last year.

The Delaware and Hudson reported March net operating income at $81,734, against a deficit of $77,453 in February and net of $88,337 in March, 1931. For the first quarter there was a deficit of $125,381, against net of $456,373 a year ago.

The New York Central Railroad company reported $3,269,700 net railway operating income for March, compared with $3,908,665 in March, 1931. Gross revenues totaled $28,424,442, a decrease of $6,153,857.

UNION PACIFIC LOSS

The Union Pacific railroad registered a loss of $9,011,881 for tax purposes through rearrangement of its investment in the Railroad Securities company, the annual report for 1931 shows.

The report also indicates for the first time an investment of $5,830,000 par value of Wabash railway preferred "A" stock, which had been held by Railroad Securities. The latter company transferred its ownership of $2,120,000 par value common and $2,852,000 par value preferred stock of Illinois Central railroad and the Wabash stock to the Union Pacific railroad.

Sells Illinois Central Shares.

Stock of the Railroad Securities company, representing only the equity in $68,000,000 par value of pledged common stock of Illinois Central, then was sold to the Kansas City Industrial company, controlled by Union Pacific, but not affiliated for tax purposes, in order to realize for tax purposes the loss on this investment represented by the depreciated market price of Illinois Central stock.

As a result, although net income was $26,057,312, or $9.93 per share, compared with $38,736,005, or $15.65 per share in 1930. Federal taxes were only $743,203 against $3,187,942 in 1930.

Other investments in stock of non-affiliated companies were unchanged. Dividend income on these securities was reduced from $5,615,289 to $3,627,949. No dividends are now being paid on them.

The balance sheet of Dec. 31 showed cash of $12,181,489, a decrease of $6,303,678, and demand loans and deposits of $4,750,000, and increase of $3,250,000.

Moffat Road Reports.

Denver, Colo., April 27.—(AP)—Operating revenue of the Denver and Salt Lake [Moffat] road decreased $894,446.34, or 27.89 per cent, and net income dropped $4,843.49 last year, said the annual report of the board of directors sent to stockholders today by President W. P. Freeman.

FRANCE CANCELS DOUBLE TAXATION ON U. S. BUSINESS

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 27.—A new leaf in Franco-American commercial relations was turned today when Ambassador Walter E. Edge and Premier Andre Tardieu signed a convention by which the French government renounces double taxation on American business interests in France in return for certain concessions. The concessions have not been disclosed.

The double taxation has been described as a unique international racket. Since 1926 France has been trying to levy taxes on American parent organizations in proportion to the amount of business done by their subsidiaries here.

How Plan Works.

For example, if an American corporation in the United States distributed one million dollars in dividends and if in the French government opinion one-tenth of its business was done by its subsidiary in France, French fiscal authorities would exact 18 per cent on $100,000 of these dividends in addition to regular taxes already paid here by the subsidiary. Americans always claimed that this system was a violation of American sovereignty.

Theoretically this convention will save many million dollars annually to American corporations with interests in France. This is only theoretically, however, because the French hitherto have been unable to collect one cent of all the taxes they claimed under this law, but it has been a thorn in the side of the American business man here for six years.

Risks Popularity.

The United States is the first country to obtain abolition of double taxation from the French government and it is regarded as a great personal triumph for Ambassador Edge, who has risked unpopularity among a certain class of American expatriates. When he arrived in France over two years ago he announced abolition of the double taxation would be one of his objectives.

The text of the convention is still secret. It is thought that the concessions made by the United States refer to taxation of French nationals in America and are not important from a fiscal standpoint. The action now must be ratified by the French parliament and American congress.

Ireland Boosts Tariff.

DUBLIN, April 27.—(AP)—A 50 per cent emergency tariff has been imposed by the Free State government on all foreign clothing and other duties on woolen textiles, hats, shirts, brooms, and brushes. The British empire was accorded lower preferential rates in the order, which was put into effect last night. The rate on clothing from the empire will be 40 per cent instead of 50.

Wool cloth valued at more than two shillings [about 38 cents] a square yard will be taxed 45 per cent, with an empire preference rate of 30 per cent. Cloth valued at less than two shillings a yard will pay 30 per cent, with an empire preference rate of 20 per cent. Hats and shirts will pay 22½ per cent, with a preference rate of 15 per cent. Brooms and brushes will pay 50 per cent with a preference rate of 33 1-3 per cent.

Baltimore & Ohio Plans Moving Branch Offices

Officials of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad announced plans to move offices of the Ohio and St. Louis divisions of that road to Cincinnati from Chillicothe, O., and Washington, Ind. The transfer is effective May 1.

THE FOOD INDUSTRY EARNINGS HOLDING STEADY FOR QUARTER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 27.—Stability of earnings of companies engaged in the food industry was demonstrated today by the report of Standard Brands, Inc., for the first quarter of 1932.

Net income for the period amounted to $4,017,657 after all charges, equal, after dividends paid on the preferred stock, to 30 cents a share on the outstanding common shares. This compares with $4,054,588 or similar share earnings on the common for the corresponding quarter of 1931.

The company paid out $167,651 in dividends on the preferred stock for the March, 1932, quarter, compared with $258,064 for the same period of last year.

NEW YORK LIFE PAYS $21,295,320 WITHIN ILLINOIS

New York, April 27.—Payments made to Illinois policyholders and their beneficiaries by the New York Life Insurance company in 1931 and investments of the company in the state during the year amounted to $16,960,659 in excess of the total of premiums collected, it was reported today.

During 1931 the New York Life collected $25,099,489 in premiums in Illinois. At the same time it paid to resident policyholders and their beneficiaries in death losses, maturing endowments, dividends, etc., $21,295,320 and invested in the state in mortgage loans or bonds and loaned to policyholders a total of $20,764,828.

At the end of 1931 the total investment of the company in Illinois amounted to $113,034,575. This amount is exclusive of a portion of the investments of over $44,000,000 in the securities of interstate industries whose operations are so widely distributed that they cannot be allocated by states. If such an allocation were possible, the company states, the amount invested during the year and the total of investments in Illinois would be shown to be considerably larger.

New insurance issued by the New York Life in Illinois in 1931 amounted to $66,964,703, bringing the total insurance in force of the company in the state on Dec. 31, 1931, to $733,869,460.

KANSAS CITY, MO., BOSTON SELLING NEW SECURITIES

New York, April 27.—(AP)—Kansas City, Mo., $1,700,000 municipal 4¾ per cent bonds were offered today by a banking group consisting of Dillon, Read & Co., Bancamerica-Blair corporation, Ladenburg, Thalman & Co., and George B. Gibbons & Co., Inc. The bonds, for various improvements, were priced to yield 4.35 per cent for maturities ranging from two to forty years. Kansas City has a bonded indebtedness of $35,041,000.

Boston Borrows Three Millions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., April 27.—Boston today borrowed three million dollars from the First National bank on tax anticipation notes due Oct. 5, at 2 23-100 per cent, the lowest interest rate offered the city this year.

The money will be used to carry on the regular work of the city departments pending fall tax collections.

There were seven bidders, the largest number on city loans for years. The highest interest rate asked was 3 per cent, by the City Company of Massachusetts.

Dept. of Justice Plans Appeal of No. Shore Case

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 27.—The department of justice today stated that it would appeal to the United States Supreme court a case recently decided by the United States District court in Chicago in which it was held that the Chicago North Shore and Milwaukee Railroad company, an electric line, was not a railroad subject to regulation by the interstate commerce commission.

CALLS KREUGER ESTATE WORTH ABOUT $78,400 NOW

New York Exchange Tightens Rules.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 27.—(AP)—Prof. M. Fehr, investigating the tangled affairs of Ivar Kreuger, Swedish match king, who killed himself in Paris recently, today said the financier's personal estate could be valued at only 400,000 kroner [currently about $78,400] at a quick realization.

Prof. Fehr said the receivers would aim at slow winding up of the affairs of Kreuger & Toll and associated companies in the belief that such a procedure would have a better chance of satisfying creditors.

Ask Longer Moratorium.

Meanwhile Kreuger & Toll and associated companies today requested extension of the Swedish goverment moratorium on their obligations from May 1 to May 31, pending completion of an investigation into their affairs.

Meanwhile negotiations between the International Telephone and Telegraph corporation and the L. M. Ericsson company have resulted in a preliminary agreement, according to the newspaper Nya Daglight which assures the continuance of the Swedish company. Prof. Fehr said, however, these negotiations had reached no definite conclusions.

Takes New Precautions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 27.—As the result of a change in the requirements of the New York Stock exchange, corporations seeking to list securities must agree to notify the exchange immediately of the change or removal of any collateral, deposited under any of its mortgage or trust indentures through which listed securities are outstanding.

This new rule is believed to have been inspired by the substitutions which were revealed recently in the collateral behind the 5 per cent debentures of the Kreuger & Toll company. These substitutions involved the replacement of readily marketable collateral by other securities. The changes were not disclosed until two weeks after the suicide of Ivar Kreuger, executive head of the company, although the substitutions are understood to have been made many months previously.

Old Method Proves Weak.

Protective committees which have been formed for holders of Kreuger securities have called attention to the ineffectiveness of the old listing rule, which made it possible for substitutions to be made in the underlying collateral without investors being notified of the changed status of the securities.

When the Kreuger & Toll 5 per cent debenture issue, amounting to 50 million dollars, was listed on the exchange in August, 1929, the company agreed "to notify the exchange if deposited collateral is changed or removed, excepting for incidental items which will be reported annually.

The new rule, which is revealed in the agreement under which the exchange yesterday listed $5,250,000 additional bonds of the Kansas City Power and Light company, says the company will "notify the exchange immediately of the change or removal, to a substantial extent, of collateral deposited under any of its mortgage or trust indentures, under which listed securities are outstanding."

PINS BLAME FOR STOCK DECLINES ON BIG BANKS

Washington, D. C., April 27.—(AP)—Placing upon the large commercial banks a large share of responsibility for recent depression of security values, Chairman Peter Norbeck of the senate banking committee threatened tonight to bring their activities under the spotlight of the stock exchange investigation.

Norbeck charged the banks with being part "of the hoarding system over which so much complaint now is made."

In a statement he said:

"If this condition continues and these banks keep on forcing liquidation and refuse credit made available to them, I am going to recommend to the senate committee on banking and currency that this matter be gone into fully. This can be done by bringing to Washington some of the bankers who have large cash reserves and more available credit and still are refusing to make new loans and even refusing to grant extensions where the borrower is worthy and the security is satisfactory."

"The bankers," he continued, "are adding to the force of deflation and destroying the value of all property."

"PENNSY" ROAD DEFERS PAYING ITS DIVIDENDS

Breaks Record Going Back to 1847.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 27.—Directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad company at their meeting today voted to defer action on the quarterly dividend due at this time. In the two preceding quarters, dividends of 50c a share were declared following the reduction in the annual rate from $4 a share to $3.

Omission of the Pennsylvania's distribution to stockholders came as a surprise to the financial community, where it was believed that while a further reduction was likely, directors would not consider complete cessation of disbursements in view of the unusual dividend record of the road.

The board of Delaware and Hudson ordered today the regular quarterly dividend of $2.25 a share, payable June 20 to holders of record May 28. It is one of the few that have not reduced dividend payments in the current depression.

Longest Dividend Record.

The Pennsylvania has the longest dividend record of any railroad in the world, having paid a cash return to its stockholders in every year since 1847. The first installment on subscriptions to the capital stock was paid in April, 1847. In May, 1848, the company began the payment of interest on stock subscriptions at the rate of 6 per cent a year and similar payments were made until Nov. 1, 1855.

Beginning with 1856 the payments to the stockholders were designated as dividends and have been maintained at varying rates since that time.

During 1931 the company distributed cash disbursements totaling $3.25 a share to its stockholders, although earnings were reduced substantially in line with the downward traffic and earning trend of the other carriers of the country.

Net Drops Two-Thirds.

Net income for the year ended Dec. 31 last, amounted to $19,545,194, equivalent to $1.49 a share on the capital stock against $68,809,818 or $5.28 a share for 1930.

So far this year the company had demonstrated an excellent control over costs of operation. Although gross revenue receded sharply, net operating income had been maintained at a level not far below last year's totals.

At present the company is engaged in the huge electrification and improvement campaign, in connection with which a loan of $55,000,000 has been sought from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The interstate commerce commission has not made public its attitude toward that loan and has made no announcement whether the credit extension will be recommended.

Not Affected by Loan.

Officials of the company have declared, however, that the question of maintenance of the dividend has no bearing on the loan application to the Reconstruction Finance corporation. In the schedule of contemplated cash requirements for the year, submitted in connection with the loan application, provision was made for payment of regular dividends throughout the current year.

The interstate commerce commission and the finance corporation were advised, however, that work on the company's improvement program already was being retarded and would cease entirely unless credit was obtained from the government. It is possible, therefore, that in deferring the dividend the management wishes to place the company in position to proceed with the construction work without governmental help, in the event that the loan application is turned down, or else take steps to obtain financial accommodation from usual sources.

Studebaker Omits Dividend.

Predictions made by A. R. Erskine, president of the Studebaker corporation, that the company probably would suspend the dividend on common stock were fulfilled today. The board met and decided to omit the quarterly rate due at this time. The company had been paying 30 cents a share quarterly. Regular quarter was on the preferred stock.

Directors of Pierce-Arrow Motor Car company, controlled by the Studebaker corporation, also decided to omit the quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share due at this time on the preferred stock.

Directors of the Globe & Rutgers Fire Insurance company suspended the quarterly dividend of $5 a share at this time on the company's stock. This is the most severe action taken by an insurance company since the depression started and was generally construed as a reflection of the sharp depreciation in value of Globe & Rutgers' portfolio.

Deere & Co. declared today a quarterly dividend of 10 cents a share on the preferred stock compared with 35 cents a share heretofore. Officers and directors were reelected.

The board of Caterpillar Tractor company declared a dividend of 12½ cents a share, compared with previous quarterly payments of 25 cents each.

OTHER DIVIDEND ACTION

Oliver United Filters, Inc., of Nevada has deferred the quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share due to be paid May 1 on the class "A" shares. This action places the stock two dividends in arrears.

Chain Belt company declared a quarterly dividend of 20 cents a share on common stock, placing the issue on an 80 cent annual basis, against $1 previously.

Federal Trade Group Drops Some 'Probes'

BY SCRUTATOR.

In a special release to the press the federal trade commission complains that because congress failed to provide a requested deficiency appropriation for the commission a hundred of its employés had to be furloughed without pay as of April 1, 1932.

The commission adds that the estimated $1,266,500 appropriation for its work for 1932-'33 would necessitate additional economies.

Several investigations will be retarded, says the commission. Seventy-one employés working on the chain store inquiry are furloughed. Eighteen employés digging up data on power and gas utilities are among the 100, as are eleven others working on investigations of the cement industry and the building materials industry.

In the 1931 fiscal year the commission spent $1,752,356, of which $1,413,550 went to cover the salaries of its 493 employés and $199,005 defrayed their traveling expenses.

These employés included five commissioners at $ 10,000 each, one chief economic analyst at $8,000, eight chief economic analysts at an average of $5,950 each, five senior economic analysts, seven associate economic analysts, and seven plain economic analysts.

Variety of Assistants.

There were library assistants and assistant librarians, junior library assistants, under library assistants and minor library assistants, chief attorneys, associate attorneys and assistant attorneys. Even the messenger boy had understudies. In addition to six messengers at $1,350 each there were four assistant messengers at $1,080 and four junior messengers at $600.

That's just a beginning. There were secretaries, accountants, auditors, business investigators, editors, associate editors, assistant editors, clerks, stenographers, draughtsmen and so on.

In the fall of 1914 congress passed the federal trade commission act which transformed the old bureau of corporations of the department of commerce into the federal trade commission with power to "gather and compile information concerning and to investigate from time to time the organization, business, conduct, practices, and management of any corporation engaged in commerce, excepting banks and common carriers . . . and its relation to other corporations and to individuals, associations, and partnerships."

Functions Are Remedial.

In its last annual report the commission describes its own functions as "remedial, not punitive, as no authority is vested in the commission to impose penalties. Its object is to protect the public, not to punish the offender."

Since 1915 the federal trade commission has conducted 73 investigations at the request of the President, congress or the attorney general. This is the type of thing that keeps the assorted economic analysts and their messengers and assistant messengers busy:

On Oct. 22, 1929, the United States senate authorized the commission to investigate the peanut industry. Some of the work was done by August, 1930, when a fire in the offices of the commission destroyed the records. It has since been duplicated.

A similar investigation into the cottonseed industry was also inaugurated in the fall of 1929. On the first of this month the commission made its eleventh interim report to the senate on this investigation.

A Massaging Girdle.

Among its other actions this month the commission entered formal complaint against a manufacturer of girdles in New York who "advertises that the garments impart a constant massage-like pressure which breaks down the fat cells as the wearer walks."

In March the commission got a distributor of golf tees to agree to "discontinue use of the word 'manufacturer' in a way to imply ownership or operation of factories in which the products sold are manufactured, when neither owning nor operating such factories."

In March also it prevailed upon a distributor to discontinue use of the word "Panama" to designate hats that are not made from the leaves of the lipipapa tree.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 27.—Stocks assumed a more cheerful tone today. The news from Washington looked a bit brighter and a growing conviction that overhanging liquidation in the leaders has about been completed nourished a better feeling all around. The improvement extended to all departments, with gains of 1 to 2 points numerous. The turnover expanded to above a million shares for the first time in a week.

Little attention was paid to the action of the Pennsylvania railroad board in deferring the common dividend due at this time, nor did the omission of the United States Steel rate announced after the close of business yesterday make any material difference in the stock of that corporation or its camp followers. Obviously the "bad news" in both cases had been thoroughly discounted—to the street's satisfaction, at least—in the selling of the last week or so.

Although the day's rally was heartily welcomed, brokers and other observers were very guarded in their comment as to its extent or probable duration. Most of the commentators agreed that the upturn would fulfill expectations for the present, if it did no more than put a period to the decline which has been under way for the last month or so.

Rails and Utilities Rise.

Railroad and utility stocks made the best showing measured by points. The power and light issues had an extremely unfavorable showing of figures on electric output for the week ended April 23 against them, but they ignored the statistics completely. American Telephone and Peoples Gas rose about 2 points each, and Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey and other favorites moved up a notch or more. The closing sale on Peoples Gas was at 73, which compares with the low of 50¾ registered by the big mid-western utility affair about the time of the Insull receivership moves some two weeks ago.

TAKE STEP IN REFINANCING OF UPTOWN FLATS

Convey Winchester Arms to Woman.

If you have a defaulted real estate bond and haven't been able to get the desired information regarding it from the bondholders' protective committee or from other sources, The Tribune may be of assistance to you. Write to "The Tribune Real Estate Bond Service, Chicago Tribune." Don't ask for information regarding more than one issue at a time. Give name of underwriter and full title of the bond. Inquiries must be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope for personal reply.

BY AL CHASE.

A step in the reorganization of the Winchester Arms apartment property at 1940-54 Wilson avenue, at the northwest corner of Winchester avenue, was taken yesterday when the title was conveyed by the Winchester Arms Building corporation, of which Howard D. Henry is president, to Minnie H. Case. According to the bondholders' protective committee, of which Barnet L. Rosset is chairman, the reorganization setup will be announced shortly. The other members of the committee are: A. S. Craven, Charles B. Lawton, Earl G. Krumrine, and Charles J. Young.

A. S. GRAVEN.

The Winchester Arms apartments were erected through a Straus Brothers Investment company $290,000 first mortgage bond issue, which has since been reduced to $244,000. The building contains 57 small apartments. It occupies a 152x192 site.

Cregier Apartments.

The Central Republic Bank and Trust company yesterday took title as trustee to the 30 flat building at 7030-38 Cregier avenue from William Gould and Hugh Boyd. The property, known as the Cregier apartments, was financed by means of a $110,000 first mortgage bond issue underwritten by the Chicago Trust company. This has been paid down to $108,000. There are two junior mortgages on the property. Interest on the first mortgage bonds defaulted on May 1, 1931, and the bonds were called on Dec. 14, 1931.

Although no definite reorganization plan has yet been drawn up, it is understood that the equity owner and the junior interests will be recognized in the official refinancing of the project. Defrees, Buckingham, Jones & Hoffman are attorneys.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

The treasury department yesterday awarded a contract for constructing a new postoffice at Lewisburg, Pa., to the Hanson Brothers company of Chicago at $165,747. The firm has 420 days in which to complete the work.

The two story factory, warehouse and office building at the northeast corner of 77th street and Maryland avenue, lot 125x252, and the vacant 75x125 on the east side of Cottage Grove avenue, 202 feet north of 77th street, were conveyed yesterday by Fred E. Hummel, trustee in bankruptcy of the Niemenn Furniture manufacturing company, to Roy Massena. Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin were attorneys.

Title to the residence at 911 Reba place, Evanston, has been conveyed by David G. Robertson, who lives there, to Mrs. Gladys C. Reeve of Evanston. The property is 50x147. Mr. Robertson also conveyed to Mrs. Reeve the 49x150 on the west side of Evanston avenue, 108 feet south of Payne street, Evanston.

The 36 flat building at the northwest corner of Wabash avenue and 80th street, lot 158x160, has been conveyed by the Cottage Grove State bank, trustee, to Lillian M. Ryan.

RESCIND COURT ORDER NAMING RECEIVER FOR CONTINENTAL SHARES

Baltimore, Md., April 27.—(AP)—An order rescinding the day old receivership for Continental Shares, Inc., Cleveland investment trust incorporated in Maryland, was signed today by Judge H. Arthur Stump in Circuit court. The new order called for appointment of a receiver unless cause to contrary is shown by May 9.

Judge Stump signed the original order yesterday naming George L. Guggle of Columbus as receiver for the trust under $10,000 bond. The new order rescinded his appointment.

The order stated that, on motion of attorneys for Continental Shares and on stipulation that the concern will not cause other receivership proceedings to be instituted until the present case is disposed of, the receivership was vacated.

While the order signed yesterday actually declared the concern in receivership, the new one calls for the naming of a receiver unless contrary cause is shown. Guggle, who, according to the suit is the holder of 748 shares of Continental Shares, Inc., and is a member of the stockholders' protective committee formed some time ago, attacked operation of the investment trust and claimed it had been dominated by Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier and former chairman of its board, and that he had used it to further his personal financial dealings.

Yesterday's receivership order and today's action were signed by Judge Stump in chambers without argument in court.

FARM BOARD'S CHAIRMAN ASKS 100 MILLION MORE

New Wheat, Cotton Export Plan Stirs Protest.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 27.—Chairman James C. Stone of the federal farm board asked the senate agriculture committee today to give the board an additional appropriation of $100,000,000 in addition to the half billion dollars granted that board two years ago.

The new appropriation asked in a resolution by Senator Charles L. McNary [Rep., Ore.] would be used to finance the foreign sale of the farm board's surplus wheat and cotton. Chairman Stone told the senate committee between 15,000,000 and 25,000,000 bushels of wheat and 500,000 to 1,000,000 bales of cotton probably could be sold abroad if a fund is available to finance the purchases.

Such export sales he argued would be the key of a three phase plan for helping American agriculture. The other two points he urged were continuation by the federal reserve board's policy of increased operations to expand credit and increase consumer buying power; further development of farmers' cooperative marketing.

"Wheat and cotton prices have led the way out of previous depressions," Chairman Stone declared. "It is particularly important that our domestic carryover of wheat be reduced."

STIRS CHICAGO PROTEST

Protests were voiced in Chicago yesterday against the federal farm board chairman's request for federal funds to finance export sales of cotton and wheat.

The Federation of American Business attacked "this added raid on the federal treasury" in a statement issued by B. W. Snow, one of its directors. Mr. Snow called on Chairman Stone to show just where such foreign markets could be found without risking the loss of all or a large part of the taxpayers' money used to finance the proposed sales.

Charges Proposal Is Disguised.

"The word financing in the sense used by Mr. Stone simply means paying for these products by appropriations from the United States treasury and their disposition abroad at prices below those ruling in this country," the statement charged. "Long time credits would be necessary.

"Our experience with our European debtors, our present moratorium, which has added 270 millions to this year's tax burdens in this country and which will add an equal amount at least to next year's burden, justifies the belief that the farm board plan in effect will be to give these products to Europe."

The federation declared that if the products were to "furnish cheap food for foreign industrial populations and low priced cotton for foreign spindles" lower costs would in turn "further handicap American industry in its effort to find employment for American workmen."

"Why so much solicitude for economic conditions abroad and hungry European workmen?" asked Mr. Snow. "Why not give American people a chance at the cheap food and raw materials that the farm board is so eager to dump into the lap of Europe?"

Tells of European Conditions.

That the farm board has surveyed foreign market prospects was indicated here yesterday upon the return of George S. Milnor, president of the farm board's stabilization corporation, from an extensive European tour. Mr. Milnor declared that Holland, France, Belgium, and other European countries that had counted on wheat from Russia would need North American wheat if it could be financed.

It was also learned yesterday upon the return of Don M. Geyer, manager of the Pure Milk association, farmers' marketing agency for the Chicago area, that dairy farmers of the nation would go on record before the senate committee this week as opposed to the farm board's crop stabilizing activities. The National Cooperative Milk Producers federation, of which Geyer is a director, went on record Tuesday as favoring the abolishing of the ninth section of the federal marketing act which empowered the farm board to speculate in farm commodities.

"These efforts to stabilize prices have not only been unsuccessful," Geyer said, "but have brought discredit on the farm board and on the work it was created to do, that is, aid farmers in forming cooperative marketing agencies."

COTTON AVERAGES HIGHER

Movement of cotton was the reverse of Tuesday, there being weakness early with a slow advance and the close around the best prices of the day. There was no great activity at any time. Traders were of the impression that the bulk of the May contracts have been changed over to the deferred months. Sentiment in all was a little better due to an improved tone in the stock market and the disposition to sell was more modified.

The weekly weather crop report was on the whole more favorable. Planting had made steady progress and will be on in the north and west within a few days. The American weather crop service said advices were that while April rainfall had been deficient in local areas, the belt has abundant subsoil moisture, and germination for early planted seed has been about an average. Fosick says indications are for more than 10 per cent decrease in acreage. Commission houses bought the May and sold deferred futures. It is said that liquidation is well out of the way. Liverpool closed 4 to 5 points net lower. The futures in Chicago finished unchanged to 6 points net higher, with other markets up 7 to 10 points. New York leading both in spots and futures. Spots in the latter market advanced 10 points to 6.25c, while other markets were up 5 points. New Orleans being 6.15c; Houston, 6.15c, and Galveston, 6.20c. Prices follow:

CHICAGO TICKER RELATES STORY OF DULL TRADE

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

A drab story of quiet trading and minor price fluctuations was related yesterday by the Chicago exchange ticker tape. The action of the market led tape watchers to believe that the proverbial summer dullness may be ushered in ahead of season this year.

Generally the market maintained a firm tone with a few individual issues suffering small recessions. Commonwealth Edison added moderately to its recent gains as good supporting orders were again in evidence. Public Service $100 common on light trade spurted 4¼ points. Cities Service was active and easier at 4⅛. Interest in other utility securities was at low ebb.

Chain Belt common dipped 3 points to 7, apparently as a result of the action of directors in reducing the yearly dividend rate from $1 to 80 cents. Lindsay Light stock showed no reaction to the decision of directors in reducing the annual dividend rate to 4 per cent.

Directors of Northwest Utilities company, subsidiary of Middle West Utilities, took no action yesterday on the quarterly dividends on the 6 and 7 per cent preferred stocks. The dividends are ordinarily payable May 15. The dividend on the 7 per cent prior lien stock, payable July 1, is due to be considered late next month. The firm is holding company for operating utility properties in Wisconsin, Michigan, South Dakota, and Nebraska.

The insolvency proceedings pending in New Jersey against three other Middle West units have been continued until May 9. The delay was made by the New Jersey chancery receivers for the company. The three units are the United Public Utilities company, Southern United Gas company, and Southern United Ice company. All are subsidiaries of United Public Service, which in turn is a subsidiary of Middle West Utilities, now in receivership.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 5,000; hogs, 19,000; sheep, 16,000.

Despite the fact that neither the extreme top nor the general average has changed for three days, sellers are inclind to regard the hog market more hopefully. The trade gave a better account of itself on yesterday's session. Stock selling at the top and bottom of the list showed a disposition to fluctuate, but the bulk of the market was shoved a trifle higher. Plain quality kept the general average from advancing a notch, while narrower eastern outlet enabled buyers to hold the peak price in line with Tuesday.

The top stopped at $4.00, with the general average again at $3.70. The undertone was decidedly stronger in big weights. Numerous instances of as much as 5c gain were cited in medium and heavy stock of choice quality during the day. Weakness in underweights partly offset this strength. Hogs running down in weight in some cases were discounted as much as 5@10c in the absence of outside support of these kinds.

Packing sows selling at $2.75@3.00 mostly, showed 5@10c gain. Most 250@300 lb butchers brought $3.50@3.70 and 200@225 lb averages sold largely at $3.80@3.95. Prime 388 lb butchers brought $3.40. No changes in the hog futures quotations were made yesterday. May light carried $4.25 bids, while September heavy grades were still available at $5.25, with no buyers present.

Quality Cattle Market.

It was a "quality" market in the cattle alleys as well as in the hog pens yesterday. Anything with weight grading up to requirements of eastern representatives held fully steady in the cattle market, but other stock ruled weak to 25c lower, the brunt of the decline coming on the "inbetween" classes of steers and the generous supply of "fed" yearling heifers which had not been in the feed lots long enough.

No outstanding weighty beeves were on hand, but some choice 1,192 lb averages went to swift at $8.00, the top for the day. A sprinkling of 1,237 @1,369 lb steers sold at $7.40@7.50, with only a small share of the day's total offerings eligible to more than $7.25. The bulk of shares made $5.50 @$7.25, with most of the unfinished light steers and yearlings at $5.25@6.00. Butcher stock ruled weak to 25c lower, with the clearance poor. Calves slumped mostly 25c.

Lamb Trade Frantic.

The lamb market turned erratic yesterday. A few carloads of outstanding wool lambs sold to slightly better advantage, while a big share of the rest ruled weak to 25c lower. It took all day to dispose of the moderate supply and weakness was more pronounced late in the session than it was at the start. Four carloads of Colorado fed lambs topped the market at $6.90, while the bulk of good grades sold at $6.25@6.50.

Springers sold for the Greek Easter at $7.00@8.00 mostly, one lot of extra choice 60 day old stock averaging 62 lbs making the outside figure.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—Interest in coffee today was centered around May against which futures for delivery of 7,000 bags were issued. Circulation of those issues in the "D" contract accounted for near month liquidation, while prompt stopping of those in the "A" delivery was followed by covering. No. 7 contracts opened unchanged to 2 points lower and closed4 higher to 4 lower. Sales, 3,000 bags. Santos opened 3 points lower and closed 2@4 lower. Sales, 6,000 bags. Closing quotations: Santos: May, 8.64c; July, 8.72c; September, 8.70c; December, 8.70c; March, 8.70c. No. 7 prices follow:

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil today closed barely steady at 1 to 5 points net decline, attributed largely to the depressed lard markets, which more than offset the steadiness of cotton and grains. Sales were 16 contracts or 2,400 barrels. Crude oil was 2½c bid in the southeast and the valley and nominal in Texas. Bleachable spot closed, 3.50c; May, 3.45c; July, 3.57c; September, 3.75c; December, 3.85c. There were no sales in the prime summer yellow contract, with closing prices as follows: Spot, 3.25c; May, 3.30; July, 3.40c; September, 3.60c.

EASIER TONE IN LARD

Trading in lard was of fair volume, with the tone easier. Changing of contracts from May to distant months was a feature, with the tone easier and net losses of 5@7½c were made at the finish. Bellies were unchanged to 2½c lower, with little interest shown. Cash trade was about a seasonal average, the low price for hog products being an attractive feature. Liverpool lard was 3d higher on spot and unchanged to 6d higher on September. Export clearances of lard were 40,000 lbs. Prices follow:

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw declined 2 points today to the basis of 2.63c for spots under more liberal offerings of nearby duty frees. The demand was not aggressive and the only sale confirmed was 15,500 bags of Philippines for May arrival to an outport refiner at 2.63c. Futures opened unchanged and held steady during the early part of the session, but weakened later under increased liquidation and selling by houses with Cuban connections, with final prices 1 to 2 points net lower. According to the New York Coffee and Sugar exchange, 90 mills have stopped grinding in Cuba with an outturn of 13,200,447 bags, or 766,507 bags above the quota fixed. Approximate sales, 13,900 tons. Refined sugar was unchanged at 3.90 for fine granulated, with demand fair and only of a hand to mouth character.

WEATHER FOOLS PROPHET AND TRADERS, TOO

Lack of Frost Cuts the Price of Wheat.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The grain traders seem to await completion of liquidation in the May deliveries before taking a decided stand on either side of the market. The numerous cross currents in the news which have caused such erratic fluctuations of late, however, were regarded by some observers as becoming less pronounced. There was generally a more friendly feeling to the buying side on the dips.

Speculators who bought wheat on Tuesday on the government forecast for heavy frost or freezing temperatures over the west and southwestern winter wheat belt were disappointed by the failure of temperatures to fall decidedly low. Scattered selling developed in consequence and with a lack of aggressive buying prices dropped around ¾c from the previous close and the finish was at net losses of ¼@½c. May was 56⅜@56¾c, old July 59⅜@59¾c, old September 62⅛@62¼c, and December 65½c at the last.

Expect More Rain.

While warmer weather prevailed over the winter wheat belt the forecast indicated showers in the western sections which are expected to be very beneficial, as the government weekly report indicated a further need of moisture in that area. Wheat is heading in some sections in southern Oklahoma. Official reports showed a minimum temperature of 22 at Alliance, Neb., while in Kansas a low of 30 was recorded Wednesday morning.

Crop reports on winter wheat as a whole were somewhat more optimistic than recently, the better claims coming from the more eastern part of the belt. On the other hand the crop comments from eastern Europe were unfavorable and those from western Europe generally optimistic, especially from France, although warmer weather is needed over a wide area. An average amount of the winter wheat acreage in Russia is expected to be abandoned due to winter killing.

Foreign demand for cash wheat was relatively inactive, but late in the day it was estimated that around 500,000 bu had been sold in all positions. Sales of 100,000 bu hard winter were known to have been made. Liverpool closed unchanged to ¼c per bu higher despite expectations of large Argentine clearances for the week. Winnipeg was ½@¾c lower with May at 61⅞c in Canadian funds.

Cash Corn in Demand.

The best shipping demand witnessed in a number of months was in evidence yesterday with sales by local handlers reported at around 300,000 bu, making about 500,000 bu disposed of to the east in the last two days. The long expected revival in the demand, however, had only a minor effect on futures, which held within a range of ¼c and closed unchanged to ¼c higher. May finished at 31⅞c, July 35⅛@35¼c, September 37⅝@37¾c, and December 38¼.

Liberal country offerings to arrive, with 155,000 bu reported as booked by local receivers, offset the large shipping sales to some extent, and in the last two days around 350,000 bu have been bought to come here. There were further offerings about ¼c above buyers views. Considerable changing was under way during the day between the May and July, scattered longs selling the former and buying the deferred delivery.

Changing operations furnished a good part of the trade in oats with scattered longs selling May and taking the September, while the northwest bought May and sold July at ½c difference. The close was unchanged to ⅛c higher with May 22¼c, July 22¾c, and September 23⅝c.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—Cotton goods were quiet today with a light demand reported for gray goods for burlaps. Silks are selling at low prices in moderate quantities. Rayon sales in April were 20 per cent under March. Wool goods are very quiet. Burlaps are easier following easing in sterling.

Why pay more than HOUSEHOLD'S LOW RATE?

The nationally known HOUSEHOLD LOAN PLAN offers cash loans of $300 or less to husbands and wives for reasonable rates.

Commonwealth Customers—Pay LESS—for LOANS

$2.93 is the average Monthly Cost of a $225 loan under COMMONWEALTH'S Reduced Rate. This allows 25 months for repayment. There is no lower cost than this in Chicago.

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signatures of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

NO FEES. You get full amount of the loan and up to 20 months to repay. Interest at the Reduced Rate is charged only while you keep the money.

Also Salary and Auto Loans.
